GOOD NEWS FOR THE NATION

Queen Regent Sanctions Acceptance of Demands Made by President McKinley.

This Government Has not Been Officially Informed, but Secretary Day Expects a Reply Monday.

SPANISH CABINET TO FORMULATE THE ANSWER TODAY.

French Embassy at Washington is Getting a Lot of Dispatches-State Officials Wondering What They are All About-A Confidant of M. [ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

MADRID, Aug. 6.—(By Atlantic Cable.) Evening. The Cabinet today approved the basis of the reply to the peace conditions proposed by the United States.

Duke Almodovar Del Rio, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, is charged with revising the reply, which will be read and approved at the Cabinet Council tomorrow morning.

It is stated on good authority that the Spanish reply will give no occasion for a further response to the United States,

> Queen Regent Accepted. [ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6. - A Madrid special to the New York Journal says: "The Queen Regent has approved the reply of the Spanish government to the United States accepting the conditions laid down by the latter under which peace will be concluded."

Answer Expected Monday. [BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 .- [Exclusive Dispatch.] The day has closed without any developments in the peace situation. When Judge Day left the department this evening he told The Times correspondent that no word had been received from the French Ambassador regarding Spain's answer, and Judge Day added that he hardly expected any news before Monday. The First Secretary of the French embassy called at the State Department this afternoon, but Judge Day declared that his visit had nothing to do with peace.

What is going on between the French embassy in Washington and Madrid, is not known to the officials of this government, but it is evident that some attempt at a diplomatic game is being played. M. Cambon has been receiving frequent dispatches today, and it is to be naturally supposed that they related to the peace propositions, and there is reason to believe that they also referred to possible chances of prolonged delay, for which the consent of this government is desired.

President McKinley is convinced that Spain is trying for some diplomatic advantage, and he is further convinced that her assurance that she would accept our terms which was given M. Cambon was a part of the game she is attempting to play by appearing frank with the United States. Still, in spite of this, there is little fear in Washington that peace will not come soon, for the firm manner in which this Government is dealing has convinced M. Cambon that procrastination by Madrid will be at Santa Monica today Growth of exceedingly expensive at this stage of the proceedings.

A gentleman who has the confidence of the French Ambassador says tonight that he believes M. Cambon has told the Madrid officials that it is a waste of time and an annoyance trying to get the Government to recede from its position, and that he has advised Sagasta to make haste with his answer without attempts for diplomatic

SUNDAY MORNING, AUGUST 7, 1898.

AT WASHINGTON.

Officials Satisfied That Spain's Answer Is Yes.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.] WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 .-- Just a week ago today Ambassador Cambon received from the President the terms of peace that would be granted by the United States. When the State Department closed its doors this afternoon the Spanish government had not signified whether or not it is prepared to accept these conditions. Every day during the past week an answer has been expected, and that same feeling of expectancy prevailed at the close of the week. It is significant that all responsible government officials are satsfied the reply will be an acceptance of our terms when it does come

About 2:30 o'clock Secretary Thiebault of the French Embassy called at the State Department, thus giving rise to the supposition that he was seeking to make an appointment for the Ambassador to met the President to deliver the Spanish answer. This, however, turned out to be erroneous. M. This bault's business being connected with some of the recent seizures of French merchant vessels by the blockading fleet, and relating in no way to the Spanish peace negotiations.

The fact that Secretary Day, had contemplated a trip to Atlantic City this afternoon, did not leave town was also the basis for another guess that he had notice that the Spanish note was coming immediately, and that his presence would be required here. As a matter of fact, the Secretary was detained beyond his train time by his reception of the Italian Ambassador, who had a long conference over the Cerruti case. Altogether, though the expectation of an early answer is still cherished, it was the belief of the officials when the day closed that there is now little likelihood of its receipt by the President before Monday. It was rumored in some quarters that the Spanish government had accepted the principal American terms and would be prepared to make formal answer on Monday, but the French Embassy, which would be the only recipient of any such notice, gave a very quick and effective denial of this story.

While all this delay is deprecated, t is realized that Sagasta probably is making the struggle of his life to bring the Spanish party leaders to the point where they will agree to stand by him in his acceptance of the terms of peace. This fact tends to secure the indulgence of our government in some degree, and this is to be readily extended in consideration of the fact that, so far from having surrendered at any advantage in agreeing to discuss terms of peace, we are gaining something substantial every day in the prosecution of the campaign, as revealed by the reports from Porto Rico. The naval plans of operations are also moving steadily forward, and notwithstanding statements to the effect that the projected cruise against the Spanish coast by the eastern squadron had been abandoned, Secretary Long stated this afternoon that no change had been dent McKinley Monday night. Judge respecting that squadron. Up to this reached the department respecting the movement of the Porto Rican cam ity. No word has come of soldiers with out food or ammunition, or of sic men without doctors or medicine, nor the inward movement of the Amer can army delayed for lack of artillery owing to Gen. Miles's insistence up keeping his artillery in the very van guard and giving personal attention to the commissary and quartermaster de partments.

The War Department officials now say that Shafter's army will begin embarking in earnest tomorrow, the transports which are arriving, obliged to take on stores for the homward trip. These, however, will be lim ited in quantity in order to avoid un necessary delay, and only ten days' ra tions will be placed aboard ship. Col Hecker, in charge of transportation said that he believed it would b scarcely necessary for the transports to make two trips, for in addition the ships already at Santiago, ther will be available for transport purposes the steamers which are carrying to Santiago the immune regiments which are to replace the Fifth Army Corps a that point.

The Merritt-Chapman Company has informed the Navy De partment that the wreckers have suc eeded in floating the Spanish cruise Maria Teresa, and are about to start her under her own steam to Norfolk The navy has nothing to do with this voyage the wreckers having contract to deliver any of the vessels of Cer veras' fleet that might be recovered a Santiago. It is fully expected at the Navy Department that the Maria Teresa will require very extensive re pairs? having suffered not only fro shot, shell and fire, but from a month' submersion in the quickly-fouling water of South Cuba, also. However, the repairs will certainly be made for senti mental reasons alone are strong enough to warrant the expenditure of noney enough to put the ship into ser viceable condition.

ALL BUT THE DEBT.
[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.] LONDON, Aug. 6 .-- The Madrid cor espondent of the Sunday Times says:

"Spain's answer will accept all th ems except that regarding the Cuban debt. The government will fight this point on the ground that in all other essions of territory by one nation to another, the ceded territory has car ried with it its own debt or the proportion belonging to the nation by which it is ceded. President McKinley will receive the answer on Monday, or at the latest, on Tuesday.

"Señor Sagasta, in conference with politicians and generals, follows the example of Senor Castellar in 1873. His objects are two-fold: To provide the responsibility for the decision and to avoid the convocation of the Cortes.

"The news from Porto Rico is reeived with great disappointment. The Spaniards are disgusted with the wel come the natives have given the Amer icans, and the news that the volunt er have thrown their arms down. The gen eral opinion is that it is not worth while to risk lives and spend millions for the sake of territories which are worse than disloyal to the mother coun (CONTINUED ON FOURTH PAGE.)

War Secretary Mixes Up With the Naval Department—Crew of the Yosemite Discharged Through His Influence.

IBT DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6,-[Exclusive Dispatch.] Secretary Alger has got himself into more trouble by his action yesterday in getting the crew of the Yosemite discharged from service. The Yosemite is in charge of the navy, but Secretary Alger pulled the strings and secured an order to discharge her men because the men happened all to be members of the Michigan Naval Reserves, mest of them wealthy, and most ail personal friends of Alger. President McKinley heard of the matter today and at once sent for Alger. What happened at the interview is unknown, but the order discharging from service the wealthy young men of the Michigan Naval Reserves has been rescinded.

Another Version. (BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6,-[Exclusive Dispatch.] It is claimed that Secretary Alger is interfering with naval alfairs by extending the scope of the War Office. Yesterday's order detaching naval reserves from the Yosemite is reported as being the result of personal influence exerted by Alger in behalf of volunteers from Michigan, who compose the officers and crew of the Yosemite. Some of the men had conducted themselves in a way to merit punishment, to escape which they secured Alger's assistance to get out of the service entirely. It can now be positively stated that there will be a demand for a Congressional investigation of Secretary Alger's administration.

Expect Hostilities to Be Suspended Next Week. IBY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ADRID, Aug. 6.-[Excl patch.] It is the impression in official quarters here that hostilities will be suspended next week. Indeed, I am able to state that the Spanish and members of the French Embassy at Madrid expect negotiations will be sufficiently advanced by Sunday to admit of the suspension of hostilities, the two governments having finally agreed upon all the main points necessary for the negotiations of a treaty. Admiral Sampson expresses the hope that the peace negotiations will come to a quick conclusion. He is anxious to take aggressive action on the south coast without delay, or in the event of peace being concluded to immediately relieve the suffering imposed by the rigor of the flockade. Throughout the campaign Admiral Sampson's keen appreciation of the sufferings of the, Cubans and his endeavors to afford them relief has been a marked feature.

The Potomac has recovered $10,000 from the Infanta Maria Teresa, which was driven ashore at the time Admiral Cervera attempted to escape from Santiago.

Santiago during the last two weeks has taxed the town's accommodations, which were never ample, to the utmost. The lack of anything like hotels and restaurants will continue to be a detriment to the city until some one with a knowledge of what Americans want, steps in and opens a hotel. The Anglo-American Club of Santiago, an institution founded over three years ago by the English-speaking residents of this place, has been the suivation of many Americans since the occupation. The club affords a limited number of cool and clean rooms to American officers and correspondents. Many of Santiago's American residents will remember most gratefully the club's cool garden and stone-paced shower bath. Since three days after the occupation the club has served meals, and while what is eaten comes mostly in cans, the long white table set twice a day with china plates and bottles of wine, has been a most welcome sight to many an officer who has ridden in from the front to experience the novel sensation of a civilized meal. Old friends met at this common center and the fighting of the 1st, 2nd and 3rd of July is told and told again by men who were on the right or left or who came up late. The naval officers from the field hear tales of what the ships have come to the club dinner and then their brother officers from the field hear tales of what the ships have cond to the cateror and the nesters and of Cuba. vera attempted to escape from Santeago.

The transport Resolute, with marines aboard, is still here. The shore is deserted save for the cable operators, and our marines who are on guard.

The newspapers containing Admiral Sampson's report of the battle of July 3 arrived here last night. They ware eagerly read throughout the feet, and the report created intense satisfaction.
The universal confidence in, and devotion to, the admiral by the men under his command rendered this expression of feeling a foregone conclusion.

PENDING PEACE.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]
WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Assuming that Spain has decided to accept our that Spain has decided to accept our terms for the negotiations of peace, it is expected that the peace agreement will be formally completed by the first of next week, and that hostilities will be suspended at once. This will not be followed at any early date by the disbanding of the army, but on the contrary, the period before the signing of the formal peace treaty and its ratification by the Senate will be devoted to perfecting a complete and effective or cation by the Senate will be devoted to perfecting a complete and effective erganization of the army, and cleaning, repairing and placing in perfect conditions all the vessels of the navy. The sick and wounded of the army, who are regarded as incapacitated for further service, probably will be given their discharges at an early date. A part of the forces sent to Porto Rico will be kept there, and others sent to Havana and other Cuban cittes for to Havana and other causal cate in garrison duty. It is regarded as quite probable that some of the best of Shafter's army, after thorough recuperation in the United States, may have to be sent again to Cuba.

The so-called "immunes" who will take the place of Gen. Shafter's forces at Santiago, are not in many cases, it is believed, really immunes, and it, therefore, is probable that some of them will fall victims to the climate. The protest of Senator Bacon against sending the Georgia immunes to Santiago indicates lack of confidence in the locality from which the so-called immunes come in their ability to with immunes come in their ability to with stand the heat.

PICKING UP.

Santiago Resuming Her Normal Business Order.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.] SANTIAGO DE CUBA, July 27,—The dirty condition of this city, the heaps of foul refuse that encumber the streets, the malodorous alleys and byways, the lack of sanitary arrangements and drainage of any description, are all matters that will require reme-dying if this is to become an American city. It should be remembered that the eeks of blockade, the fear of bom-rdment, the scarcity of food and the general demoralization existing in a besieged town have done much to add to the conditions of filth and poor san-itation that normally prevail.

as well as to the ships themselves, and the talk of sending Admiral Sampson in charge of this squadron, consequently, is rather speculative at this time. Of course, it is understood that in the event peace is restored there must be a complete reorganization and redistribution of the United States naval forces, and this will involve undoubtedly the separation of the four naval commanders of high rank now on duty in connection with the North Atlantic fleet, namely, Admiral Sampson. Commodore Watson, Commodore Schley and Commodore Howell.

The North Atlantic fleet comprises about a hundred vessels, the most numerous and powerful force ever commanded by an American admiral Such a gisantic force would not be maintained on any station in time of peace. Many of the auxiliary vessels and the menitors which are unfit for general cruising will be retired from commission and laid up in the navy yards, or in the case of the former will be retired to mentors which are united to avoid to the conditions of filth and poor sanitation that normally prevail.

For generations the people have lived regardless of the first rules of hygiene and the lower classes are ignorant of all precautionary measures, and it is not surprising when our American officers issue an order through the civil Governor of Santiago stating that all houses must be thoroughly cleaned, inside and out, the order is disregarded. Orders are constantly issued to the people to report at once the death of anyone in their household and threats of fine and enforced labor as a punish ment carry little weight. Extreme measures will have to be taken to bring about a proper condition of affairs in this respect and it will take many months of example and stringent enforcement of regulations to bring the people to an observance of what is clearly best for their health.

ORDERED RELEASED. [ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

MASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The government has ordered the release of the steamship Manoudia of the Compagnie Generale Transatiantique of France, captured by the American warships in West Indian waters and brought to Charleston, S. Many of the refugees from Santiago and the eastern end of Cuba who slipped over to Jamaica during the troublous times are coming back. Opportunities to do so are scarce, however, as steamers are not frequent from Jamaica, but slowly the town is filling up and the country people are coming in to buy certain necessities. But their modey is not plentiful as yet. They depend upon the crops of sugar, coffee and tobacco, and until agricultural work is resumed and the money that was sent back to Spain for safe keeping during the war finds its way, back to Cuba under an assured confidence in the future, money will not be so easy as it was in the old days.

WOOD'S CUT PRICES. [ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, August 6, 6 p. m.—Gen. Leonard Wood, the military governor of Santiago, this afternoon called a meeting of the butchers and retail provision dealers of the city, with the object of formulating a tariff for the sale of necessaries of life for which the dealers of late have been charging, exorbitant rates. All the dealers were highly indignant at the interference of the military authority in commercial matters, but Gen. Wood gave them until 11 o'clock tomorrow morning to agree on moderate prices under penalty of a revocation of their licenses, and the closing of their shops. A permanent scale of prices will be fixed.

respondence of the Associated Press.]
For a whole week the bulk of the North Atlantic squadron under Rear-Admiral Sampson has lain in this pleasant, land locked harbor. Injuries to the battleships from battle and from extra hard usage were being repaired, and the Vulcan, the traveling blacksmith and repair ship, was busy indeed.

On the Brooklyn a work of almost stupendous character was being performed. The mounts of all the 5-inch guns, the guns that did such splendid work in the battle of July 3, were injured, and were being replaced by more substantial modern ones. This meant the dismounting of every one of the big 5-inch guns, the removing of the gun itself from the jacket and carriage. Twelve guns in all had to be replaced, in addition to a 6-pounder that had been bent and spolled. The work began Tuesday, when the Armenia arrived with the new mounts, and in charge of Gunner Applegate, the work done entirely by the crew of the Brooklyn, proceeded to rapidly that on Friday noon, all were finished.
On Saturday, July 23, the Brooklyn and Vixen left Santiago for Guantanamo and for the first time in eight weeks the frowning Moro looked down on the Caribbean Sea free from menacing war vessels. The Brooklyn was in bad condition and was obliged to be repaired at once.

The Texas was ordered to New York, her decks being in a dangerous condition.

CAPTURE OF GUAYAMA ATTENDED BY THE CUSTOMARY REJOICING.

Details of Friday's Skirmish - A Newspaper Correspondent's Peculiar Experience - Enjoys the Novelty of Having a Spanish Camp Surrender to Him Unconditionally.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

PONCE (Porto Rico,) August 5. [Exclusive Dispatch.] The capture of Gayamas gave the Americans their first real battle on Porto Rican soil. ough ammunition was used by both the Spaniards and Americans to annihilate each other, yet only three Americans were wounded, and only one Spanfard killed and three wounded. At least, these are all that are accounted for. The Spaniards showed the degree of civilization to which they have attained by throwing the body of their dead soldier into the well from which part of the town gets it's water, evidently hoping to poison it.

Gen. Brooke's troops had landed at Arroyo, and he wanted Quaymas as a base of operations, it being the only large town of importance on the main road leading to the military road running from Ponce to San Juan.

Brooke ordered Haines to occupy the own, and at 7 o'clock this morning the Fourth Ohio and Third Illinois Regiments were ordered out, the Ohio regment being in the van. It was known that there were Spanish cavalry in the neighborhood, so the troops proceeded cautiously along the road from Arroyo to within a mile of the city. The road is level to that point, and there were no signs of Spaniards anywhere along the route.

The advance guard of the Ohlo regment entered a cut and had proceeded less than a hundred yards when the nail of Spanish bullets on both sides from the mountain whistled over their leads. The guards being in very small force fell back, firing as they retreated, and the main body hurried forward, firing at a lively rate at the uphill side as they advanced. A hundred yards further, just beyond a sharp turn in the road, they suddenly came upon a barricade that had been thrown across the road. The barricade had been made of sectional ironwork filled in with sand. The Spaniards behind this defense were shooting at the rate of 100 shots a min ute, but every shot was aimed too high, though the American troops were within halling distance.

Haines ordered deploying parties sent up the hills to flank the enemy. The road was lined on each side with barbed wire entanglements, but many of the troops carried machetes, with which they attacked the fences, disregarding the bullets, and in a few minutes had cut their way through, and then s hundred men made they way up the mountains on both sides of the road. The firing line of our troops held its position and poured bullets into the baricade. The Spanish firing did not last long. In fact, it stopped in less time than it takes to tell of it, but what became of the Spaniards behind the barricade is a mystery.

Meantime the deployed force reached the hilltops on both sides of the road and began pouring a rattling fire down half hour there was very little return. Then the Spaniards rallied and made a stand, but they were still unseen. It was in this rally that three of our men vere wounded.

At 11 a.m.the troops entered the town Just as the town was reached there was a resumption of the desultory firing, and at the same time an occasional shot came from the town itself Every Spanish shot was answered by volley from our men. This was kept up for half an hour, when a flag of truce came down the road and bearer said the town had surrendered unconditionally.

Haines and his staff rode forward through the streets of the city. All houses were closed; not a person was in sight. Gen. Haines rode to the publie building, and by the time he got there, the houses began to open. Then, as if by magic, people came out and rushed toward the general and his staff. Some prostrated themselves in the road and grabbed the Americans around the knees while others threw their arms around the necks of the soldiers and kissed them, all the time shouting, "Viva los Americanos," etc. Their en "Viva los Americanos," etc. Their en-thusiasm seemed unbounded, and the scene at the surrender of Ponce was eclipsed.

Haines had the flag hoisted, and scouting parties were sent out. mediately the Spaniards began bombarding the town, but their aim was bad, only one man being hit. Then two dynamite guns were brought up, and three shots were fired into the hills. That settled the Spaniards. It was discovered later that there were about five hundred of the enemy. They had been fortifying the place for two weeks. It is the belief of military men now, that there will be no fighting more serious than the Guayama affair till San Juan is reached. If these men are wrong in this belief, it is at least based upon incidents that have occurred.

The health of the troops is fine. There is less sickness than there was in the garrison at home. It has been decided on this account that a hospital ship is maintained. F. O. JOHNSON, Prop unnecessary. We have cleaned out

> The grotesqueness of the Porto Rican campaign cannot be illustrated better than by narrating an incident which has happened to a newspaper correspondent. He accidentally stumbled into the Spanish lines at Coamo, whereupon he was deserted by his Porto Rican escort and left alone. While en-deavoring to reach a point of safety he fell into the Spanish outposts and was surrounded by officers and men of the enemy. He believed he had been made a prisoner, but the peaceful attitude of the soldiers assured him he was not to be dealt with in a drastic manner. After a parley of a few moments, to his great surprise the Spanish officers agreed to surrender. The visitor managed to conceal his astonishment at the turn of affairs and began negotiating. The Spanish officers agreed to retire the next day and permit the American troops to advance.

Miles declined to take a serious view of the matter. He said he would not allow an engagement surrender-under such circumstances to be kept. He declared that the correspondent was fool-hardy, and, not understanding that the latter got into the Spanish outposts by accident, dismissed the affair as an incident of the campaign.

WE HAVE ENGLAND'S SUPPORT. [BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, August 6.-[Exclusive The attitude of the Eng-Dispatch.] lish press and people toward an armis tice and peace which the McKinley government is arranging, is characteristic and admirable. They have made no secret of their eager desire to have the Americans hold the Philippines and they are not intesested in any other detail of the settlement. The Closest observers here do not hesitate to say that the real source of danger and after the peace negotiation will be the German intrigue. They may be unduly suspicious and unjust, but they believe that Germany has been intriguing with both Madrid and Ma nila, and the Emperor will not be reconciled to peace unless he can get something out of it. They are convinced that the Americans will be menaced in the Philippiines with German hostility, and that, with a treacherous leader like Aguinaldo, as a naturally for a meddlesome diplomacy, there is much trouble ahead for President McKinley. Otherwise the course is smooth for the peacemakers, if the Sagasta ministry holds together, and a satisfactory adjustment of all the issues of the war is only a matter of time and patience. These apprehensions are entertained in diplomatic circles, although nothing is said about them in the press.

GERMANY IS INTERESTED. [BY D'RECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, Aug. 7.-[Exclusive Dispatch.] In diplomatic circles the only point in the peace negotiations causing anxiety is the fate of the Philipines. This now is further complicated by the knowledge of the existence of German mining engineers' reports, which are said to be now under consideration by the Berlin Foreign Office. According to these is one particular Philippine Island, known only to the German government, containing deposits of steam-producing coal, free from lignites and sulphur, equal to the best Cardiff the mountain sides and ahead of their navigation coal. The same reports position on the hill. Our men then all state that all other coal deposits so far advanced, firing as they went. For a known to exist in the Philippines, hold such large proportions of lignites and sulphur as to be unfit for navigation purposes. In the opinion of French naval authorities, the possession of this particular coal deposit will be of incalculable value to any nation that may secure coaling stations in the Philippines.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7-[Exclusive Dispatch.] While all delay on the part of Spain is deprecated, it is realized that Sagasta probably is making the struggle of his life to bring the Spanish party leaders to a point where they will agree to stand by him in his acceptance of the terms of peace. This fact tends to secure the indulgence of our government in some degree, and this is more readily extended in consideration of the fact that so far from having surrendered any advantage in agreeing to discuss the terms of peace, we are gaining something substantial every day in prosecution of the campaign, as revealed by the reports from Porto Rico.

WHAT WE'LL HAVE.

Some Idea as to the Complication of Claims Possible.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.] WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The an-nouncement that the United States government will assume liability for the claims of the insurgents against the Spanish government on account of in-juries and damages sustained in the Cuban insurrection has caused the filing of a large number of claims with the State Department. Very many of these are not based on events occurring during the last rebellion, but date back many years, and relate to damages sus tained through municipal maladminis ration and such things.

On the other hand there are now Spanish claims to the amount of $8,000,000 against the United States, that in the event of a joint claims committee the event of a Joint claims committee being authorized would be proved offsets to many Americans here. A large number of these claims are made by Spanish citizens on account of property destroyed or appropriated by the Confederate troops during the civil war, thus having exactly the same basis as a number of claims filed by American citizens against the Spanish government for property seized or destroyed by insurgents in Cuba. Another class of these claims is of recent date, flowing from the abortive efforts of the commissioners and special courts created by Congress to "settle the

PROTECTION FOR PRIESTS.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—As much as has been stated that the Archbishop Manila has been directed by the vatican to place himself and his clergy inder protection of the American commanders, it may be stated that such protection will be afforded on exactly the same terms and conditions that will be extended to the clergymen of all denominations and to all non-combatants in Manila and the remainder of the Philippines.

Ints in Manila and the remainder of the Philippines.

It is known that the insurgents have particularly singled out the Catholic ciergy as the objects of their venerations, without doubt inspired because of the assistance afforded to the Spanish authorities by the priests and friars in their efforts to repress the rebellion in its early stages. However, so long as the clergy refrain from taking upurms in the Spanish cause, the Amerian commanders, naval and military, till afford them such protection as the lights of civilized warfare require.

READY FOR THEM.

Although Russia is Backing Water England is Preparing.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—[By Atlantic Ca-ble.] That extreme diplomatic tension exists betwen St. Petersburg and Lon-don is generally admitted today, though the officials deprecate the nlarmist re-ports which were current yesterday. It is hoped that the firmer stand adopted by the Marquis of Salisbury during the last few days, which seems to have al-ready created some misgiving at St. last few days, which seems to have already created some misgiving at St. Petersburg, will have the desired effect of arresting Russian aggressiveness. It is felt both here and on the continent, that the outcome of the dispute in regard to the new Chwang Railroad extension is the crucial point of the success or failure of Great Britain's policy of the "Open door." As evidence of the fact that Great Britain appreciates the gravity of the situation the Associated Press learns that the admiralty is preparing for all emergencies and that it will soon be ready to mobilize the entire fleet at the shortest notice. Every officer and manonfurlough or on half pay has been assigned to a ship and instructed to be in readiness to join at the earliest moment. Therefore, practically every ship in the British navy, whether in or out of commission at the present moment, has its full war complement of officers, who are ready to take her out to see when the time arrives.

According to Paris advices, Admiral Bedellier, commanding the French China squadron, has cabled France for reinforcements and a large credit to be applied to erecting fortifications. The reason given for these demands is that the natives of the Kwang Chou Wang region are showing signs of hostility. But there is some suspicion here rhat the action of the French admiral may be connected with a desire to back up Russian designs.

Dear Sir, In reply to your question as to whether there is any ground for believing that America or the American people would be willing to aid or encourage the construction of the Panama Canal, I will say that I believe any movemnt in that direction would be wholly futile. Our wisest engineers do not consider the Panama Canal feasible in any economic sense, if at all. SPAIN ANSWERS "YES."

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.] NEW YORK, Aug. 6.-[Exclusive Dispatch.] Confirmation was given sive dispatch to The Times that Spain peace terms. The draft of the reply has been completed, and its general tenor has been permitted to pass the censor at Madrid, showing that Sagasta has bowed to the inevitable, and that his counsellors have yielded to the overwhelming conditions. It is said hat it was unanimously agreed at a ession of the Cabinet. Ratification by the Queen Regent is considered certain.

Latest advices from London and Madrid say that a draft of the reply was to be sent to the Queen this forenoon and that the Spanish Cabinet will hold a meeting this afternoon.

A special from Paris this afternoon says: "The Spanish government wants Minister Woodford as a peace commission. Señor Castillo, Spanish Ambassador to France, has asked M. JUST GUESSING.

Suppositions as to the Terms of Spain's Acceptance.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.] WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 .-- The answe of Spain to the American terms on which peace may be restored, was ex-pected at almost any moment in official circles today, and the brief press dispatch from Madrid stating that the answer was an acceptance, increased the tension over what was looked upon as a culmination of the negotiations During the early hours of the day the State Department had not received any direct information as to Spain's answer, nor was there an intimation when it will come. The same was true as to the French Embassy. The Ambassa-dor had made no arrangement for a call at the White House or the State Department, and none of the officers of the embassy had conferred with the officials here since the discussion of last Wednesday night. Everything was in a condition of waiting and expec-

The report from Madrid that a Cabinet Council would go over the reply this afternoon, indicates that it might not be dispatched to Washington until late in the day. Secretary Day had expected to go to Atlantic City this evening to join Mrs. Day, and he may even yet carry out his plan unless some official assurance reaches him from the French Embassy that the reply will be forthcoming tonight. A report was current during the day that the embassy received a communication at an early hour this morning, the inference being that it was Spain's reply, but this, it can be stated positively, is not correct, for up to midday Spain had given no intimation of her answer to any quarter in Washington. report from Madrid that a Cab-quarter in Washington.

The Spanish annoucement that the Spanish cabinet will go over the reply this afternoon raises a possibility of a Cabinet-discussion and a prolongation of the time before the answer is submitted. All the Madrid reports show that Premier Sagasta is endeavoring to reconcile the various political elements, and the leaders as far as pos-sible, and there is a disposition among officials here to give him time for this difficult and delicate moulding of pub-lle and political sentiment up to the point of acceptance of the American demands. This view is strengthened among officials here by the fact that all our preparations are going stead-ily forward. The campaign in Porto Rico is progressing with uninterrupted success, the hands of Admiral Dewey Rico is progressing with uninterrupted success, the hands of Admiral Dewey and Gen. Merritt are being strengthened at Manila, and the conditions at Santiago so serious when the American generals united their statement, is being promptly and energetically overcome. For this reason, it is felt that delay is the loss of Spain, and that Sagasta, in the interest of his own country will make the answer as speedily as internal conditions will permit. If the Madrid dispatches are fully realized, Spain's acceptance of America's terms, then officials feel that nothing remains but the routine of concluding the formalities of peace. In some quarters apprehension is felt in regard to the word "acceptance." It is pointed out if the accentance is simple and affirmative on all the American peace terms, every chance for delay or negotiations is at an end. But if the acceptance is qualified in any way by a condition 'that certain privileges be granted, or rights conceded, then there is still the possibility of further discussion. The Madrid advices are so unqualified in stating that the American terms are accepted that there seems to be little chance Spain will attach any conditions to her acceptance, and yet only the answer itself, final, unconditional and conclusive, can make it clear that the last chance of controversy is removed.

There will be little surprise here if

It clear that the last chance of con-troversy is removed.

There will be little surprise here if the culmination of the peace arrange-ment brings about a change in the Spanish Cabinet, not so much by a Spanish Cabinet, not so much by a crisis as by a concerted movement among the leaders to institute a Cabinet representing all elements, including the army, capable of taking the responsibility before the country of the acceptance of the American terms.

The tradition of the navy provides that when a commander loses a ship, no matter what the circumstances, he must suffer for which will soon be put out of commission. He will then be without a ship, and his friends claim that he is being punished for the loss of the Maine. Were he assigned to command the Oregon, it would amount to a practical declaration on the part of the Navy Department that he he was in no way responsible for the loss of the ship. Failure to give him a good ship is calculated to imply opposition among naval men.

[A. P. NIGHT REPORT. COPYRIGHT, 1898.]

BERLIN, Aug. 6.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The death of Prince Bismarck has, of course, engrossed public attention throughout the week. While it cannot truthfully be said that the oppression created by the audden death of the great Chancellor was as deep as would have been expected, and while there was nothing like general mourning visible in Berlin, yet there were unmistakable evidences of widespread sympathy.

The publications and revelations which so quickly followed the death of the Prince have naturally created a sensation and deep anger in government circles, and there is still greater surprise and ressentment at the attitude of the Bismarck family. The Emperor left nothing undone that could testify to his personal grief or the sense of greatness of the loss to Germany. His proclamation addressed to the Imperial Chancellor, Prince Hohenlohe, has given high satisfaction throughout the country, and it is generally admitted that magnanimity was required to enable His Majesty to preserve such unruffled serenity in the face of the evident sullenness of the family.

Majesty to preserve such unrumed screenty in the face of the evident sullenness of the family. He devised most splendid honors for the deceased statesman, and when his efforts to place the latter's remains beside his (the Emperor's) grandfather were refused, the Emperor carried out what was possible in the shape of a public funeral regardless of the absence of any of the Bismarcks. On the whole Emperor William has shown great tact in the face of open rebuffs. The Vossische Zeitung, referring to the matter, says:
"We do not wish to pass judgmeat, and only chronicle facts. The notice of the death addressed to the Emperor did not bear the signature of the son, but of the doctor. The Emperor commanded Prof. Begas to take a cast of the features, but the emissary of the sculptor was obliged to leave Friedrichsruhe without fulfilling his mission. The Emperor desired to see the body, but the coffin was closed before he could do so, although, according to the testimny of Prof. Lenbac, neither were the features of Prince Bismarck disfigured, nor were there any signs of decemposition.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.] VANCOUVER (B. C.,) August 6.— [Exclusive Dispatch.] While Thomas Gentle, a mining expert of Green Lake, Wis., was prospecting with Jim Nesbitt near Jevins's Inlet, sixty miles from the nearest camp, a log rolled down hill on them. Nesbitt wriggled from beneath the huge tree, but Gentle was pinned by the small of the back between the log and a big rock. He commenced to die then. His partner watched beside him for two days and nights, seeing his life going out, be-fore he succeeded in prying up the tree and pulling his crushed body Nesbitt went for help, but Indians were the only human beings he could find. He gave them $20, all he had, to carry the dying man to camp at Vananda, sixty miles away.

After covering fifteen miles, the In-dians then refused to go further. Nes-bitt gave poor Gentle's pallbearers his gold watch which induced the Indians to carry the burden five miles further, when the Siwashes stopped again, saying: "No use carrying dead man." Nesbitt whipped out a revolver and told the Indians there would be more dead men around if they did not move on. At the point of the revolver fifteen more miles were covered by the Indians, when they abruptly dropped the burden and fied to the woods.

Three days after this Gentle reached Vananda, his litter being borne by his comrade. He died two days after reaching there and eight days after the

from the Disease.
[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.] FRESNO, Aug. 6.--Cattle and horses that are pastured on Kings River are uffering from Texas, or splenic fever Within the last few days 200 head have succumbed to the disease.

The disease is not a new thing in this country. Cattle are affected with it each year, but it has never been so bad as it is this year. A number of years ago a herd of 1500 cattle was brought to this country from Texas by Crate Hayes. The animals were pastured on Kings Hiver bottom and soon the Texas fever appeared among them. The greater portion of the herd died. Since that time it has broken out on the river bottom every summer with more or less vigor.

Although it has been but a few weeks since the disease made its appearance this year, it is spreading very rapidly It has extended to the Mussell Slough country, and has broken out in other quarters. It is stated that cattle, horses and sheep are affected by it. A number of men are going through the infected districts skinning the dead animals for (their hides, which are given the skinners for burning the dead animals.

GONE HOME TO PUSH.

Ex-Queen Lil Expects to Land in

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 6 .-- The Hawailan commissioners, when they meet in Honolulu to adjust the governmen of the islands, will find some thorns in the pathway of their investigations. Probably the most important matte with which they will have to deal is that of land titles. By annexation, the United States has become possessed of large tracts of land which be added to the public domain. Of the public domain. Of these the crown lands are a part. It will be the duty of the joint commission to what title the United States can give to intending settlers in this new territory.

Former Queen Liluokalani has gone home for the purpose of pushing her alleged claim to the crown lands, probon the strength of the act of July ably on the strength of the act of July 3, 1865, which, after providing for the organization of the crown lands com-mission to manage the crown estate, declares in unequivocal terms that these are inalienable, and guarantees the income from them to the crown for the income from them to the crown for all time.

A far graver complication awaits the action of the commission in the historical Ladd & Co. claim. This contract and the Belgian contract are among the most interesting incidents of Hawaiian history. The ruining of the house of Ladd & Co., through influence brought to bear by the government of that time, was perhaps a greater scandal even than can be laid at the door of any of the numerous Gibson governments. The firm of Ladd & Co. was at the time the largest and most influential business concern in the islands. A suit for $275,000 damages was begun by Ladd & Co. against the Hawaiian A suit for $275,000 damages was begun by Ladd & Co. against the Hawaiian government, but the heirs of the part-ners in Ladd & Co. have never been able to obtain satisfaction. Returned Without Gold.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 6.—The steamer Leelanaw arrived today, twelve days from St. Michaels. She brought seven passengers who returned without any gold. Her passengers report the condition existing at St. Michaels as being extremely precarious. They say that thousands of people are starving, and that relief must be sent by the government. Commercial companies control all available landing places at St. Michaels, and vessels are unable to land their passengers or their cargoes. The Yukon is getting too low for navigation, and the distress will be very great this winter unless the government takes some energetic relief action.

Russia Defies His Challenge in the East.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.]

Europe has suddenly turned from the fading tempest in the West to the looming war cloud in the East. The storm has been so long gathering that the threatening aspect at the present moment is quite unexpected. Political meteorologists are agreed, however, that the crisis is very real, and unless the wind speedily changes the tempest will soon break. It is an interesting commentary upon modern international relations that the affair which has brought Russia and England to the verge of war is the matter of a franchise for building a railroad in Asia. The question, of course, is the consummation of a long series of British diplomatic defeats, but Salisbury has delivered an ultimatum which Russia has promptly defied. Now it must be confessed Salisbury's best friends are trembling lest he ignominiously retreat from a position where he has declared to the world he will stand or fall. Faris has been even more excited in the past day or two, over the assumed immence of the Anglo-Russian war than London, and it may be added that Frenchmen are quite delighted with the prespect, Meantime reports of Russian preparations for all eventualities become daily more numerous. Today's most authentic report is that Russia has really secured a navai base in the Red Sea from one of Ring Menetek's dependencies, the Sultan of Raheita. It is thus explained that in case of rupture, England would be presumed to strike quickly at Russia's nearest and most vulnerable points. It is also assumed she would find means of coercing the Porte to open the Dardanelles and Bosphorus for passage of a Mediterranean fleet, but Russia is gambling once more on the peasibility of blumng Salisbury into a withdrawal, and this belief is not without justification in recent experiences.

Thomas Lipton Challenges for

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.] LONDON, Aug. 6.-According to the star the challenge of Sir Thomas Lipton, for a race for the America's Cup, will be dispatched this afternoon by the Royal Ulster Yacht Club to the New York Yacht Club.

Charles S. Russell, Sir Thomas Lip-Charles S. Russell, Sir Thomas Lip-ton's representative in the matter, is conferring this evening with William Fife, the designer on whose plans the challenging yacht will be built at Bel-fast. They are at the country seat of Sir Thomas Lipton, in the course of an interview with a representative of the Associated Press this evening, said:

the Associated Press this evening, said:

"A deputation of three members of the Royal Ulster Yacht Club met me and Mr. Russell in London this morning and drew up the challenge, which was forthwith cabled to the New York Yacht Club, whose reply I hope to receive on Monday. The challenge is absolutely conditionless, and I am perfectly satisfied that the race will be conducted with the same impartiality as are the Cowes races, and that all the Americans desire the best boat to win, as my colleagues and myself do.

"The details of the races, if the challenge is accepted, will be arranged by the New York Yacht Club and Mr. Russell, who expects to sail on Wednesday and prepare the ground for three members of the Royal Ulster Yacht Club, including Secretary Kelley, who will proceed to New York later. three members of the Royal Ulst Yacht Club, including Secretary Kello who will proceed to New York later Verdict on Binkley's Death. The Coroner yesterday held an in-uest on the body of M. S. Binkley, the lineman who met death Friday last in coming in contact with a live wire. The verdict of the Coroner's jury is that deathe resulted from an electric shock, "received through his own care-lessness." The Edison Electric Company, for whom Binkley worked, require the linemen to wear rubber gloves when handling live wires, but Binkley did not have them on when he met with the accident that proved so fatal.

Disappearance of Ed Cole.

Ed Cole, the son of Mrs. Cole of No. 619 Caroline street, has disappeared and his mother is greatly alarmed lest harm has befallen him, as he is of poor health. Three weeks ago he left home in company with Lije Wilkinson, driving Mrs. Cole's two horses, one bay and one white, to a light wagon. He was expected to return the same evening, but he has not yet made his appearance. All concerned are colored people. Ed Cole, the son of Mrs. Cole of No

Ringlenders Arrested and Tried for Malicious Conspiracy. [ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

$3 per month, all medicines free.

OSHKOSH (Wis.,) Aug. 6.-The sash and door manufacturers have tried to fix the responsibility for the labor riots here. Warrants were issued today for W. A. Kidd, secretary of the National Woodworkers' Union and George Senter and Mile Trober, two local leaders. The complaint was made by Nathan Pain of the Pain Lumber Company and the charge is conspiracy to ma-liciously injure the company by terrify-ing and intimidating its employés by means of threats and abuse. Kidd and Senter were arrested at 9 o'clock and given an immediate hearing before Judge Fossina's Municipal Court. Their trial was set for August 12, and ball was fixed at $2000 each, which was furnished, and the prisoners were re-leased. Trober will be arrested as soon as he can be located. Secretary Kidd

A Rare Old Violin.

N. T. Powell yesterday exhibited at the studio of Harley Hamilton a genuine old Cremona violin made by Je seph Guenarius in 1701. Its shape and size differ materially from the modern instrument, the season of nearly two handred years, coupled with the masterly workmanship of Guenarius, ha produced a volume of tone that Ysay pronounced exquisite and perfect i quality. This is the only Joseph Guenarius west of Chicago. There are not dozen in the United States. The instrument is valued at $1000.

LOS ANGELES BUSINESS COLLEGE. 712 W. Third st., is the oldest established, has the largest attendance, and is the best-equipped business college on the Pacific Coast. It employs only college-trained and experienced teachers; its rooms are all new large, well lighted and ventilated, and it teaches modern, practical, up-to-date methods in book-keeping, shorthand and typewritings, telegraphy and assaying. The budget or voucher system of brok-keeping, as taught here, is unequaled. The shorthand department is the most successful on the Coast. The telegraph and assay departments are the best in Southern California. If you are desirous of obtaining a business training that will fit you for the practical duties of life, investigate this college before entering elsewhere. Catalogues and circulars free. Habits Cured in From One to Five Days by Drs. Pepper

The above reputable physicians have made some marvelous cures with their new remedy. After the first treatment that craving desire for drink is gone, and their cures are permanent. This can be verified in many ways. A young man had just finished taking Drs. Pepper and Lawrance's remedy when a chance acquaintance met him and offered to treat, but the young man refused, saying he had been treated and cured for this greatest curse in America—drink. The doctors treat patients at their homes, if desired, or will take them to private quarters. No publicity given. You are not compelled to go in a hospital or sanitarium. We have treated patients and their families did not even know it. We now have a home treatment that can be taken without the aid of a physician which we guarantee to absolutely cure you, but we much prefer to administer the remedy; yet in remote places, where it would greatly inconvenience one to come here this home treatment will do just what we claim. We are more than pleased to get patients who have tried other remedies. No money required until you are cured. Write for particulars. Consulta-

CANDIDATES RECEPTION.

Business Men's Republica: Club's Plans.

The Executive Committee of the Young Business Men's Republican Club has succeeded in securing Music Hall for their "candidates meeting," and public reception next Thursday evening. This promises to be an event in the campaign which will bring the various candidates into close touch with the voters. The club, which is a little over a week old, now has 160 members and is growing rapidly. As glance at the list of members shows that the club is reaching out for the better classes. The active membership list is composed exclusively of young men between 11 and 35 years of age who are actively engaged in mercantile or professional pursuits. The club promises to be an important factor in this campaign, and by election time hopes to have at least 500 members.

water used for personal ablution are a fertile source of irritation and injury to sensitive skins. In some instances the mere substitution of boiled water effects a sensible reduction in the roughness or other discomforts, but it often occurs that only distilled water will give complete relief, so inimical are the ingredients of hard water to delicate complexions.

"Boiling water will not wholly remove these objectionable substances, whilst all other methods for softening water are inconvenient and impracticable in private families.

Fruit Coming in Slowly-First Car of Pears. Fruit Coming in Slowly-First Carof Pears.

REDLANDS, Aug. 6.—[Regular Correspondence.] The cannery opened the first of this week, expecting to run on full time with a full force of employe's canning peaches; but the degree of ripeness was deceptive because of the high color put upon the fruit by the recent hot spell. The cooler weather for the past week has caused the peaches to ripen slowly, so there have been only seventy-five employes at work at the cannery. Today the fruit began to arrive in greater quantity. The quality is good, though not of the very best. The varieties being used are the Muir and Early Crawford. The first car of pears was received today and will be ripened in the cannery's ripening room. The variety is the Bartlett, and the fruit is of excellent quality.

Flexible Rubber Dental Pl

OUR NEW PROCESS Of Flexible Rubber Dental Plates is as yet but little known by the public, and less understood by dentists in general. It has many advantages over the ordinary rubber plate, even gold plates, being lighter and thinner. This plate being flexible, only a trifle thicker than heavy writing paper, fits closer to the mouth, will last longer and is tougher than any other rubber. Once tried no other will be desirable. Brought to the notice of the public through Dr. Schiffman only.

All work very best and guaranteed. We solicit difficult cases.

A full set of teeth on Red Rubber only $5.00, and a fit guaranteed.

AMERICAN INVASION NOT SO FOR-MIDABLE AS EXPECTED.

Tastes Cannot Be Supplied by Rule-Hoyt's Melanchely Exrience-John Oliver Hobb's As-

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

LONDON, Aug. 4, wired from Chicago Aug. 6.—[Correspondence of the Associated Press.] American dramatic invasion of London closed for the season when the curtain fell on "Sue" at the Garrick Theater tonight. Taken altogether, the invasion has not proven formidable an onslaught upon the native drama as local managers feared, the playhouses of the English actornanagers, Irving, Tree, Alexander, Wyndham and Hare, maintain their old-time prominence in the affections of the public. So far as concerns the ligitimate plays imported from America, they have furnished each a month or two of intersting amusement and have been shelved. This year's experience have taught the American managers that English tastes cannot be solved by any fixed rules, for the conspicuous American success, "The Belle of New York," and the equally conspicuous York," and the equally conspicuous failure, the "Stranger in New York," failure, the Stranger in New York were much on the same order of entertainment.

Charles Hoyt's London trip proved the most melancholy experience which has befallen him since his early attempts to float melodrama in Boston. Such a vigorous and unanimous condemnation as the critics visited upon him has seldom been gained here. Talested actors who carried the skit suffered a harrownig fortnight, for struggle as they would to arouse the English to laughter, Hoyt's American humor seemed to inspire only solemnity and amazement.

Annie Russell has succeeded in installing herself quite firmly in the esteem of the English public, though the medium of her appearance was not a fortunate one.

Mr. Frohman has now a controlling interest in two London, theaters, the Garrick and the Duke of York's, and a part interest in the Adelphia, the home of melodrama so long held by William Terris. Great hopes are builded on William Gillette's impersonation of Sherlock Holmes, the detective, as the character seems exactly suited to Gillette's imperturbability. He and Dr. A. Conan Doyle are now engaged upon the dramatization which will be produced first in America next fail.

"The Heart of Maryland" also suf-

Sherlock Holmes, the detective, as the character seems exactly suited to Gillette's imperturbability. He and Dr. A. Conan Doyle are now engaged upon the dramatization which will be produced first in America next fall.

"The Heart of Maryland" also suffered by comparison with London's first taste of American war drama, and its success also was only moderate, the critics finding Mrs. Leslie Carter's acting more to their fancy than Mr. Belasco's stagecraft.

The fall season at the Adelphia will be opened with a melodrama, the "Gipsy King," from the pen of George R. Sims, with Julia Neilson and Fred Tarry in the leading parts.

Alexander has found his new play. "The Ambassador," by Mrs. Craigle (John Oliver Hobbs) such a card that he will continue it next season, and is equipping a second company for the provinces. Considerable unfavorable comment has been provoked among Americans in London from the fact that Mrs. Craigle, herself introduced into the play for its low-comedy element, a family of liliterate, pushful Americans, whose participation is quite unnecessary to the story, and it is said the offending passages will be climinated before the play goes to the United States.

The long-standing alliance of Mrs. James Brown Potter and Kyrle Bellew is to be broken, at least temporarily. Mrs. Potter has been engaged by Beerbohm Tree as leading lady to play Minach in the version of the "Three Musketeers" next fall. Bellew becomes leading man with Charles Windham for a new play by Louis N. Parker and Murrav Carson, the authors of "Rosemary."

Olga Nethersole will tour the United States under the management of Marcus R. Mayer, and her principal play, in the lease of the management of Marcus R. Mayer, and her principal play, in the least the principal play, in the least temporarily may be a supplied to the province of "Rosemary."

OTHER FUNNY BUSINESS.

Unionist Ministry Working for Irish Local Government.

[A. P. EARLY MORNING REPORT.] NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The London correspondent of the Tribune, writing under date of July 25, says: The dullest session of Parliament which England has known for a generation is drawing to a close, with the Irish Local Government Bill advanced in the House of Lords to the commit-tee stage and with the benefices, crimi-nal case evidence and other measures as practical proofs of legislative indust tee stage and with the benenees, criminal case evidence and other measures as practical proofs of legislative industry. Stagnant politics has not implied idleness on the part of the law-makers. More useful work has been done during the session than in any single year of conservative government during the Queens reign. The Irish Local Government Bill is a large, progressive measure, following the main lines of similar legislation for England and Scotland, with modifications required for reconciling the land-owners to tenant rule.

The passage of so complete a scheme for the transfer of local administration in Ireland from the old-time governing class to the masses is a remarkable achievement for the Unionist ministry, and the remainder of the legislation of the session is of unusual variety and importance. It has been a busy and fruitful session, but it has been, in the language of the smoking-room of the Commons, "Deadiy duil politics."

The strangest anomaly has been the facility with which an Irish bill of great importance has been enacted without a struggle and hardly a single angry or resentful debate in either house. After the storm and stress of agitation, ostruction and passion over Irish legislation for a generation, there has been a great caim when violent partisans have beome listless and amicable, and nobody has seemed to mind what was going on. There has been no systematic opposition to the measure in either house. The Liberals have been listless spectators; the Nationalist groups have shown good temper and refrained from their usual harassing tactics, and the Unionists have voted with languid indifference and cynical amusement.

In the Lords there is a disposition to be critical respecting minor details, stant in his attendance than he usually is. No new men have come forward on the government side. The security of a manistry which is supported by a majority of 140 in a full house has tended to paralyze debate. There has been a lack of humor and of lively by-play in the proceedings. Everybody in the Commons has seemed to be hopelessly bored and certainly there has been a marked decline in public interest in the debates. Even reports of debates, illustrated with cartoons, have failed to interest the public.

On the Liberal side there have been no signs of either leadership or enthusiasm. Sir William Harcourt has no opportunity for repeating his successful campaign against the Education Bill of two years ago. He caused temporary excitement by plunging into a "no popery" crusade over the Benefices Bill. and he was compelled to draw out immediately in deference to warning received from timorous members of his party. He has led his side with stately dignity and has made no mistakes, but there have been no chances for the display of his powers of aggressive leadership. He himself was censured for inefficient leadership, and was finally forced, from motives of self-respect, to withdraw from public life.

Sir William Harcourt has been the only leader of the opposition in sight, and while his bitterest enemies cannot justly condemn him for any error of judgment, his warmest admirer cannot justly condemn him for any error of judgment, his warmest admirer cannot claim for him any degree of success in harmonizing the conflicting sentiments of his party. While the Liberals have been increasing their poll in bye-elections, the functions of the opposition of a well-organized and carefully-disciplined body have well-nigh ceased. Neither Lord Rosebery nor Sir William Harcourt could form in an emergency a government which would command unbroken Liberal support if armed with executive power. Radicals would be certain to blacklist Lord Rosebery as a Whig and a peer who could not be depended upon to interest himself in measures like shorter Parliaments, the absolution of hereditary legislators, a salaried Commons, old-age pensions, state purchase of railways and other large measures of state socialism. Sir William Harcourt, on the other hand, would find few of his former Cabinet associates eager eo join a ministry headed by himself. John Morley would be loyal to him, but nearly all the other members of the front opposition benches would prefer Lord Rosebery.

There are so many signs of disaffection and demoralization on the Liberal side that it is not possible that any justly condemn him for any error of judgment, his warmest admirer cannot

There are so many signs of disaffection and demoralization on the Liberal side that it is not possible that any leader can unite the party. There are conferences at the Reform Club, with which the restoration of Lord Rosebery to the leadership is vaguely proposed, and there are alluring soliciations from the National Liberal Club smoking-rooms to Sir William Harcourt to proclaim himself a Radical and to lead a genuine Democratic government, but until the two rivals, who are not supposed to be on speaking terms, can be brought together and reintroduced a party diplomacy will be a tinkling cymbal. Until there is a leader armed with full authority for directing all the political actions of the opposition, the principal occupations of opposition, the principal occupations of the Liberals will be sand-plowing in groups and hard swearing at one an-other.

POLITICS.

Many idle and foolish things have een said and done by the supporters of James McCachian's Congressional andidacy in this campaign. One candidacy of the most conspicuous instances is the violent criticism fluring the past week of the plan adopted by the Re-publican County Central Committee for the nomination and election of dele-cates to the State convention.

'Iwo years ago the Republican State convention adopted the following

"Resolved, that it is the sense of this convention that all delegates to the county, district and State conventions of the Republican party should be county, district and State conventions of the Republican party should be elected at primaries or caucuses, regularly called by the County Central Committees of the several counties for that purpose; and that only such delegates as are so selected at such primaries, or caucuses, shall be seated in any of the conventions of the party hereafter to be held." The obvious and declared purpose of this resolution was to insure the election of delegates who would truly represent the will of the voters of the party, and not of cliques or bosses.

When the State Central Committee met on the 23d of last month to issue the call for the election of delegates to the State convention, its obvious duty was to follow the instructions thus given by the highest representative Republican body of the State. To disregard those instructions would have justly exposed the State Central Committee to the charge of disloyalty to the party. The committee therefore decided that the delegates to the State convention should be chosen by primary elections; and for the purpose of bringing the choice of delegates as close as possible to the people, the further provision was made that in counties having three or more Assembly districts, the elections must be by Assembly districts, the elections was received by the chairman of the County Central Committees.

As soon as the call was received by the chairman of the County Central Committee of this county, he appointed a special committee of five to carefully consider the fairest and best method of making the nominations and holding the primaries. This special committee submitted its report to the Executive Committee, which was called together on July 28. There were many of McLachlan's personal friends and active supporters in the Executive Committee. For two days the plan finally adopted was discussed and considered. It was unanimously agreed that no fairer method of electing the delegates, under the call of the State Central Committee, could be devised. McLachlan's friends had every opportunity to object to the plan or to offer amendments, but they acquiesced in it, apparently as heartily as any other members of the committee. The fullest publicity was given to the committee's decision through the colums of The Times. On Monday, August 1, the County Central Committee met to consider the report of the Executive Committee, recommending the plan of nominating and electing the delegates. McLachlan's friends were again present, participating in the proceedings, and McLachlan himself was in the lobby. When the report was presented, the sole objection to its adoption was presented by James Copeland, who is so flexible in his political attachments that it is a matter of conjecture whether he did or did not-speak in McLachlan's behalf. Copeland offered an amendment to the plan, and when he had concluded his remarks, a motion to lay his amendment on the table was carried with out one solitary dissenting vote. The County Central Committee was unmistakaly and unanimously of the opinion that the plan recommended by the Executive Committee was unmistakaly and unanimously of the opinion that the plan recommended by the Executive Committee was unmistakaly and unanimously of the opinion that the plan recommended by the Executive Committee was u takably and unanimously of the opinion that the plan recommended by the Executive Committee was the fairest to all candidates and would give the truest expression to the will of the Republican voters of Los Angeles county. Such a would prove a valuable guardian of the people's rights in the halls of Congress. The Republicans of the Sixth Congress District desire a repre-

Sixth Congress District desire a representative who at least has the sense that God gave geese.

An intersting phase of the recent onslaught by McLachlan's partisans is the oft-reiterated accusation that W. F. X. Parker originated and consummated the alleged scheme in the interest of Waters. This is the latest and cheapest device in local politics for discrediting any candidate for office. It is the same cry that was raised against Henry T. Gage by an evening paper of this city, which has the proud distinction of being the only opponent in this county of Gage's nomination for Governor. Walter Parker has, happly for the party, no influence in its councils, and no voice in shaping its policy.

Santa Barbara county will send an uninstructed delegation to the Congressional convention. McLachlan has made desperate efforts to capture the delegation, but has failed. It is well understood that the delegates, though uninstructed, will vote for Waters. McLachlan's only chance of a solid delegation is from San Luis Obispo, and even this is now in the doubtful column.

Charged With Wife Abuse.

W. D. Courtney of No. 2215 Enterprise street was arrested at 1:30 o'clock this morning on a charge of disturbing the peace of his family and those living near there. Mrs. Courtney is bedridden, and weak, having had a surgical operation performed only yesterday. Neighbors say Courtney came home last night intoxicated and made known his presence in the house by shamefully abusing and swearing at his helpless wife. The prisoner is said to have raised such a horrible disturbance as to arouse the entire neighborhood. When Police Officer Sparks arrived at the Courtney home he found Mrs. Courtney unconscious. When revived by neighbor-friends who had crowded into the house, she said she had fainted from excifement caused by her husband's behavior. Many persons living near, Mrs. Courtney promised the officer to appear against the prisoner when his case comes up for hearing tomorrow. Several of the neighbors said they were eye-witnesses to Courtney's brutality. HAMIL UN & DANEK Messesses of Our Imports and Exports.

[A. P. EARLY MORNING REPORT.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.- A special to the Tribune from Washington says:

"While the United States exportations of agricultural products during the year have been wonderful, surpassing in value those of any preceding passing in value those of any preceding passing in value those of any preceding year in the history of the country, and thus attracting universal attention, the exportation of manufactures is, when considered in detail, equally interesting in its bearing upon the general commerce and prosperity, both present and future of the nation.

The exportation of domestic manufactures, in the fiscal year 1898, is set down by the records of the Bureau of Statistics of the Treasury Department at $288,871,449, which is nearly $12,000,000 kreater than in any preceding year in the history of the country. This is especially interesting, in view of the fact that the imports of manufactures during the year were abnormally small. In addition to this, it is reasonable to suppose that the purchases of manufactures by the people of this country in the prosperous year just ended were unusually large by reason of the increased earnings, and the further fact that during several preceding years their purchases in these lines had, because of the financial depression, been light.

"For these two reasons, the small-cause of the financial depression, been light.

"For these two reasons, the smallness of importations of manufacturers and the probable increased consumption of manufactures by the people of this country, it is reasonable to suppose that the home demand upon the manufacturers was usually great, thus reducing to some extent the attention which they had formerly been able to give to an invasion of foreign markets. In addition to this it had been feared by some that the increased custom rates adopted a year ago, would result in a reduction of the purchases of American goods by citizens of other nations, but this expectation was not realized.

In view of the facts the large exportation of manufacturers in the year just ended, is to say the least, a very notable feature of the commerce of this remarkable year.

The total exportation of manufacturers for the year as already indicated, is $288,871,449, which is more than double that of a decade ago, almost three times as much as that of 1880, more than four time as much as in 1870, and seven times as much as in 1870, and seven times as much as in 1860. How much the Centennial Exposition had to do with the awakening of the taste throughout the world for American manufactures and products which were there exhibited, would be difficult to say but it is an interesting fact, in the least, that in that year, (1876,) the exportation of manufactures for the first time touched the $100,000 mark, and since that time has gone steadily forward until in 1898 it reached $288,870,449.

Of agricultural implements the exportations of the first time touched the $100,000 mark, and since that time has gone steadily forward until in 1898 it reached $288,870,449.

The exportation of copper and manufactures thereof has increased enormously in the last few years, being $22,160,872 in the fiscal year just ended, against $3,812,798 in 1888. Refined mineral oils, the exportation during the year amounted to $51,582,316 in value

The exportation of copper and manufactures was accordingly unanimously adopted.

Two or three days after the committee had adjourned and after the call for caucuses and primaries had been issued, the puerile cry was raised by McLachlan's friends that the plan adopted was a gerrymandering scheme, devised in the interest of R. J. Waters and intended to prevent a true expression of the will of the Republican voters of the county. No more silly charge could be made, and its authors are guilty of the grossest bad faith. The time and place for such an accusation was before the Executive Committee and the County Central Committee, when full discussion was invited and expected. Having participated in the proceedings of both toose committees and having voted for the adoption of the plan, it now ill becomes McLachlan's friends to bring 1f McLachlan takes refuge in the assertion that he was overreached and deceived as to the nature of the plan, it may well be asked whether a man of so little astuteness is a fit representative to send to Congress. This Week.

THIS week we are going to cut prices right down to the cost mark. Just now it's not a question of profit, but of unloading furniture. Only a few weeks more at the old store, then we move to larger and more commodious quarters. We find that we are obliged to move some of our fixtures very soon. We also find that we are obliged to move a lot of furniture out of the store before we can get at the fixtures. We've got to handle this furniture at a loss, and our loss is your gain if you take advantage of it right away. The four big specials mentioned above are only a fare sample of what is going on in this store. If none of these specials happen to meet with your requirements, why, come in and look around. You will find our large assortment of furniture, draperies, carpets, mattings and bedding interesting, especially at the prices we have marked them, for the few remaining days.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

OFFICE OF THE TIME.

Los Angeles, Aug. 5, 1898. THE WEEK'S CLEARANCES. The clearinghouses report for last week in the fifty great commercial centers em States of the report cardinates of vi. St. 619,574. This is an increase of nearly 4 per cent, over last year. The increase is not so great as has been the rule for months past, but that is owing to the fact that this time last year was an unusually busy one. Midsummer dullness is now at its height. or rather depth. Possibly the end of the war, which has been in plain sight all the week, may have something to all the week, may have something to do with the matter. Many people look for 'immediate developments on the close of the war, and some may be holding back from further operations until the nature and extent of them. Yet it must not be construed that business is unusually dull for August. On the countrary, clearances are more than $100,000,000 in excess of the record for last week, and are so far above the billion-dollar mark that they would be considered flattering at any season of the year.

The mercantile reports confirm this view, indicating great action for midsummer in almost all lines of business.

CANNED GOODS IN ENGLAND. he fact that Great Critain does not reduce one-half the food required for

THE LABEL THAT THEY KNOW State, in order to deceive those who eat and drink by the label that what is put before them is a foreign product. The following story on cheese from the New York Ledger, shows that wine-

"I am free to say that I do not like American cheese," said a diner at a fashionable hotel, the other evening. "In the first place it lacks flavor and in ond place it lacks flavor and it the second place, it doesn't agree with me."

"M-m! So?" said his friend. "Here waiter, bring me some 'Camembert' of the special brand that I always call for. You know what it is."

"Yes, sah," said the waiter, and a moment later the two were discussing the merits of this famous cheese.

"Now that is something like," said the critic. "Delicious flavor isn't it? Acquired taste, of course, but you know it is this sort of thing that adds zest to life."

When they had finished, the host of the occasion said quietly: "Now, my dear fellow, I don't want to shock any of your notions about American products, but the 'Camembert' that you have just approved was made a few miles up the road in this very state."
"You don't say so, and it bears a foreign label and is sold as a foreign product?"

"You don't say so, and it bears a foreign label and is sold as a foreign product?"

"Oh, yes; and the reason for all this is the criticism of just such people as you are—those who seem to fancy that we Americans are very much behind the times in the making of delicacles and dainties. Perhaps you would be surprised if you knew that the 'Stilton,' 'Gorganzola,' 'Brie,' 'Parmesan,' 'Cheshire,' 'Roquefort' and the fragrant 'Limburger' are made right here in our own neighborhood, and sent over to their countries by the ton. But this is a fact and one with which dealers are perfectly 'familiar, although the majority of the public don't know it. It is possible within the boundaries of New York State to make almost any cheese produced in the known world. All of this cheese cannot be made in one place because the conditions obtain here as in the old countries. There must be special pasture, water and other influences to produce precise results. But experiments have demonstrated that this pasture and water are obtainable, and as a matter of course we can make the cheese just as we want it."

There are two or three points about 'Roqueforti' cheese that are worth considering. This cheese sells at the caves where it is ripened at about 70 cents per pound, and it costs about a dollar and a half per pound to put it is gratifying to know that they have succeeded so well that epicures cannot distinguish between the foreign and domestic; indeed, some of the cheese that goes across the water comes back transmogrified, as it were into a foreign article.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The Evening Post's London financial cablegram says: "The stock market was quiet and dull teday. Trading here is both on New York account, and on the part of English buyers the general disposition at the moment and as prompted by the press being to operate for a moderate rise in Americans. Buyers here are generally advised to take thort profits. Grank Trunks were good also. The rise in securities continues. It is mainly due to purchases of the buyers."

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Wheat started very strong. September opening at from 67%@66, against 67%@67%c last night's close. Incre was no appearance of any increase in the movement of wheat, and Liverpool sent higher quotations. Showery weather in the Northwest gave the bulls a further opportunity, as the trade under present conditions was nervous about the possibilities of a wet harvest in that section. The demand for the limited offerings in the sample market was most active, and at from 20% cents over the previous day's prices. Orders for round lots for shipment were on the market at a slight premium over the carload price. Chicago received 41 cars against 125 a year ago, and Minneapolis and Duluth 58 against 158 last year. Atlantic port clearances of wheat and flour for the last twenty-four hours amounted to 320,000 bushels. September left off %c higher and December 160% %c higher. Corn received assistance from the strength in wheat, and also from the Kansas report for the month showing a drop in conditions of twenty-four points compared with that of a month ago. The weather was acting kindly to the crop, and it was clear that such of it as had not been ruined past redemption must be rapidly improving. After the first half hour the price sradually worked off, closing 16c lower. Outs were firm early, but remained so as long as corn showed strength. There were only a few buying orders from the country and all were filled early. September lost 18c. A light run of hogs and the strength in grain started provisions firm. Mrs. King says she had lately been Mrs. King says she had lately been missing things from her pantry. She suspected that Wise was carrying the missing articles away. She and her husband decided to set a trap for him to convince themselves if they were right in this conjecture. Wise came to work yesterday as usual, fortified with a lunch basket. Shortly before noon he prepared to quit work for an hour or so, as was customary with him. Between 12 and 1 o'clock every day, also, Mrs. King is away from her home, as she is then acting as cashier in her husband's restaurant on North Main street.

About noon she went into the yard About noon she went into the yard and told Wise she was going down town, and that she would lock the house. Wise took a stroll down the street, and, it seems, when he thought it about time for Mrs. King to have gone he returned. Mrs. King, however, was concealed in a small room opening into the kitchen, lying in wait for Wise. On tip-toe he climbed the steps of the porch and then stealthily opened the kitchen window. Noiselessly he made his way through the kitchen, but as he got beyond the threshold of the door, Mrs. King stepped out from her hiding place and leveled her revolver at him. It was but a ladies' 88-calibre Smith & Wesson, but it answered the purpose as well as a Hotch-kiss gun. For a moment Wise was in composure, and said, "Oh, Mrs. King, I just stepped in to get some whisky from the diping-room." Mrs. King.

consternation, and then he regained his composure, and said, "Oh, Mrs. King. I just stepped in to get some whisky from the dining-room." Mrs. King said something about Wise being paid to paint the house, and not the town, at any rate not at her expense.

She backed Wise into the room where the telephone is, and notified her husband of her capture. He told her he would send for the patrol wagon, and that she should hold Wise at bay until it arrived. She did as instructed, walking Wise back to the kitchen at the point of her revolver. 'Upon Wise's promise that he would not attempt to escape, she put away her useful weagon. When the police got there Wise was in a corner of the kitchen, the personification of dejection, and Mrs. King close by him.

At the Police Station Wise said he smelled whisky in the dining-room and went into the house to get some. He asserted that this alone was his object in entering the view.

WARM CONTEST FOR DELEGATION

Throop Institute-Electric Railway Combatants Waiting for the Court's Decision-Colored Con-vention Bids the Town Good-bye

PASADENA, Aug. 6.-[Regular Con respondence.] If everybody who has been "mentioned" for effice in this good Republican city, should happen to be nominated this fall, the magic and mellifluous word "Pasadena" would be written after the names of most of the Republican nominees, from Unite States Senator down, and the rest Los Angeles county would be largely relieved from responsibility. It is as-tonishing, the amount of choice stand-ing timber that the fire in the mountains did not touch and that now awaits the lightning's stroke. We have lots of it and are ready to sacrifice any amount of it for the good of the cause. Among those who have been suggested by their friends as Pasadena possibil-ities are: Hon, Waldo M. York for United States Senator; Hon. James Mc-Lachlan for Congress; Hon. C. M. Simpson for State Senator; W. S. Melick for Assemblyman or Lleutenant-Governor; George T. Downing for Sheriff; John S. Cox for County Tax Collector; Charles W. Bell for County Clerk; and the Rev. L. P. Crawford, who has said that he would take the nomination for Supervisor if it should be thrust upon him. If anybody has been omitted from this list, who should be included in it, let him now speak or hereafter hold his peace.

Pasadena does not expect to get ev-United States Senator; Hon. James Mc

Pasadena does not expect to get ev-erything; indeed, she does not expect to get her deserts—she has too many deserving claimants for that; and jushow much she will get, nobody under takes to say; but the problem that agi tates her politicions amidst their em takes to say; but the problem that agitates her politicions amidst their embarrassment of willingness, is how not to get left. Of the names given above, all but Judge York and Mr. Crawford are active candidates. It is expected that Senator Simpson and Representative Melick will be renominated, although each is encountering opposition. Pasadena Republicans are well aware that they cannot hope to name the County Clerk, Tax Collector and Sheriff, and their fear is lest in trying to occupy three stools they will roost on the mourners' bench. An effort has been made to induce one or two gentlemen to retire, in order that the Pasadena delegation might go into the county convention consolidated on something that it might hope to get; but this undertaking has thus far been unsuccessful, as no one of the candidates has a retiring disposition and consolidation is as far off as ever. This being the state of affairs, the most astute old-timers in town are puzzled to predict who will be a winner and who won't.

It is an open secret that the support to predict who will be a winner and who won't.

It is an open secret that the support of the Republican organization, the "slate-makers," as they are called, was pledged to Mr. Downing and Mr. Cox before Mr. Bell entered the field and that they would rather see these gentlemen or either of them come out ahead, than Mr. Bell. This attitude is due not to any unfriendliness to Mr. Bell, but to the fact that he announced his candidacy after the slate had been made up by the managers, and they looked upon him as a quasi-interloper, from the standpoint of practical politics. Mr. Bell has been waging an independent campaign from the start, looking for and receiving little support dependent campaign from the star looking for and receiving little suppor from the "machine." He has made from the "machine." He has made a careful canvass of the county and said this morning that he was sanguine of enough votes to nominate him, even if he did not get the bulk of the Pasadena delegation. Mr. Downing also has been busy in the other towns of the county and has obtained many pledges. He is perhaps the most confident man of the lot, and is picked as the winner by many of the old warhorses. Mr. Cox is not saying much, but has a strong home support and is aided by some of the best workers in the county.

Under ordinary circumstances, the aided by some of the best workers in the county.

Under ordinary circumstances, the lists of delegates nominated by the Republican caucus in Pasadena would be ratified by the party at the primaries; but this year it is indicated that the fight will not end in the precinct caucuses, but will be carried into the primaries. It will, according to present appearances, be a case of "each man for himself and the devil take the hindmost."

The contest is warming up every day

A, rd, le-

Inidmost."

The contest is warming up every day, and is most talked about in places where men do congregate, sharing interest with the water question, and for the time being overshadowing the Terminal franchise complications.

Rev. L. P. Crawford, who has attended all the county conventions as a delegate for many years, says that if he is sent this year, he wishes to get on the Committee on Resolutions, and insert a plank in the platform, instructing the county delegation in the Legislature to have the salaries of county officials reduced and the fee system swept away altogether; or if not honored with a place on the committee, he would like to submit such a resolution from the floor. He is equipped with a lot of ammunition, and is anxious to open fire. He declares that the receipts of some of the county officials are excessive and the cost of running the county machinery should be materially reduced.

THE TERMINAL'S FIGHT.

THE TERMINAL'S FIGHT. The Times correspondent interviewed a large number of citizens on the latest developments in the fight against the developments in the fight against the Terminal franchise today. The position they take at present is, "Wait for the court to speak." The general voice is that a series of legal and constitutional questions have been submitted to the court, and while they are pending it is useless for laymen to go into the merits of the case.

Although many people harbor the suspicion that the Southern Pacific corporation is behind Mr. Frost in his injunction proceedings, Judge Rossiter, Mr. Frost's local representative vigorously denies this allegation. He says Mr. Frost brought the action on his own responsibility, simply because he smarted over the prospectof the Terminal's tracks invading levelid avenue, and he went to Bicknell & Trask, the Southern Pacific attorneys, because of their acquaintance with the law relating to such case—and their connection with the proceedings has no other significance. "It is purely a legal fight, should be a proposed to the proposed fight, and shell-hunting trip. Fare $1.25, including railroad fare. For further information telephone Pacific Tother in

EWS FROM SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA TOWNS.

Judge Rossiter.

Among those intervlewed today was Mayor Patton, who said he and the other City Trustees had been served with the temporary injunction papers and were now waiting for the decision of the court. As to what the course of the Trustees would be, should the injunction proceedings fall through and the Terminal's bid come up for acceptance, he was not prepared to say. "We can't tell till the time comes," said Mr. Patton, who was one of the two Trustees that voted against the Terminal." There are two ways of looking at it. One is that although Mr. Hoag is absent and the Council stands two and two in its ideas, we ought to consider the question settled by the previous vote, and ought not to take advantage of Mr. Hoag's absence to defeat the franchise. Another way of looking at it is that we ought to stand by our convictions and vote against the Terminal through thick and thin. We can't cross the bridge till we come to it. The court may cross it for us. Then, again, the Terminal's bid for the franchise may not be satisfactory to the Trustees. How can we say what we shall do?"

One very urgent advocate of the Terminal's competition said tonight the Trustees. How can we say what we shall do?"

One very urgent advocate of the Terminal's competition said tonight that the friends of the franchise would see to it that Trustee Hoag returns to the city in time to cast his vote for it, if it is found necessary; and it would seem to be easy for Mr. Gibbon to provide for the two-and-two contingency, as Mr. Hoag is satisfied that a large majority of his constituents want the Terminal to have its trolley, and is pledged to its support. But there is not much to be done or said till the court has pronounced upon Bicknell & Trask's legal conundrums.

respondence.] The Chamber of Commerce is keeping unceasingly at work in the Nicaragua Canal agitation. Letters, telegrams and newspaper articles are being employed by the hundreds in reaching all parts of the United States. Every public commercial body in the country has been asked by San Diego to take up the work, and data have been sent to every daily newspaper in every city of 5000 inhabitants or over. Besides this, personal letters have gone out by the bushel-basketful. Encouragement has been received Encouragement has been received from many unexpected places. Texas has given good assurances of help. The papers have indorsed the movement. Public men everywhere have given favorable replies to calls for assistance. With the exception of New Orelans and one or two other cities, no positive antagonism to the canal is apparent, though the overland railroad influence is expected to make itself felt.

Yesterday the Chamber of Commerce appointed a committee to interview Senators and Representatives and to confer with commercial bodies in other cities as to the best course to pursue.

D. C. Reed, George H. Ballon, H. P. Wood and W. L. Frevert, Chambers of Commerce everywhere will be asked to invite like committees, in order to make he work compact and rapid.

A committee was also appointed to devise plans for keeping up this county's exhibit in the Los Angeles Chamber of Comments.

LEMONS FOR SANTIAGO.

The Red Cross plan of sending a carad of lemons to the fever-stricker boys in blue at Santiago is meeting boys in blue at Santiago is meeting with great encouragement. Growers from all parts of the county are contributing lemons, oranges, grape fruit, raisins, and dried fruits. The local rail-roads and stage lines carry the boxes free to the place of shipment. The car will leave San Diego August 12, and will carry a lot of comfort to the boys. In the shipment will be a lot of California cream of lemon, which is of value in the semi-tropics for heat and fever rashes. MIDSUMMER EXCURSION.

CORONADO BEACH,

Big Run of Pompano-Many Excursionists at the Hotel.

HOTEL DEL CORONADO, Aug. 6.-[Regular Correspondence.] The many visitors at Coronado were vastly en tertained yesterday by the big run of pompano at the pier. Lovers of the gentle art of angling who number about gentle art of angling who number about ninety-nine out of 100 people, looked on with interest while the wielders of rod and reel hauled in the little fat pompano. The most expert of all the fishermen was Chris Rickert of San Diego. The fish deserted other bait to try his. Inside of a couple of hours he had hauled in 127 pompano, breaking the pier record. He presented a couple of dozen to E. S. Babcock, in appreciation of the fine sport provided by Mr. Babcock in building the great pleasure pier. Other good catches of pompano were made, but most of the other anglers caught kingfish, flounders, croakers, perch and bass. Altogether, probably 350 fish were caught at the pier during the day.

Ocean fishing is so productive of results that the quantity of fish is embarrassing rather than otherwise. Food for everybody is provided on a magnificent scale. Many poor people get their meat from the big ocean without any labor whatever, the fishermen handing out fat barracuda or yellowtail with liberal hands. Visitors going out and catching several hundred pounds of fine food fish are always ready to give it to the needy, if the needy make their wants known.

SUNDAY YACHT RACE.

Capt. Jim Dunne and "Chapple" Betts Capt. Jim Dunne and "Chapple" Betts are locking horns over the respective sailing qualities of their yachts, the Cora and Spray. A race to settle the question has been arranged, to come off at 10 o'clock tomorrow (Sunday) morning. The course will be from the boathouse landing to Glorieta Bay down San Diego Bay, out into the ocean and around to the hotel pier, a distance of seventeen miles. It is estimated that the race will consume four hours. A purse of $20 is up. Side bets are being arranged in good-sized sums.

The Sunday afternoon concert in the hotel theater is always patronized by San Diego and Coronado people. With the two thousand or more visitors in the bay region, it is probable that the hotel will be the objective point for a POMONA, Aug. 6.—[Regular Correspondence.] According to call the Democrats of the town—forty-two of hem all told-gathered at McComa Hall last evening, and the Pomons Democratic Club organized. W. T. Martin was elected temporary chairman, and Frank Balfour secretary.

Frankiln Cogswell offered a long resolution calling attention to the $100,000 which the State Legislature disburses to its attachés every session, calling for retrenchment and pledging the Demo retrenchment and pledging the Democratio nominees from this district "toa vigorous effort to carry out the above belief." Barlow's Southern Pacific postage frank was not referred to while the resolution was being read.
Phil Stein thought perhaps that resolution should be well considered, for "some of our boys might possibly get in, when that resolution would be embarrassing." But that a Democrat should be embarrassed by a resolution was not to be thought of, and it passed.
A lot of desultory talk followed. Some one arose and asked "what did we one arose and asked "what did we come here for, any how?" After a few minutes silent meditation it was de-

Then came the principal contest of the evening: "Should the tickets for the primaries be printed at the expense of the club?" A long discussion folthe primaries be printed at the expense of the club?" A long discussion followed, Mr. Hicklin maintaining that they might cost as much as six bits, and that the delegates should pay it. On vote the chair declared the motion to have them printed at expense of the club was lost. A division of the house was called for. Meantime the question was again debated to such good effect that when the rising vote was taken the decision of the chair was reversed. A collection was taken and the club adjourned to meet August 19 at McComas Hall.

The date for holding the Democratic County Convention was set for Monday, September 5, two days after the Republican County Convention. The primaries for the election of delegates to the convention will be held on Saturday, September 3. The Populists will hold their county convention on the same day, and their primaries will be held on Saturday, August 27.

The delegates to the Democratic convention will be on a basis of one delegate for each twenty votes cast for Bryan at the last election and one for each majority fraction.

The Silver Republican leaders, consisting of George S. Barnes, candidate for County Treasurer, and R. Touchton, candidate for Supervisor, were in conference with the leaders of the other two parties and agreed to all combinations which were made. The result of the action of these numerous committees is that fusion has been accomplished by the Democrate swallowing all others. The ticket will practically be as heretofore stated by The Times.

WHITTIER ESCAPE ARRESTED. A young hobo who gave his name as Frank Moore was arrested at Capis-trano yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Pryor and sentenced to twelve days in Pryor and sentenced to twelve days in the County Jail by Justice Bacon on a charge of vagrancy. The prisoner was brought to town this morning and turned over to Jailer Ulm, who at once recognized him as George Vine, an escaped Whittier immate who was sent to that place from Fomona on a grand larceny conviction. The authorities at Whittier were telephoned and Vine will be returned as soon as his sentence here is concluded.

The prisoner escaped from Whittier December 19, 1897, and, althoung he says he has been in several jails in the State since that time, Jailer Ulm was the first to recognize him from photographs sent out at the time. Since his escape he is believed to have traveled through many eastern and Southern states.

THE SPIRIT OF SEVENTY-SIX.

IT LIVED AGAIN IN THE REVOLT OF FIVE YEARS AGO.

Sidelights on the Downfall of Queen Liliuokalani-"Opera Bouffe Mon-archy" Doomed by Free Institutions.

Eight years ago the world smiled olerantly upon Hawaii Nei as an 'opera bouffe kingdom;" its crowned head was flippantly referred to as the "King of the Cannibal Islands;" its "beautiful little army" (to use a Kiplingesque expression) of less than one hundred men was a subject of with hundred men was a subject of mirthful derision, and the only "big thing" in the islands was the volcano Killauea, unless, indeed, it was the hula hula. Three years later, by which time the ruling power had experienced a change of sex, political revulsion lifted the island domain from an "opera bouffe kingdom" to the dignity of a "monarchy;" the "King (then Queen) of the Cannibal Islands" had become the "sovereign of a people robbed of their rights," and the "little army" had grown (in imagination) to a force that would have "crushed (?)" the revolutionists of 1893 had it not been for the all-powerful menace of U.S.S. Boston' guns! The "big thing" in the small country was "Paramount" Blount. Unfortunately for this new assumpguns: The "big thing" in the small country was "Paramount" Blount.

Unfortunately for this new assumption of dignity, by and on behalf of Hewaii, there were those who, seemingly with the eye of prescience, had forever stamped these claims as counterfeit. We need not look to America's greatest statesman of recent years, James G. Blaine, for our authority, even though he did say in a letter to Minister Comly under date of December 1, 1881, speaking of a communication intended for the Hawaiian Secretary of State: "I touched but lightly on the essential question of the gradual and seemingly inevitable decadence of the native race and its replacement by another, to which the powers of government would naturally descend.

The soundness of the choice (i.e., between material annexation and commercial assimilation of the islands.) however, entirely depends on the perpetuity of the rule of the native race as an independent government, and that imperiled, the whole framework in our relations to Hawaii is changed, if not destroyed."

Neither need we quote from the long line of his predecessors, statesmen and diplomats, who had given the subject of their relations with the islanders careful thought, reaching the same conclusion as did he, though not so tersely put, that an avowedly American solution must be found for the problem that might arise in certain contingencies. The Declaration of Independence alone shall be our authority, in its ringing affirmation that all men are created free and equal and are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights. "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," and that "whenever any form of government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness."

There is the American title to Hawaiian territory, and it need not be powers in such form as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness."

There is the American title to Hawaiian territory, and it need not be urged as an objection that a majority of the people of the islands did not participate in the outbreak which resulted in the overthrow of the 'monarchy." The Declaration of Independence, which Americans still hold good enough to swear by, nowhere specifies the number of persons necessary to constitute a legitimate revolutionary power, (if such a solecism may be permitted,) and the history of the world teaches us that the revolutionary principle in its first applications has almost invariably rested on the side of the minority.

The spirit of 1776 inspired those men of the minority.

The spirit of 1776 inspired those men The spirit of 1776 inspired those menwho dared resist the will of the semibarbarous and tyrannical ruler of Hawaii, and those who study the history of that time will be surprised to note how much of similarity there was between the injuries of the Hawaiian-Americans and the "long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object." which evinced a design to reduce "under abseolute despotism" the American subjects of George, the Third. History repeats itself; and the stupidity of one solute despotism. The American subjects of George, the Third. History repeats itself; and the stupidity of one insular "sovereign" was matched by that of another.

The chiefs of Hawaii had been of a more or less annexing turn of mind from the time of Kamehameha himself who voluntarily placed the islands under the protection of Great Britain in 1794, down to Kalekaua who was picked out of his low associations and dishonest debts and placed on the throne by white influence, because he chanced to have a weak solution of the old socialed royal blood in his veins, and was not under the thumb of British traders. Kalakaua's only ghost of a title to ancestry above that of the common herd dwelt in the allegation that one of his mother's progenitors had been attached somehow to the train of the great Kamehameha. Kalakaua's father is reputed to have been a negro cobbler named Blossom, and his alleged grandfather had the proud distinction of having been the first man hanged in the islands, this because had chosen to cut short the natural term of years of his wife. It is true that Lilluokalani, the sister of Kalakaua, and his appointed successor, in her recently-published book. "Hawaii's Story by Hawaii's Queen," professes to believe the great grandfather of Kalakaua, and his appointed successor, in her recently-published book. "Hawaii's story by Hawaii's Queen," professes to believe the great grandfather of Kalakaua was the own cousin of Kamehameha I (who relerned, by the way, from 1791 to 1819.) but then, Her ex. Majesty's memory is defective, as may be seen in the same book where she confounds in one paragraph Admiral Brown with Admiral Skerrett, and the name of the writer of this article with that of Lieut. Swinburne, U.S.N.

The fact is, and the writer speaks on good authority, the native Hawaiians, or rather the best of them, never regarded Kalakaua or his sister, Lilluokalani, as of the sili, or native nobil-tity, and their allegiance was given to the "sovereign." not to the individual. The writer was told by some of who is worthy of a better distinction, who is worthy of a better distinction, which is worthy of a better distinction, which is worthy of a better distinction, which is marked of the kingdom, he threatened to lock the Queen in her private apartments if she did not give over her purpose.

It was only when she found that she could not meet the uprising of indignant white residents, not all of whom were Americans, with the united numbers of the Hawaiians, that Liliuokalani gave notice that she would submit, and the previous landing of the Boston's marines was made the pretext of a faithful few to let her down lightly in the eyes of her native subjects. Marshal Wilson, by the testimony of some of the Boston's officers, would undoubtedly have made a stand against the forces with his little band of police, had he not been ordered in writing by the Queen and her ministry to desist and this, royal order the writer has himself seen.

The Queenshad no reason to suppose, as she claims she did, that the Boston's guns would be turned unon her people in the event of their rallying to her defense and attempting to arrest the revolutionists. As a matter of fact, the sole shot of the revolution was fired by Ordnance Officer John Good into a crowd composed of native police and natives who were trying to seize a wagon containing the little stock of ammunition, on which the provisional government depended for offense or defense, and these valorous subjects of Her Majesty, eye-witnesses say, fied in fear and trembling. The

It is probable that had the life of the Queen been menaced, the natives would then have arisen in a sudden impulse to be loyal to the death, and while regi-cide formed no part of the plan of the whites, this could not be known to the Hawaiians. Therefore, there was a sufficient element of danger in the a sufficient element of danger in the course pursued by the Hawaiian-Americans in overthrowing the Queen's rule to entitle them to consideration as brave men facing probable death in defense of the rights guaranteed them by the Declaration of Independence of their ancestors, and by the law of the land, the Constitution of Hawaii, wrung from Kalakaua at a time when he, too, proposed to revert to barbarism and play the despot. To sum up, the situation was this: time when he, too, proposed to revert to barbarism and play the despot.

To sum up, the situation was this: The whites remained true to the best American traditions and acted when their liberties were in danger, while the Hawaiian natives either remained indifferent, or else quiescent because they believed their monarch was not wholly in the right and did not intend to rise in her behalf unless they saw her life or their own lives actually in peril. Therefore, the trend of events having affirmed the right of the provisional government to rule, and of its successor, the republic of Hawaii, to resign its rowers voluntarily to the greater republic of the United States, the writer asserts that by the herole events of 1892 Hawaii has come to be one of the brightest of Uncle Sam's jewels.

ANOTHER VIEW.

But there are other reasons for this while in Honolulu in 1893, that Liliuo-kalani's overthrow was precipitated by her own foolish obstinacy; that had the Dowager Queen Kapiolani or the heriess apparent, Princess Kaiulani, been the ruling monarch no such trouble would have arisen, and that if the United States government would restore Liliuokalani to the throne, they (the Royalists) would "take her down" themselves in six months. What they objected to most of all in the overthrow of the government was the part which United States Minister Stevens, whose blunt Yankee ways and contempt for native profligacy greatly provoked them, had borne in the transaction.

The cause of Liliuokalani's downfall was, as is well known, her attempt to force a constitution of her own making upon the country, with the object of depriving the whites of their civil rights, and eventually, it was believed, of their lives. Not only did she propose to disfranchise white voters, but she had planned to abolish elections for the upper house of the Hawaiian pointments secure control of the Surement and wealth, as displayed in the numerous churches, splendid schools, comfortable and even elegant

The brakeman who was killed near Murietta, Temecula Cañon, on Thursday, was L. C. Dale. He was a man of about 25 years old and unmarried. The American roads have to make their rates and file a copy of them with the commission. What these rates are becomes public property at once. All the foreign road has to do is to learn the rates, and then "shade" them to rake in all the business. The American roads are taxed to support the Federal and State governments, and are now paying their quota of the war tax. The Canadian road escapes all these burdens. It files no schedules with our commission and works in the dark. The questin is, what authority has the commission to deal with the subject? But those who represent the American roads feel sure that the publicity given to the points in controversy will bring the whole matter up before Congress, if it is found that the commission is not competent to deal with it.

The Board of Equalization finished its work yesterday morning and ad-journed sine die, after fifteen days spent in hearing the reading of the ssessment rolls and considering application by property-owners for reduc-tions of the amounts assessed against their property. The last day's session was the most quiet that the board had held, there being no argument on any of the matters which were brought to its attention. Better Street Drainage.

The work of placing culverts over the gutters at the west side of Spring street at the intersections of Fourth street at the intersections of Fourth and Fifth streets has about been completed, and the condition of these intersections has been greatly improved thereby. The work was done by the Los Angeles Railway Company under the supervision of the Street Superintendent, and was without cost to the city. The culverts are of sufficient size to carry away all the water that may flow along Spring street. A number of other similar culverts are soon to be placed at various points on the company's lines.

Ulti-mately she did succeed in getting him to her room on Main street, and there he succumbed to her blandishments, it is said, so far as to sign the contract and then marry her out of hand. Re-pentance came with the morning sun and young Beard was busily engaged In interviewing lawyers with regard to not capable of signing such a document, and furthermore such a contract for maintenance, it is claimed, could not stand in law for a variety of reasons. Marriage being a civil contract involves the maintenance and support of the wife, and any lacking in this regard may be remedied by a suit for maintenance begun by the wife.

What possessed young Beard when he consented to marry the Vosburg girl, even he himself does not know. He knew, for he had been so informed, that he was under no obligation to marry her. The section of the Penal Code under which the youth was arrested says that anyone who debauches "an unmarried female of previously chaste character" is punishable in such and such manner. The volunteer testimony that reached the District Attorney's office clearly indicated that Ada Vosburg could scarcely fall under the above classification. Apart from this, however, young Beard was released from all legal responsibility when he had offered marriage, and the girl refused. That was on Thursday when she snapped her finger at him, and told him that she did not care for his name.

AN ATTORNEY'S FEE.

Dunnigan & Dunnigan Sued the Wrong Man and Got Left.

A rather round-about kind of claim was passed upon yesterday by Justice Young in the suit begun by the law firm of Dunnigan & Dunnigan against Charles A. Schroeder, the proprietor of the Hollenbeck bar, to recover $75 for professional services.

It appeared from the testimony that Schroeder held a note made by Theo-bald Bauer, the old-time king of "Litbald Bauer, the old-time king of "Littit Paree," and he put it into the hands of Attorney Bentley. The latter put it in judgment, but could not collect he amount of the judgment. When Mrs. Bauer died a short time ago it was thought that the judgment might he satisfied from out of the community property, and Attorney Bentley retained the services of Dunnisan & Dunnigan in order to make the contest. It was made successfully, and the amount of the note was collected. Schroeder then paid $100 to Attorney Bentley as per agreement, and the latter handed over to the Dunnigans $40 of the amount. But this firm of lawyers thought they were entitled to a yers thought they were entitled to a larger fee, and instead of serving their brother of the long robe, Bentley, tried to recover $75 from Schroeder, Judgto recover $75 from Schroeder. IGNORED THE WRIT.

Julius Hauser Sued for a Larg Amount on a Cattle Deal;

A suit has been begun by Allen Mc-Intyre against Julius Hauser to recover $3076.96, with interest, from October 14, 1896, less $500 that has ben paid on ac-

In October, 1896, the plaintiff obtained a judgment for the amount claimed against James and Joseph Brown, in against James and Joseph Brown, in the Superior Court of San Bernardino county. The defendants in that suit shipped cattle into Los Angeles county to Julius Hauser, for which the latter agreed to pay $237.33, and a second consignment for which Hauser agreed to pay $1567.

On July 29, an execution was issued to Sheriff Burr in order to levy upon the money in Hauser's hands and before it was paid over to the Browns. Both of these amounts were due at the time the execution was served, but Julius Hauser, it is alleged, refused to make delivery of the money, and disregarding the writ, paid the amount due to James Brown.

ELEMENTS OF DANGER. For some little time past the dead and decaying trees scattered about in va-rious parts of the city have been removed by men working at the behest of the Horticultural Commission. Much old orchard property is now in the residential portions of the city, and the trees have been neglected and now are in many cases only a menace to the mmunity in a variety of ways. Propor have this old timber cut away, but one of the larger holders have rerained from conceding this. During he past week Easton & Eldridge tranted the request made that the old imber in the Menlo Park tract be leaned, and a beginning will be made cleaned, and a beginning will be made n cutting the trees scattered through the tract. In all it is estimated that there are about 5000 trees that will need to be cleared away.

SAN PEDRO.

Increase in Voters Shows Greater

SAN PEDRO, Aug. 6.-[Regular Correspondence.] The increase in registration of voters indicates a material growth of population. In 1896 there were 391 voters registered, as residing in this city. On April 11 of this year there were 647 voters registered, and there were 64' voters registered, and there have been twenty-five or thirty enrolled since. The usual estimate that the total population is five times as great as the voting population is deemed excessive here, as many of the residents are single men. That the deemed excessive here, as many of the residents are single men. That the total population, however, is three times as great is considered a fair estimate, which would make the population of San Pedro exceed 2000.

Every Year Has 129 Holidays-Two Hours for Luncheon.

[Louisville Courier-Journal:] Outside of the Spanish colony in Manila, there is little care for the fashions as they change from season to season in Europe and America. The same material and out does in summer and in winter, or, more accurately, in the wet season and in the dry. There is never any frost and never occasion for furnaces or open fires. Except for cooking, there is plenty of heat in the atmosphere the year around.

Men wear white duck suits, with thin fiannel or silk underwear, no linen shirt or collar, white pith helmets, and white canvas shoes the year round. The Spaniards and the Spanish half-castes go in for style a little more. The Spaniards are haughty and fond of displaying their uniforms of blue and white and their gold trimmings. The half-and the churches the music from "Trovations, play through the season. The tanget permits and open-air concents are given give evening in fair weather. display, but their attire is something of a compromise between European Chinese modes.

Besides, the one year out of seven that all foreign employés of the great mercantile houses represented at Manila have given to them as "home leave," there is a month's vacation each year, a regular holiday each month, and all the saints' days, and Spanish, French, English, German and American holidays. Not to observe a saints' day in Manila is sinful and every one holds such sinfulness in especial detestation. Figuring in all the saints' days, Sundays, and general holidays, there are 129 days in each year when these people do not work.

Clerks earn from $2500 to $5000 a year, besides having lodgings found, a mess allowance, medical attendance, and traveling expenses. In many cases their rooms are over the offices. They work from daylight to noon, rest for two or three hous, and then work till 5 o'clock, but they have much freedom in choosing their hours and are hurried only on mail days.

There are many excellent bands in Manila, and open-air concerts are given every evening in fair weather. Theatrical companies, both native and foreign, play through the season. The Mestiza chorus girl is alluring. In the cathedral and the churches the music is always good, though it is startling to the newcomer to hear, as he will in some services, a Gloria from "Trovatore," the Credo with music from "Barblere," and the Elevation from "Traviata."

IN THE DOMAIN OF SCIENCE, INDUSTRY AND ELECTRICITY.

From Our Own Correspondent.

New Zealand Rabbit in a New Guise NEW phase has been given to the rabbit scourge in New A Zealand by the success which has attended the experiment of freezing the rabbits and export-ing them. It would appear that out of what has hitherto been an apparently irremediable caree an important industry maye be developed. One exporter is said to be in the receipt of between 15,000 and 20,000 rabbits per day, and is paying to trappers and in wages between $4000 and $5000 per week. He has 24,000 traps out, giving employment to about 500 trappers. His export of rabbits last year was about 700,000, and this year he will increase it to 1,500,000. The scale on which this enterprising exporter is laying out his plans is further seen in the fact that he works up into boxes in which the frozen rabbits are shipped about eight truck-loads of timber a week, and he pays over $2000 a month for freight. It is estimated that this season's exportation of rabbits will run up to between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000. This, at the low price of 6 cents per rabbit, will bring in more than $300,000 to the trappers, and the total amount received in the colony as the proceeds of the rabbit export industry for this season will be, at a moderate calculation, $700,000. plans is further seen in the fact that

The Medical View of Scorching.

HE fact that many speedy bicycle riders have been rejected by medical men in charge of the examina-tion of recruits for the army serves to give a most convincing emphasis to the warnings of the medical profession give a most convincing emphasis to the warnings of the medical profession which have of late been so frequently heard in regard to the dangers attending the scorching habit. Persistent scorching or fast riding has a tendency to enlarge the heart, and thus interfere with its proper action. Wheeling is so exhilarating, the machine runs so easily, and the spirit of emulation is so strong that many riders unintentionally acquire something of the scorching habit. If this is kept wuithin moderate bounds, and moreover, within the strength of the rider, comparatively little harm may be done; but when it is allowed to degenerate into a desire to pass every other rider on the road, or to make the fastest time between all points, the chance of injury becomes serious. The habitual scorcher taxes shimself to the utmost without having prepared his body for the task by work, ing up to it by degrees, or by any sort of training. Strains are imposed upon organs and muscles not fitted by a process of gradual development to properly bear them, and injurious effects follow. An army doctor suggests that some physician should take up this subject, make an exhaustive study of it, and publish his researches for the good of the blcycling public. The examination should broad in scope, not made to prove a theory, but to discover facts, and all classes of riders, from the novice to the trained racer, should be included. Occupation, physical condition and development should be noted and the effect in every possible way uppn the general health, organs, muscles, nerves and faculties of each rider should be recorded. In this way a guide of inestimable value would be prepared for the great blcycling public, of whom, it is safe to say, by far the large majority now both in the matter of speed and distance, ride more or less beyond their strength.

march in equatorial lands. The men under the leadership of Sir Herbert Kitchener during the recent campaign in the Soudan, who were allowed no alcoholic stimulants whatever, performed their long journey through the desert on cold tea, and fought splendidly at the end of it. Tiger hunters in India, who often are subjected to intense heat in the thick jungle, invariably use cold tea as a drink. It is now proposed that our army in Cuba should be allowed to follow the example of their British brethren in arms in India and Egypt, and fill their canteens with tea instead of water.

IN ELECTRICITY.

Automobile Vehicles in Paris.

T IS not without reason that Paris ter of latter-day automobilism. Neither the vast interest taken in me-chanical traction on roads in France, nor the position that has been reached by French manufacturers, is generally appreciated. At the recent exhibition in the Tuileries Gardens, in Paris, some 750 vehicles of the carriage type were exhibited, and the number of exhibitors exceeded three hundred. Two facts were prominently brought out. One was that with the exception of about three makers, all the French manufacturers prefer electric ignition to the tube ignition most generally approved in England. The other prominent fact most noticeable was that the French makers endeavor to cater for the wishes and pockets of the largest section of the public. This is just what the English makers are not doing. At the Paris show there were at least 120 vehicles of the light pleasure type coming within the classification of the light chaise of the horse-drawn vehicles. These were made to seat type coming within the classification of the light chalse of the horse-drawn vehicles. These were made to seat two, three and four persons, built low, being entirely outside the class of "tricycle or quadricycle" vehicles, and most properly termed "carriages." They were in the majority of cases fitted with four or five effective horse-power motors, and were sold at prices ranging from $800 to $950. It is suggested that American makers of automobiles would find it well worth their while to turn their attention to this type of vehicle, for which there would probably be a much more ready demand than for the expensive forms of coupes, landaus, etc., that one generally sees at American shows. One point which is beyond question is that everyday electricity is finding a wider place in automobile propulsion, and it is believed that within a very few years the majority of motor cars will be electrically driven.

Illumination as an Art,

THE attention which is being paid to the economy of artificial light is seen in the fact that many large storekeepers are now rearranging the lights in their various departments, and while affecting a saving of current, are securing better illumination. F. A. is seen in the fact that many large storekeepers are now rearranging the lights in their various departments, and while affecting a saving of current, are securing better illumination. F. A. Bowman has some instructive things to say on this subject: In good illumination, no bright spots or lines of light strike the eye. The moment the eye sees the source of light it closes up for protection from the direct rays, and consquently cannot see as well the objects on which the diffused light is intended to be thrown. To ilustrate this: Take a shop with two show windows and hang the lights in one window about the level of the eyes, as is commonly done, and in the other put the same number of lights in good reflectors close up to the ceiling. Now go across the street and note the result. In the first window, the goods on exhibition are fairly lighted; but it is discomforting to look at them long, and nothing is seen behind them. In the other window the goods are shown up beautifully, and can be gazed at leisurely. At the same time a view of the store inside with goods on the shelves and counters, is obtained. The very best methods of lighting show windows is from overhead, or from the corners, with lamps in deep and powerful reflectors, that will throw the light directly on the goods, and will shield it from everywhere else. Where great economy is desired, clusters under good flat reflectors, that will throw the light directly on the goods, and will shield it from everywhere else. Where great economy is desired, clusters under good flat reflectors in the ceiling of the window are best. They show the goods up well, make the front look brighter, and throw light into the front part of the store, where it is neded. The illumination given out by a certain lamp can be materially increased by the use of reflectors. A small light is increased from 1 to 23 by a paper reflector, to 30 by a white glass one, to 64 by a polished one, and to 260 by a silvered glass hemispherical one. White reflectors, not enameled, give most satisfa

Mean Advantage of the Father,

In The story which comes from Sheffield, England, of the way in which a father circumvented the young fellow who was making love to his daughter, there is an inevitable suggestion that, for once, electricity has been put to an unworthy use. Pater familias caught the girl and her admirer sitting very close together on the sofa. He read her a lecture, and made her promise to keep the swain at a distance in future. But he had his misgivings, and called in an electrician to carry out a little scheme he had hatched. A contact plate was fitted just under the cushion of the sofa and another to the bottom of the frame in such a way that when the weight of two persons bore down on the top plate, it would touch the other and close the circuit. Wires were run from the plate to the old man's bedroom, where, a small bell would ring as soon as the sofa circuit was closed. All this, of course, was done secretly. The next night, the lover called again, and was admirably circumspect until the old folks retired about 10 o'clock. About half an hour later the bell upstairs rang furiously. The old man sneaked down, and found the lovers as happy as could be on the sofa, and very close together. The meanness of the story is made complete in the sequel, which sets forth that while the young man was allowed to go home unmolested, the poor girl was locked up on a diet of bread and water.

TO THE RESCUE.

When a Newfoundland dog plunges into the water and sales a drowning into the water and saves a drowning child, every one has a word of praise for the noble animal. There is a graver dauger than that of drowning that meuaces childhood. ternity, during the period auguring motherhood.

The threatening danger is that baby will be weak, puny and sickly, and come into the world with the seeds of disease and death already implanted in its little body. Health cannot be born of ill-health. The child born of a mother who is suffering from weakness and disease of the feminine organs is condemned upon the very threshold of life to suffering, disease and death. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription fits a woman for motherhood and insures a healthy baby. Thousands of women who were either childless or whose children had all died in babyhood, bless the "Favorite Prescription" for the fact that they are now the happy mothers of healthy children. MRS. C. M. SMITH, YUMA, ARIZONA.

"It is with pleasure that I give my testimonial in regard to the ability of the English and German Expert Specialists, hoping that others who are ailing may be directed to doctors who will cure them. I had long been a sufferer with lung trouble. I was wasting away and coughed so much that I could scarcely sleep at night for weeks at a time. During this period I had frequent hemorrhages and neither myself nor friends expected that I would ever be well again. Finally I began to treat with the English and German Expert Specialists, by mail, and soon began to improve. At the end of four months I was well, the night sweats, the coughing and the hemorrhages having disappeared. In my dealings with the various members of the staff of the English and German Expert Specialists, both professionally and in a business way, I found them to be entirely satisfactory.

Below are summarized the more important developments of yesterday in the war situation:

The Spanish Cabinet has approved the basis of her reply to the peace proposals of the United States, and it will be read at the Cabinet council this morning. It is said that there will be no cause left for further controversy between the two nations.

Secretary Alger discharges the crew of the Vosemite, but the order is rescinded by the President.

One transport with troops leaves Santiago northward-bound and others prepare to follow.

"LET US HAVE PEACE."

So spake the greatest soldier of the last half of this fast-waning century, and his words are borne on the midsummer breezes to every home throughout the length and breadth of the land. And Peace has come, not like a mourner bowed in shame, to bewail lost honor and blighted arabition, but with the conqueror's step of triumph to prove her the first-born daughter of Victory.

We are glad and join in a mighty people's shouts of jubilation because it has come at a moment so timely and opportune. It has come just when the deadly yellow fever was beginning to invade the ranks of our gallant boys that wear the blue; and it gives them the prospect of a speedy return to home and fatherland.

The territorial acquisition embodied in this treaty of peace, is the least valuable of its fruits. The nobler thought is the glory that rises in anotheosis above the sulphurous cauopy of Santiago and the gray dawn which overhung Manila Bay on May day's morn-the signal triumph which so fitly voices the lines of the old Massachusetts bard, who wrote:

" 'Tis harder still when men unlearn The lesson taught so long.

That, once their slumb'ring passions burn, The peaceful are the strong." In our pursuit of mighty discoveries in the arts of peace, our strength as a fighting nation had slumbered as a giant sleeps after a hard race. And yet, with no previous heralding of boasted prowess, we sent forth at a few weeks' warning, a navy that discounted the deeds of Benbow and Drake and paralleled the prestige of a Nelson. Her calm reluctance to enter into a war until all other methods had failed, and "an appeal to arms and the God of Hosts," which was the only remedy within reach, is the brightest laurel in America's fadeless crown.

America has no ready-made heroes, yet always finds them in her hour of need. Her Deweys, Schleys, Hohsons and Sampsons spring forth from the mist of obscurity today, as did her Hull, Bainbridge, Decatur and Farragut in the years that have flown The fighting blood of '76 has not yet run out, nor have the fires died away upon the altars of a republic's earlier devotion. Our republic has expanded its territory since the days of Lexington, Saratoga and Valley Forge, until its star-wrought ensign has dipped its fringes in the sunset sea, but the blood of "Mad Anthony" Wayne and Israel Putnam still surges in the veins of their descendants, as didate—the same McLachlan who they shoulder their rifles and sing was ingloriously defeated by the peans of glory and love to the men small Populist Barlow-is once more of yore.

And the central figure of all this ecstatic triumph is the calm and unruffled man in the White House, the man in the district for the place—the led him step by step upward to the who can win-he simply wants to go

The other sort is the newspaper that supports a political party from principle, but refuses to accept the nomination of weak men for office merely because of the fact that through chicane and political trickery they are enabled to get on a party ticket. Of this latter class is THE LOS ANGELES

TIMES, as is known of all its readers. THE TIMES is a Republican newspaper, but it is not an organ. policy has always been to forcefully idvance the principles of the greatest political organization that ever dominated this nation, because it believes those principles best represent the institutions that have made the nation puissant and brave. But THE Times has not always supported all the men forced to the front for political office under the Republican name and it is big enough, strong enough, independent and resolute enough to still maintain that the party must present fit candidates if the great party of Abraham Lincoln expects this newspaper to support them. The Republican party of this nation is greater than any man, greater than any cabal, greater than any clique. The disasters that in times past have fallen upon it have been caused injudicious nominations, and not because of erroneous principles advanced in its platforms. Given the right kind of men in California as candidates, this State is always Republican-when weaklings are put to the front and urged for election the Democrats win, and that is the only time they do win. As it has been in the past, so it will be in the year 1898--with good, clean, able men as candidates, we can thrash the Demo-Populistic combination to an inglorious standstill, but if the party presumes that because a war has been uccessfully concluded by a Republican administration, and that this year "any old thing" in the shape of a candidate is good enough, even a yellow dog, it will court disaster, and will insure defeat; and it will deserve both. It is of especial importance at this time to name a Republican for Congress from the Sixth District who can win, a man who has the confidence of the people, a man who is not perennial office-seeker, a man who has never led the party to defeat, a man who knows his own mind for twentyfour consecutive hours, at least, James McLachlan of Pasadena, who has been a candidate for something for so many years back that the minof man is strained when endeavoring to recall a time when he wasn't a canto the breach, clamoring for recognition at the hands of the Republican voters of this district. He has not shown that he is the best strongest man, the ablest man, or se sagacity and patriotism have demonstrated that he is the only man to Congress again, and, so far as Mc-Lachlan is concerned, that settles it. But the Republican voters of this imperial Congress District propose to ave something to say about this hing, this time. They permitted a oss to dictate the nomination of this ersistent Pasadenian two years ago, and the result was Barlow. They ave smashed the boss who made McLachlan a candidate in 1896, and his year they will smash McLachlan or the nomination and give the Sixtn District a Congressmen who will itly represent it and its great and nanifold interests.

THE TIMES has no candidate for any flice; it opposes Mr. McLachlan for no personal reasons, It will loyally upport any good and able Republican or any office to which he may be inated, but it gives notice here nd now that it will not assist at a depublican funeral when the corpse as been selected in advance! hat be treason, make the most of it!

BRIBERY AS A FINE ART

The recent examinations of Ernest Terah Hooley in the London insolency court, reveal a thing that is ew and instructive as to a portion the British aristocracy. Of course is known that some members of the rage, like the Duke of Portland and Duke of Westminster, have enoris rent rolls, and can live comortably on the incomes of their alties. But all the peerage are not xed so well. Some years ago one the Dukes of Manchester died, and then leaked out that he was personly inscivent and had been supported some years by his mistress, who vas a variety-hall singer. And about the same time, the young Marquis of Ailesbury, whose father was one of he grandest of five old English genlemen, was expelled from the turf for life on account of the crooked running of his horses, in the interest the bookmakers.

The Hooley trial serves to show that, in order to float stock companies organized for all sorts of puroses, he had not only subsidized the ditorial columns of many newspapers, out had actually paid out large sums f money to members of the British eerage for the use of their names as irectors in his wildcat corporations. And while the scandal is not of the ame magnitude as that of the Panama anal, it nevertheless involves the names of many men of quite as high social position as did the disgraceful onspiracy which sent the amous De Lesseps to a felon's cell. Prominent among these high-toned camps who have sold their names to aid a mercenary speculator in bleeding the thrifty and self-denying wageworkers of England, is Lord de la Warr, whose exposure must be most humiliating, and who, in his arraign ment before the public as the confed rate of an unscrupulous stock-jobber has not even a letter of condolence from ex-Minister Bayard, to recomense him for his sudden and unexected disgrace. Verily, the lines of modern British aristocrat are hard peyond comparison.

All such occurences as these are what lead up to socialism in Europe and Populism in America. They help arraign the poor in angry tumult against the rich and to beget hostility against corporations, whether such corporations be honestly managed or not. They serve to antagonize labor against capital, when the truth is that capital is, after all, only the accumulated savings of labor. Agitators of the stripe of Denis Kearney and Eugene V. Debs find such occurrences as these extremely useful in inflaming he passions of wage-workers against the very men to whom they are indebted for the bread that feeds their families, and the consequence is a perturbed condition of mind among those who have saved up a portion of heir daily wages, only to lose it in the maelstrom of speculation.

As for Hooley himself, he differs but little from Ferdinand Ward in our own country, save that he has never committed a forgery, nor laid himself liable to a seat in a felon's dock. He is merely a gambler who has resorted to mercantile methods in preference to those of the faro bank or the poker table. In his purchases of descendants of the Dorimants and Wildairs. he found out that they "came high, but he must have them." Just wherein those titled stool-pigeons were any better than the "capper" on the railroad train, who disguises himself as a farmer, to enable the three-card monte dealer to fleece the third-class passengers, does not appear on the surface. Hooley seems to have known that there was a large element in the British aristocracy composed of meti who "want something for nothing," and who regard the name of an an cient and hitherto honorable house as a mere article of merchandise, to be sold to the highest bidder.

Hooley is not altogether a new feature in British society, either. As ompared with John Law, who floated the South Sea bubble in 1712, Mr. Hooley was a retail dealer, nor does he compare with Henry Villard any more than a London pothouse "sweep compares with the miner's share of the Epsom Derby. He will pass out of sight as have other needy and unscrupulous speculators, but the stigma will rest just the same upon the titled bunco-steerers who have given him the use of their names in his schemes to fleece the British public. All of which goes to show that the blood that fought at Crees and Agincourt is no more exempt from nercenary instincts than that of John Noakes, the day laborer in a Kentish hop field, or of Sam Stokes, the drayman in a Well Park brewery on the Trent. Hooley had evidently read Walpole, and with him believed that 'every man has his price.'

The eccentricities and frequent ex-aggerations in rates charged by the railroads of this country are strikingly shown in a confidential circular issued by a hardware jobber in Chicago and circulated in Sonora. He calls attention to the saving in freight, on carload lots of goods, by shipping from Chicago by the long, round-about route via New York, Panama and San Francisco, thence back to Guaymas-a distance equal to about half way round the world-instead of by rail direct. According to the circular the 'rate from Chicago to New York by rail is 30 cents per hundredweight; from New York to San Francisco, via Pacific Mail Company's steamers, 40 cents per hundredweight; thence to Guaymas, via steamers of Pacific Coast Steamship Company, $12.50 Mexican money per ton, making a joint rate of $1.01%, United States money, per hundredweight. On the same class of goods, the direct rate by rail is $1.25 per hundredweight. In this connection, an interesting book, entitled, "A General Freight and Passenger Post." has been written by a Kentucky man, James L. Cowles, to prove that railways, being public highways, should, like the postoffice charge uniform rates for freight and passengers, irrespective of the distance. This is by no means a new idea, but has been advocated in Europe, with some modifications for half a century, and in Austro-Hungary such a plan has been successfully carried out for ten years or more there being certain zones, established at varying distance from the capital. within which zones a uniform rate is charged. The last time we saw a report of these railroads, several years ago, it was stated that the experi ment had proved highly successful travel having increased enormously on the roads, and the net profits being correspondingly larger.

It is not reasonable to suppose that the railroads could carry heavy freight or passengers any distance within the United States for the same charge as the postoffice carries letters, but it does seem quite feasible thickly-settled sections of the country-to establish zones within which a uniform low charge for freight and passengers would be made. The simplifying of tickets and accounts under this system would of itself, be a large gain for the railroad companies.

The peace commission, if composed ex-President Harrison, Senator Cushman K. Davis and ex-Secretary of State Richard Olney, will fitly represent the brains, sagacity and civilization of America. It would be difficult to select a more able trio than this, were the country to be raked

Campos acknowledges that he has been somewhat surprised at the way in which our fleets and armies have been performing during the past 107 days, but Americans are not, in the We told them so, and if they didn't believe it, we are not to blame. It should be recorded that the surprise party has not been confined to Campos and his countrymen, diers in camp at San Francisco has given California's matchless climate a lack eye that it will take years to cure. Now, had those troops been sent here to camp, we would have shown them a climate that is the real thing.

The Spanish mercantile navy appears to be in no better shape than the war fleet of that country. It is now stated that it will be impossible for the Spanish steamship company to live up to the contract for trans porting Spanish prisoners from Santiago to Spain.

Southern California wants, of all hings, a man for the United States senator who is sound on the San Pedro Harbor proposition; that is one reason why U. S. Grant of San Diego is persona non grata-but there are other reasons.

AFTER THE WAR.

PROSPECT OF A MARKED REVIVAL IN BUSINESS.

recedent Established in the Days That Followed the Civil War. Uncertainty of Investments During the Past Few Years.

PECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES. WASHINGTON (D. C.,) Aug. 3.-Everywhere in the East business mer expect that a business boom will fol-low the close of the war. This expec-tation appears to be based upon good reasons, and it prevails among men in all classes of business. The war as a maker of business, generally speaking, has been a failure. Some lines have profited greatly. Men who make unisoldiers have been rushed hight and day keeping up with the or ders that poured in upon them from th government; while at the same time mills in the New England States that make cotton goods, out of which dresses for the wives and daughters of soldiers are made, have been shutting down their mills and running on short time because of the extreme dullness in business.

Normal business conditions are ex pected to follow the war, and normal conditions are expected to be bettered by the trade which we are pretty sure to have with Porto Rico and Cuba. To some it may seem a little strange that business men in the United States are looking for a big trade with the people of those two islands, when it is known that the people there are so poor that to his study and make up his list of to get money to buy goods. The fact is, American business men are calling to mind just new the is, American business men are calling to mind just now the wonderful trade that sprung up between the manufacturers of the North and the people of the South immediately after the close of the civil war. This trade was surpristed the south of the civil war. the South immediately after the close of the civil war. This trade was surprising, because it was almost wholly unexpected; nobody believed that the people of the South either had or could get the money for such a trade. Yet the money was forthcoming for the necessities of life, and a considerable business revival was the result. This, it is expected, will be the case in Cuba and Forto Rico. The people will find the money somehow, and they will naturally buy our products. There is one little item alone that shows what we may expect to do with the trade in Cuba. For years Spain has sent to that island annually boots and shoes to the value of $3,000,000, while the United States, a country noted for its boot and shoe industry, has not sent I per cent, of that amount. Hereafter, it may safely be predicted, all, or nearly all, of the boots and shoes used in Cuba will be shipped there from the United States.

There are other reasons why a business revival is expected with the close of the war. War and rumors of war tend-to frighten capital out of lines it tend-to frighten capital out of lines it would naturally follow in times of peace. For a very long time prior to the actual breaking out of war-between this country and Spain there were murmurings of the coming conflict; war scares happened every few weeks, and these frightened capital. This condition of affairs began about February, 1895-before we had fully recovered from the panic of 1893--and continued until war was actually declared.

The treasury's condition has something to do with some lines of business, and it must not be overlooked in considering what may happen. Generally speaking, a growing deficit in the treasury has a very bad effect upon the financial world, which is pretty closely related to the entire business world. On July 1 the War-Revenue Bill went into full effect, while for some time prior to that date some sections of the bill were in operation. It is calculated that for several days past the bill has been producing as much revenue for the government as it ever will produce, and yet the daily statement issued from the Treasury Department shows that the expenditures of the government exceed the receipts by from $150,000 to $3,000,000 every day. This produced a big deficit for the month of July, and it led to stories that the Secretary of the Treasury was getting ready to make another issue of bonds. Secretary Gage was given authority by the War-Revenue Bill to issue bonds to the amount of $400,000,000, and to its issue, in addition, certificates of indebtedness to the extent of $100,000,000 more.

The officials of the Treasury Department, however, do not believe that there

The officials of the Treasury Department, however, do not believe that there will be another bond issue before Congress meets in December, even though the War Revenue Bill will not take care of the expenses of the government day by day until that time. The large amount of money now in the Treasury—considerably more than $200,000,000—makes it reasonably certain that contact the tender of the contact that th scot, own, own makes it reasonably certain that another issue of bonds will not be needed. Peace will reduce the expenses of the government somewhat, but even peace will not bring them down to where they were before the

The figures at which the bonds of The figures at which the bonds of this government are now quoted place this government on the highest rank on the score of credit among nations. No other government, except the British, is able to borrow money any lower. The British debt is absolutely secured on a gold standard basis, and is practically permanent. Under these conditions, England borrows at from 2½ to 2½ per cent. British 2½s quoted at 111½, and our 3s, redeemable in three years, at 104, make an almost showing of the credit of the two nations. The Canadians borrow easily, their 4 per cent. bonds commanding a premium of from 11 to 18 per cent., which makes them 3½ per cent. securities. Egyptian of from 11 to 18 per cent., which makes them 3½ per cent. securities. Egyptian 3 per cent. bonds guaranteed not only by England but by five other European powers, command a premium of about 8 per cent. The other dependencies of England are easy borrowers, but when the power of the United States and England are left out, interest gradually rises. The French rentes bear 3 and 3½ per cent. but they rarely get above 105. Germany pays 3½ per cent, for money on her bonds, and the bonds are pretty nearly always a little bonds are pretty nearly always a little bonds are pretty nearly always a little below par. Austria is a bit ahead of Germany in this respect. She pays a per cent on her gold bonds, but they never go above 104. Russian 3 per cent bonds have not been above 95 for never go above 104. Russian 3 per cent. bonds have not been above 95 for years. Italy pays 4 and 5 per cent., but her bonds are below par. Everybody knows the wabbly course that Spanish 4s have followed since the opening of the war, and for a good while before it opened, for that matter.

Irrigation Legislation

the State papers which are discussing the Wright law are very vicious in their attacks upon it, treating it as if its promoters had been vile conspira tors against the wellfare of the public. As a matter of fact, the Wright law was passed with the most emphatic approval of nearly everybody in the State except those interested in per-sonally exploiting the waters for their own benefit. By no class of the people was it more warmly approved than by the small farmers and owners of land requiring irrigation who were unable from their own means to bring the water to their lands. It receive great step in advance, and has been the basis of most irrigation laws since actly what the farmers in the arid districts desired, and, because they desired it and said so, it received the strong support of the Chronicle and the press generally. We are convinced as strongly as ever that the law is as good as it is possible to enact upon the good as it is possible to enact upon the theory that the owners of lands requiring irrigation shall own, develop and manage the water to supply their own ditches. There appears, however, to have been a difficulty which no one anticipated. In many districts, and apparently the majority, the people have proved to be incompetent to transact business upon so large a scale. They could not elect directors who were both competent and honest, and voted bonds without being able to judge whether the water which they were to pay for could be actually developed or if developed could be so used as to earn interest on the cost of development. The fault was not in the law, which did not compel the formation of any district, or the issuing of a dollar's worth of bonds. It simply gave the people the right to do as they pleased. Under this permission they have in many instances acted unwisely and have suffered accordingly, and instead of blaming themselves theory that the owners of lands requirwisely and have suffered accordingly, and instead of blaming themselves they blame the law. Under the operation of the same law

Under the operation of the same law some districts have been successfully organized and have got their water at rates which the land can pay. The Turlock district has just completed its system at a cost of $1,200,000. The interest upon this amount at 6 per cent. is $72,000, or 40 cents per acre upon the 176,210 acres in the district, all of which is stated to be irrigable and good land. This continues for ten years, after which the principal is to be paid off in annual installments. If paid in equal installments the payment for the eleventh year would be $1.09 per acre, from which it would regularly diminish. In addition there is the expense of management. We are satisfied that the land will rapidly come into uses which will pay $2 or $3 per later which will pay $2 or $3 per la into uses which will pay $2 or $3 per acre and increase, and pending that that it can be rented to stockmen for that it can be rented to stockmen for more than the taxes in excess of what it pays now. It is true that others have done badly, but it was under the same law and with the same opportunity to do well, or at least to refrain from doing ill.

tunity to do well, or at least to refrain from doing ill.

Now, however, that it has become apparent that the management of irrigation enterprises on a large scale is too much for a people in our present state of development, there is a demand for something different, and which we can do successfully. As in the former case the Chronicle hopes to be helioful in getting the people of our rural districts what they say they want in the way of irrigation laws, if reasonable: but we shall make no progress if we blindly neglect the lessons of experience and refuse to recognize the real cause of whatever trouble we have already endured.

The crucial question is who shall assume the pecuniary risk of develop-

The crucial question is who shall assume the pecuniary risk of developing an irrigation system, and lose the money if it does not pay? The theory of the Wright law is that the risk should be assumed by the people of the district benefited. This seemed reasonable, and we favored it. Some who have taken the risk and lost want some one else to assume the burden of development. It must always be understood that all such enterprises involverisk. If there had been any sure thing private enterprises would have gobbled it long before the Wright law was passed. It is desirable that all these risks which are within reason should be taken by somebody and the State be taken by somebody and the State developed. The Chronicle desires this as much as any one. There is an active estitation going on for new legislation. as much as any one. There is an active agitation going on for new legislation. We are asked to favor the movement, and wish to do so if we can. We do not know who is authorized to speak authoritatively for it, and hence ask in this way to be informed where it is pronosed that the burden of taxation shall fall for the construction of ditches under some law other than the Wright law.

THE PURPLE SCALE.

COUNTY FOR AID.

Pest is to Introduce from Ha-wall the Parasite That Feeds Upon It—A Collector to Be Sent

For quite a long time the citrus-fruit growers of the Downey, Rivera and Whittier districts have been groaning under the affliction of the purple scale, for although the pest has manifest itself in other parts of the county, the districts named have been the very center from which radiated the apparently ineradicable disease. After a long season of discussion the growers in the three districts got together last week, in conference with the Horticultural Commissioners of the county, at Rivera, and determined to take the initiative in an attempt to secure a proper supply of the parasite from the Hawaiian Islands that has there been found to be a true remedy for the purple scale. This parasite is the Chilocorus circumdatus, a little ladybird belonging to the same classi-fication as the Vedalia cardinalis, and was introduced into the Hawaiian Islands by Prof. Albert Koebele, who is now visiting in this country. Since being introduced and propagated, this useful little parasite has done its work so well that it is now a difficult matter to find any purple scale in the islands at all.

A petition is being prepared for presentation to the Board of Supervisors entation to the Board of Supervisors by the fruit-growers of Downey, Rivera and Whittier, asking that an appropriation be made from the county funds to send an experienced man to Honolulu for the purpose of collecting and shipping for distribution in the county a supply of the Chilocorus circumdatus. At present owners of orchards infected with purple scale are being slowly bankrupted, as what fruit they do grow cannot be marketed under the quarantine rules now prevailing. The good offices of Alexander Graw, State Quarantine Officer and entomologist to the State Board of Horticulture, have been obtained, and he has pointed out the necessity for care in the selection of a suitable man to send to the islands and for reasons not generally understood.

nave been obtained, and he has pointed out the necessity for care in the selection of a suitable man to send to the islands and for reasons not generally understood.

It will not suffice that the personage shall go to the island, collect a large supply of the Chilocorus circumdatus, and then réturn with his prize. As Mr. Graw points out, in a letter received from him yesterday, every parasite has a secondary parasite. And unless due caution is exercised in the introduction of the first, the second also may be brought in and work such devastation as will more than counterbalance the good results of the primary parasite. In sending a collector, therefore, it will fail within the line of his necessary duty to establish propagating stations, where the Chilocorus circumdatus may be bred under selected conditions, and from these colonies the demands of the circumstances attending a rapid collection and importation of the parasites into this country.

In about two months Prof. Koebele will return to Honolulu, and has consented to give the representative of Los Anxeles county every assistance within his power for collecting the Chilocorus, and for making the collection required. George Compeer has been mentioned as the most suitable person the Board of Supervisors can select to fill the position of collector, and the Horticultural Commissioners, the enhomologist of the State Board of Horticulture, and, it is anticipated, the citrus-fruit growers most closely corcerned, will all combine to have him appointed. The amount necessary to be appropriated from the county funds will be about $2000 to $2500, and the reason that the fruit-growers desire to saddle this expenditure upon the county is that, as they contend, the entire county is directly concerned in the eradication of the purple scale. So far all the various washes have been tried without effect, and even after three and four fumigations it has been found that the pest had not been entirely removed. Roughly speaking, it costs a grower 50 cent per tree for fumigation orchards that are clear this week may be infected next, and against its in-roads the growers as well as the Hor-ticultural Commisioners acknowledge that they are impotent.

banks. The country bankers assert that an unjust discrimination has been established against them.

On Friday a new rule of the Los Angeles clearinghouse was put in force whereby all banks of this city charge five cents each for collection of checks on out-of-town banks, but make no charge for collection of checks on Los Angeles banks. A Pomona man, for instance, pays a bill in Santa Monica by giving a check on a Pomona bank. The Santa Monica person who receives the check deposits it with a Santa Monica bank and the Santa Monica bank is compelled to charge five cents for collection, because when the check is sent to the Los Angeles clearing-house a charge of five cents is placed against the Santa Monica bank for its collection. If, on the contrary, the Pomona man has his money deposited with a Los Angeles bank, he may pay the same bill with a check on his Los Angeles bank and be spared the annoy-ance of the extra charge for collection. Some of the country banks say that this condition of affairs is an effective inducement to the people of the smaller towns to do their banking business in Los Angeles hanks. A scheme has been inaugurated by which out-of-town bankers are to retaliate by charging five cents are to retaliate by cha

Mrs. Louise Martin, who is a prominent woman of San Bernardino, writes:

"Mr. McBurney—Dear sir: I have been troubled with my kidneys for the past three years, and have doctored with the best physicians, but regret to say they did me no good. Doctors say it was from change of life. The pain was so intense it was almost unbearable.

"I was advised to try your medicine, and the first dose gave me great relief, and the second dose relieved me entirely. I have not taken half the bottle, and I feel like a new woman. I have recommended your medicine to a number of my friends, and they all speak in its praise. If this letter is of any use to you, use it.

THE NEED OF STATESMANSHIP.

HE history of the United States from its beginning to the present time, in some respects reads like a romance. The story of its growth and expansion is like a gradual imperial revela-Never in the life of any people can we trace so clearly the lines of manifest destiny as in the history of our national life, so constantly expanding till it fills the eyes of the world a fully as any nation of the earth.

The talk of an "imperial policy" in connection with this war, as if it were something new, is a l a mistake. Imperialism has marked our course almost from the beginning of our history. have stood with an open hand, ready for any honest acquisition that we might secure. In the annexation of Hawaii and Porto Rico we are trampling upon none of the traditions of our past, but are simply living up to the law of expansion that has ruled us from the outset. If we glance backward to the close of the revolutionary war we find ourselves limited to that domain east of the Mississippi, and to the south of Canada, and to the north of the Florida line. It was imperial in its great extent, being nearly equal to the territorial expanse of Great Britain, Ireland, Spain and France, but how small in comparison with what we now possess. France and Spain once owned the great West. The Mississippi was the boundary line, although our treaty with Great Britain conceded to both nations alike the freedom of navigation upon its waters.

Then came our purchase of Louisiana, and all that territory from the Mississippi to the "Stony Mountains" was ceded to the United States, with the exception of Texas, for $15,000,000. It was an imperial acquisition, almost doubling the domain that we had heretofore possessed, giving us the foundation for a mighty republic. then we have acquired Texas, California and Alaska, an acquirement which was simply a continuation of our "imperial policy," and now Hawaii, and soon Porto Rico will doubtless be added, and possibly the far-away Philippines.

When California came into our possession it was practically farther away from the life of our nation than are the Philippines today. A man felt that he was taking his life in his hands in his attempt to reach it. A great wilderness, uninhabited except by the most barbarous and ruel savage, lay between him and this State, if undertook the overland route thither. Steam ed him nothing then as a transporting and so further than the far-off Orient by Dewey today was this Golden State, lated by Indians, Mexican half-breeds Spanish, it was a serious prob ld do with it. The

tain ranges could not hinder it, nor the trackless and waterless wilderness stand in its way, and then our imperial policy extended from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and covered a continent of space.

Thus we see that the question of territorial expansion is by no means something new or unknown among us, yet perhaps we do not any more readily welcome the problem that is before us in regard to our final disposition of the Philippines. There are many things to be considered before that matter can be properly settled. There are many possible entanglements which we may wish to avoid, and many weighty responsibilities would have to be accepted should we conclude to hold these islands. It is a question that imperatively calls for the deliberation of the wisest statesmanship and the elimination of selfish interests in its decision. Ten millions of wild and semi-barbarous natives would be no very desirable acquisition to our population. It would take a generation to tame them and to bring them into sympathy with our laws and institutions. But then, should they be left to the tender mercies of Spain, and to the unhindered grasp of her power?

This is one of the most momentous problems that the war has thrust upon us. It is not "imperialism" that troubles us, for that is nothing new in our policy, but in connection with the Philippines it is the great question as to what in equity and justice is the wisest policy for us to pursue, and we feel the need of the guidance of the highest statesmanship to settle the matter.

THE "FOURTH" IN NEW ZEALAND.

THE anniversary of our national independence was celebrated this year throughout the United States as it has not been celebrated before for many years. The American colonies before for many years. in London, in Paris, and in other European cities also remembered the day with appropriate exercises, of a more or less elaborate character. But it will be a source of satisfaction to every American reader to learn that the day we celebrate was also celebrated in the antipodes. At Auck land, New Zealand, the day of American independence was celebrated with great enthusiasm, not by the American colony, alone, but by the citizens of Auckland, who, it is hardly neces sary, to say, are almost wholly of English birth or extraction. A copy of the New Zealand Herald, recently received at this office, gives an extended account of a meeting held at Auckland on July 4, on which occasion an address on behalf of the citizens of Auckland was presented to the American Consul, Mr. Frank Dillingham. meeting was held in the operahouse at Auckland for the express purpose of affording to the peo ple of that city an opportunity to manifest their feelings of cordiality toward Mr. Dillingham, personally, toward the people of the United States in general, and to give public utterance to the prevailing sentiment in favor of an Anglo-American alliance. "It is questionable," says the Auckland paper, "whether at any previous time in the history of the colony a more en-thusiastic meeting was held than that held at the operahouse on July 4, when Mr. Frank Dillingham, the Consul in New Zealand for the United States of America, was presented with an address from the citizens of Auckland on the occasion of the anniversary of the foundation of that great republic over which the flag of the Stars and Stripes waves. The theater packed in every part, and hundreds lined feetdeep at the back of the interior of the building, while many were unable to gain admittance. The proceedings throughout were of the most cordial and enthusiastic nature, and in testifying to the representative of the United States their warmth of sympathy and sense of kinship, that those present, loyal British subjects, felt toward of the United States, the people of ht excelled themselves. Dillingham on this ausfollows:

q., Consul in New Zealand, for the United States of America -Sir: By direction and in the name of the citizens of Auckland, in public meeting assembled, we take this opportunity of expressing to you, and through you to the government and people of the United States, our hearty congradulations on the anniversary of the foundation of your great republic, and the warmth of sympathy and sense of kinship which we, as loyal British subjects, of kinship which we, as loyal British subjects, feel toward you as citizens of the United States. The moment that witnessed the birth of your great nation was one characterists. great nation was one characterized by profound emotions, by heroic conduct, and by a broad statesmanship, which it has been the fortune of mankind rarely to witness. [Applause.] Many of the emotions and sentiments of that time were of a character so strained and so painful that time alone could soften them and assuage their keen severity, but now, happily, after a century of unexampled progress in all things that make civilization a blessing to mankind, what in them was of anger and antagonism has passed away, and there is left for the admiration and imitation of mankind the spectacle of a noble people, governed by the great principles then laid down, and characterized by an unfaltering love of free-dom, in the spirit of which your nation had its dom, in the spirit of which your birth, and which was the precious heritage your Pilgrim Fathers carried with them from their native land. [Applause.] The world has yet to witness the further progress and development of your civilizing power and influence, and it is our earnest hope that your people, and ours from which they sprang, may ever be found working out their great destiny side by side; that all men whatever kindred or race they be, may that alike under the Stars and Stripes and under the Union Jack, is found the home of personal freedom, of equality before the law, and the ecurity of life and property--[Applause]-and that though they be two nations, yet they are one people, with a common language, a common literature, a common law, and a common religious development, and that they are governed and actuated by one common resolve, that wherever, in the providence of God, they called upon to undertake national resp responsibilities, those blessings of their civilization shall constitute the privilege of all those over whom their glorious flags shall wave. [Loud applause.] the assurances of our warmest sympathy and sincere respect for our kinsmen and people of the United States of America, "For and on behalf of the citizens of Auckland.

[Signed] "PETER DIGNAN, "Mayor."

During the meeting there were addresses by the Mayor and other prominent citizens, all breathing the same cordial sentiments of friendship and good will for the United States, and setting forth the mutual advantages of an alijance, at least in sentiment, between the two great nations which have the same language, the same literature, and in effect the same laws and the same religion. Consul Dillingham responded to the address presented to him in a feeling and eloquent manner, which wrought the vast audience up to the highest pitch of enthusiasm.

"God Save the Queen," "The Star Spangled Banner," "America," "Hail Columbia," and about all the other patriotic airs known to the English-speaking race were sung during the meeting. It was truly a representative and significant gathering, and was forcibly illustrative of the strong bonds of sympathy and friendship which are steadily drawing the English-speaking race together, in spite of past differences and almost-forgotten wrongs. The scene at Auckland was paralleled, in part, in nearly every American city on Independence day, when the Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes were twined lovingly together in many a procession. It was the same in Canada, also, and in Great Britain the dawning of the new era was commemorated with no less enthusiasm than in other parts of the English-speaking world.

"So let us have done with a worn-out tale-The tale of an ancient wrong-

And our friendship last long as love doth last, and be stronger than death is strong."

[Pittsburgh Dispatch:] There are three electric railways projected in Kobe district in Japan. One is to be fifteen miles in length, extending from Kobe to Amagasaki. The company has a capital of 500,000 yen ($249,000,) and the work is to be completed within two years. The time for beginning the work is not fixed.

MAHA. Aug. 6.—There is nothing more interesting at the exposition than the wonderful food exhibit made by the great food ing States and by the reilways ing through them. he Agricultural Building, in which bulk of this exhibit is shown, is orated with a designedly lavish sumptuous richness of sculpture, is lavish as nature has been lavish; sumptuous as the autumn glory of West. The pavilion itself shows fine groups against the blue Nebraska sky, those on either side representing the zodiac and the seasons, and the colossal central group showing Prosperity, supported by Integrity and Labor. The corners of the pavilions have smaller, but very spirited, figures; and everywhere are inscriptions, for the most part exceedingly bappy, applying to agriculture; the names of notable inventors in the machinery of agriculture and notable patrons of the earthtillers are carved upon the panels of the frieze. The whole effect is that of a careless luxury, careless because so opulent.

Within, all the marvelous ingenuity which has made corn palaces, has been at work to deck the booths with every conceivable arrangement of color, every kind of mosaic in which grain can be used for pigment and line. There are queer pletures of the old-fashioned farm and the new, of locomotives and landscapes—all in grain, and some of them pleasing, as well as ingenious. A pretty device is the seed howitzer and shells, which Kansas offers as "Peace ammunition for Cuba." Samples, charts, statistics of all the principal grains and illustrations of their cultivation, make only a part of this gigantic exhibit. There are the finished food product, the innumerable flours and meals, the sugars—the sugar beet has a show of its own—and there is, also the great exhibit of the famous packers who, however, have most of their exhibit in the Manufactures. The gentle gentle will be sugars to be found in the Agricultural Building, as well as chicory, hops, etc., and tobacco is not neglected, while wool, cotton, flax and silk urge their own claims to attention. A very taking exhibit, as have the Rock Island and Burlington railways. The cereal artist of the Cotton Belt has built two pictures of the southwest as it is, while he of the Rock Island displays a locomotive under full steam going through a vivid landscape.

and the southwest as it is, while he of the Rock Island displays a locomotive under full steam going through a vivid landscape.

Among the State displays, no one State attracts more attention than Texas. C. S. Penfield is the commissioner: but on the day when I visited Texas, another Texas gentleman was on guard, whose patient courtesy and State pride I admired equally. The day was so warm that he had discarded his coat and fanned himself incessantly, but he never tired. "Yes, sah"—I love the soft, blurring accent of the South—"Yes, sah, the State of Texas raises everything that you see, including those animals. Take a farm, ma'am, the State provides them for the accommodation of vis'tahs. It is a wahm day. Oh, I don't know, we have some wahm weather in Texas; but the nights are always cool. I find this wahm Western weather rather debilitating." Never in my life have I met the inhabitant of one really sizzling and scorching section of the country who was temporarily sojourning in another torrid section, that he did not talk about the cool nights and the peculiar quality of his own atmosphere which made heat easy to bear. I drew near and had a little soulful converse with the Texas man on the vast State which he represents. "Yes, ma'am, cohn and cotton—here is some of our long-fiber cotton; it is no use other States talking of competing with us in cotton. And cohn is pressing cotton hard. Texas is bound to be the greatest cohn State in the Union."

"And fruits?" "Fruits? Well, ma'am, will you be here on the first? Please come around here. We are expecting our melons, and some peaches then, and I should like you to sample them. That's all we ask—eat some of our fruit, and we'll provide the fruit for which made heat easy to bear. THE MANUFACTURES BUILDING.
The next building on the main court no lover of children will omit to see, the children of the Transmississippi Valley erected with their nickels. It is simulated in the Union."

A pleasant feature of the exposition is a kind of hospitality which it extends to its patrons. There are a great many places where visitors for the day fatted to the subulding opens wide its doors and the abundance of easy chairs and the abund coln. Neb.

As might be expected, there is a splendid mines and mining exhibit. Architecturally, the building with its unique domes and broken entablature, its Ionic colonnades and its balconies, is one of the most pleasing. There is less sculpture, but an original effect of lines and shadows, unlike that obtained by the treatment of any other structure.

MUSIC AT THE EXPOSITION.

Before one comes to the Mines and Mining Building, he reaches the Au-ditorium where are held all the public exercises of the exposition. The archi-tecture rests the eye with its simplicity, exercises of the exposition. The architecture rests the eye with its simplicity, yet is entirely harmonious. The building can seat 4000 people.

During the two months of the exposition's life, now passed, June and July, the Apollo Club, the Marine Band, Theodore Thomas's Orchestra, the Dubuque Choral Association and other musical bodies have given most admirable music. We are thought to be an unmusical people, but the German leaven in us is rendering criticism harmless. Nor have I seen more attentive or enthusiastic audiences than I saw during the last week in June in the Auditorium.

Merely a nominal sum is charged for admission. At first there was no charge, with the natural result that all the curiosity seekers sauntered in and sauntered out of the "free show." The small charge restricts the number to those who really come to listen to music; and the result is all that could be wished.

One building on the main court no lover of children will only the services and the result of the large to the main court no lover of children will only the services.

It is this electric current of human sympathy that has made already a kind of social life at the expesition. There is a society composed of the different officials. And, gradually, the visitor who remains for any length of time becomes acquainted with these pleasant, well-bred, well-educated people who have all the western kindliness and courtesy of manner and the western pride in their beautiful exposition; and therefore are willing to take pains without end in the sightseer's behalf; so presently they are no longer strangers in a strange town, but meet friends at every corner. Something of this pleasant atmosphere is felt by the most transient of guests. They are guests whose presence is welcomed as well as their money. The management in the first place, the officers, the employés, the people of Omaha all make one feel this grateful sense of personal welcome.

EVENING AT THE EXPOSITION.

En one is more courteous than the superintendent of Liberal Arts (bureau

Soperintendent of Liberal Arts (bureau K.) Mrs. Frances M. Ford, who is making more friends than she ever will know, by her gentle kindness to all sorts and conditions of women—and men. Her beautiful building reminds one of the Women's Building at the World's Fair, but it is more severe in treatment; it has, however, the ame graceful sky line, with its group of statuary at the corners and its ornate second story.

One amazing thing about any expotion is how soon it is gvening. At Omaha the most fascinating thing is evening. Sitting on one of the cool roof gardens one may dine and watch the golden fires light up the sky and deepen to crimson, while the wooden bluffs that hide the river are softened by the most tender mist of haze, and the great white clouds in the quivering, shining sea are like snow-capped mountains; and below, around, is the wonderful sky line, domes and towers and statues carved against the darkening blue. Whatever of dust or heat or human crudeness and jar there has been through the day, fades under the spell of this enchanting hour. Even the garish music of the Midway is goft-ened by distance, and the "coon song" of the beatman on the lagoon is mel-lowed into an indistinguishable har-mony.

Later, we go down and sit on the lagoon side and watch the gwan boat glide amid the gondolas, and watch the lights spring up until the whole lovely court is rimmed with fire and the fiery lilies are splashed by the fountains and the great torch of Liberty waves a dazzling radiance over all.
The scene is ineffably soothing, it has a soft poetic beauty that one does not expect, and it wil haunt every beholder.
"Why not," it always scened to whisper. "Why not have beauty such as mine, not merely for your transient delight, but for an enduring possession?"

THE RECRUIT'S SOLILCQUY.

I remember, I remember
How I used to sit and scoid
When, on getting down to breakfast,
I would find the coffee cold;
How I used to turn my nose up
If the steak was done too rare—
But oh! for home and mother,
And the dear old bill of fare.

I remember, I remember, How I used to sit and scoff When I fancied that the butter Must be "just a little off." How I scorned the lowly biscults That my sister used to make, And the things I said concerning Her attempts at jelly cake.

Oh, it may be childish weakness
That rossesses me, but I Would give a whole month's wages
For one piece of mother's pie,
And I think that I'd, be willing To walk twenty miles today
Just for one of those dear doughnuts
That I used to throw away.

"BRONCO BILL."

Bill wa'nt no saint, that's sartin: allus spilin' fur a fight.

An' he allus wuz in trubble, whether in the wrong or right.

An' his gun, chock full o' notches, tole o' many a bloody deed;

Fur like lightnin' wuz his anger, when he chose ter draw a bead.

He wuz scarcely thort as human, or at best a human brute,

Who wuz only great at drinkin, an' who only knew ter shoot.

An' there wa'nt a man in Texas from its borders near an' far,

Who didn't sleep more peaceful when they heard he'd gone ter war.

As luck wud hev it, Bill an' me were at the front that day,

When Teddy gave the order that the riders clear the way.

Frum rock ter rock, an' brush ter brush we druv them with a will,

But up among the smoke we'd see that he wuz higher still,

Still a fightin' an' a swearin' as a Texan only can,

An' hoorayin' like ole sixty when his bullet got its man.

But Bill wuz only nortal, jes as human natur's go,

An' the bullet o' a coward often lays a hero low,

When a clirbin o' the trenches us behind him saw him drop,

But the fightin' insinct kindied, it seemed hard fer him ter stop,

So he lay an' numped his 11% a' the Spanlards on the run

Till they thort that Texas Ranger wuz a livin' gatling gun;

Don't wait fur me," he shouted, "Poys, it ain't no use ter vex,

Fur Texas fellers, soon or late, must cash their earthly checks.

That greaser's bullet plugged me wi' a hole ye scarse could tell,

But in bustin' through my innards it wuz like a ten-inch shell,

I've a kind o' sinkin' feelin' an' a ketchin' o' the breath,

Like the sheriff caught me stealin', an' I s'pose it must be death,

Yes, I'm goin', boys, that's sartin, but I never larnt ter pray,

So I'll give a Texas partin' wi' hooray, ole pards, hocray!

Fur I've winged that yailer Dago in the tree top where he shot,

An' the soup hez Spanish flavor, tho' ole Bill hez gone ter pot."

An' the way he cheered an' hollered air a lesson to galoots

Who the habit never follered o' a dyin' in their boots.

As a snake won't die till sundown, so poor Bill kept cheerin' Bill wa'nt no saint, that's sartin; allus spilin' fur a fight,

WHERE THE TIMBERS CREAK WITH THE WEIGHT O'ER HEAD

'Clink, kerchug, clink, kerchug," as the hammer smites the ringing drill, And the hand of the miner churns and turns it round between the blows, For he works with a strong and a hearty will, and the skill of one who knows.

Deep down in the heart of the mother earth, where the precious metals have their birth.
Where the timbers creak with the weight o'er head, and the heart of the stranger fills with dread, hear the beat of the rythmic song, "clink, kerchug, "clink, kerchug," as it sounds through the caverns men have dug.

And I know that under the hammer's shock, the tooth of steel eats into the rock.

"Clink, kerchug, clink, kerchug!"
The candle gleams on the jagged walls and the shadowsellit as the hammer falls, And the miner's body sways and swings, as into the drift the music rings, "Clink, kerchug, clink, kerchug." It sounds through the caverns men have dug, For the love that lasts is the love for gold, the love that lasts till the heart is cold.

"Clink, kerchug, clinuk, kerchug!"

Out on the hill where wind is free, a hint of the song drifts up to me., As far beneath in the dark and gloom, the miner digs for his hopes a tomb; For only a tithe of the wealth he carns shall come to the man who smites and churns, And a crumbling slip or a sudden blast shall bring his song to an end at last.

"Clink, kerchug, clink, kerchug!"

No more it rings for the hole is drilled; wi th the rasp of the spoon the drift is filled; While down the spluttering fuse, the spark, creeps unto its master await in the dark.

"Boom! Boom!" Three words that come from the depth and gio And the mountain quakes and shakes and strains as the sullen master breaks his chains And into the drift with a grinding shock, tosses the -sreek of the shattered rock; While there in the drift all crushed and still, lies the man who hammered the ringing drill; "Clink, kerchug, clink, kerchug," a tomb for him, is the drift he dug, And never more where the wind is free, shall his song come softly up to r

THE TIMES' PRIZE CONTEST.

WHO THE WINNERS ARE AND HOW THEY WON.

T LAST the returns are all in from the great patriotic prize contest instituted by The Times for the benefit of the battleship fund, and to stimulate both the patriotism and the literary ability of the children in Southern California. The children have responded nobly. Nearly four hundred compositions were sent in, and those that were printed brought out a total of 35,049 notes. The names of the prize-winners have already been printed, and now it is time to give their pictures and the quaint little letters in which they tell how they did their electioneering.

To dear little Ruth Aubury belongs the first prize, as she received 5557 votes, the largest number sent in for any one composition. Ruth is only 8 years old, but she is the daughter of Lew Aubury, first sergeant of the Los Angeles Sharpsmooters, and, as she says, even the canaries in her home are patrictic. In case anyone has forgotten Ruth's composition, here lit is again:

canaries so pleased one other little girl that she not only worked hard to secure the prize for Ruth, but sent her a letter which ought to be the prelude to a warm friendship between the two little maids. Ruth was so delighted with it that she sent it to The Times for publication, and here it is;

"My dear Ruth: I have sent to the Times Office 300 and 80 votes, hoping you will get the prize. I have wanted to know you every since you won the third prize, at Christmas, and we had our pictures printed together. I got the 2nd prize. My address is 533 Fremont Ave., between 5th and 6th. Goodbye.

In answer to the request made by The Times that each prizewinner send a little account of the way in which the electioneering was managed, Ruth herself wrote this letter:

When the first day of May dawned we found three little birds in the nest:

Taffy and Trilby were very proud of their little birds. I did not know what to name them, when I happened to think Trilby would like to call them patriotic names, because she tried to raise the flag over her nest. So when Dewey's victory was known, I named the first one Dewey. When I read of Sampson I named the second after him. Then I kept on reading of our trave goldiers. The prettiest bird had not ver been named. I was going to name them, when I read about Hobson's bravery. So the last one I named Hobson.

Every day when I come from school I tell them all about the war, and their cage I trim with little flags, and sing our national songs to them.

Hobson is the best singer, and he seems to me to sing:

Harrah! Hurrah! we'll set the Cubans free!

Hurrah! Hurrah! for Dewey's victory!

We'll whip those naughty Spaniards, And we'll sink them in the sea, As we are sailing to Cuba.

And that is just what they will get for fooling with Uncle Sam.

The island of Cuba belonged to Spain, but that country was very cruel to the Cubans and tried to make them pay unjust taxes, so the Cubans wanted to free themselves and went to war. Spain sent hundreds of soldiers to Cuba to fight, but they didn't win; so they took the mothers, wives and children away from their nice farms to small cities and towns, and wouldn't give them anything to eat. They couldn't the soldiers is and boys whose big brothers

Our Navy Vindiented.

[Gunton's Magazine:] The other side of our exhibition, the navy, has also convinced the world of our unsuspected power. It was a byword that we had no navy, and nearly all Europe had believed that we were such a nation of purchasable politicians that corruption to the point of purchecities. of purchasable politicians that corruption to the point of putrefaction pervaded our political life. The constant yawping of our mugwump press against the integrity of our public men and political machinery was such that political machinery was such that political pestilence was assumed to pervade every department of our public life. Our ships were thought to have been built by corrupted contracts, and hence were only shoddy structures; and it was charged that jobbery so pervaded the navy yards, and especially building contracts, that our warships were little more than imposing structures of papier maché. Any European power which had a navy was supposed to be able to march up and either frighten or demolish the American navy in short order.

All this has disappeared. The world have disabused of this whole line the short disabused of the short line when the short line w In short order.

All this has disappeared. The world as been disabused of this whole line of flippant assumption regarding American public life and the integrity of its official conduct. Instead of this effete and impotent exhibition our navy has shown a scientific perfection, our ships a structure and endurance and efficiency, equalled in no other country. The Oregon, which was built on honor by the United States government, has shown an endurance and perfection and efficiency that no battleship in the world ever before revealed. It is not in the history of naval achievements that a ship of anything like her dimensions should steam at a high rate of speed thirteen thousand miles without an accident, without a stoppage for any sort of repairs or adjustment of machinery, and land home ready for battle the moment her bunkers were filled with coal. In this war our navy has performed feats such as no country can boast of. The engagement at Manila, in which the entire Spanish fleet was destroyed and not a single man in the American fleet it killed, has no equal in the history of naval warfare. Nor was this an accident. All investigation has shown that

"SAN DIEGO (Cal...) July 25, 1898.
To the Reader:
"My name is Harry Nason. I am 19 years old going on 11. I wrote a piece of poestry for the Los Angeles Times July 5th called "Helping Uncle Sam." I don't think it is the best, but I am going to try for one of the prizes, so I have thought of this idea. Please write from two to four of your friends a letter like this, and ask each one to write from two to four of your friends, and this will start a chain going from now to August 1st. Every persons getting a letter to cut out one or more coupons from The Los Angeles Times and send the coupons to The Times office at Los Angeles with Harry Nason, San Diego, written on the coupon.

THE NAVAL WATCH OFFICER.

DUTIES OF THE MEN WHO HAVE CHARGE OF A WARSHIP.

By a Special Contributor.

EWSPAPER readers notice from time to time in the columns de-voted to naval intelligence cer-tain items such as this: "Lieut. tain items such as this: "Lieut. John Smith, ordered to the New York as watch and division officer." The duties of the said Lieut. Smith are not rendered very plain to the average layman by the term "watch and division," but when a naval officer sees it inscribed on his department orders, he knows just what will be expected of him when he joins his ship.

There is never one minute in the life of a warship in commission when some officer is not in charge of her. The captain takes command during battle, and the executive officer generally has tain takes command during battle, and the executive officer generally has charge for a short time preceding breakfast, but day and night, in port or at sea, some stipulated officer, either a licutenant or an ensign, is on duty as officer of the deck. That is his official title, and as for his duties—they are as numerous as those attributed to the Poo Bah of Gilbert & Sullivan's famous comic opera.

In the first place the officer of the watch has the responsibility of the whole ship upon his shoulders. He is supposed to know everything that is going on, and to have eyes that will penetrate to the very double bottoms.

He is stationed on the quarter deck in pour on, and to have young on the penetrate to the very double bottoms. He is stationed on the quarter deck in port and on the flying bridge at sea. He has as assistants an officer of the forecastle, who is generally a naval cadet in rank, a quartermaster, who is armed with powerful binoculars and keeps diligent watch for approaching boats and signals from the flagship, and a couple of apprentices who act as messengers. With these as his staff, the officer of the deck is kept pretty well posted.

boats and signals from the flagship, and a couple of apprentices who act as messcagers. With these as his staff, the officer of the deck is kept pretty well posted.

The number of officers detailed to duty in charge of the deck varies on different ships. There are enough to allow for sufficient reliefs, and it seldom happens that a datch and division officer has to stand more than one watch-of four hours in twelve. To the young graduates from the Naval Academy, taking charge of the deck represents the acme of earthly bliss. To be able to don a sword and belt and to strut the quarterdeck with glass under arm is to imagine oneself at least a captain. Often, when in port, the young officer of the forecastle is given temporary charge aft for the purpose of drilling him in the duties. It is really edifying to note the important bearing of the cadet. He is a "bigger man than old Grant" for the moment, and he felivers his commands with the air of a Nelson.

While the Philadelphia was lying at the Brooklyn navy yard several years ago a young ensign, now in charge of one of the auxiliary cruisers off Cuba, was called aft one morning and placed in command of the deck. It happened that only one item remained on the list of the morning's duties, and that was to sweep the decks at seven bells. It was not a very martial command the cyce, but as the time approached, the officer (pro tem.) of the deck waxed extremely nervous. He imagined that the eyes of all hands were on him, and almost that the safety of the ship depended upon his giving the offer in the proper voice. At three minutes of seven bells he again scanned the order book. It read: "Seven bells: Pipe sweepers."

The man addressed sprang to his feet with finger touching cap. "Ay, ay, sir." he replied. Then, glancing hastily about, the scared officer muttered hoarsely. "Swipe peepers!"

It was an entirely new order to the boatswain's mate. He toouched his capingulringly. The ensign, more confused than ever, stammered desperately. "Peep swipers my man." His words were any means. Many a navel officer has bewailed the day a martial ambition called him into the service when he hears the rough tap of the orderly or messenger on his stateroom door, and is informed in a voice almost drowned in the shriek of the gale that it is "Ten minutes of eight bells, sir."

his salary is totally inadequate. Then ness in coming wars. It is a time when he can ponder over the emptiness of all earthly ambition, and feel that the life of a naval officer is not entirely filled with roses. It is that rain coats and ulsters and oilskins are both a delusion and a snare. The wind howls with demoniac force, the sleet or snowy spray has the sting of Mauser bullets, and the ship plunges and leaps like a cork at the mercy of a wind-swept mountain lake. Cases have been known in the service of men frozen to the very rail, and it was only a few months ago that a promising young ensign was carried to his death from the deck of a torpedo boat by a gigantic wave. He was in charge of the watch at the time.

THE WATCH ON THE BRIDGE.

It requires a thoroughly philosophical nature to be able to exchange a warm, reposeful stateroom for a cold, exposed, breeze-blown bridge on a freezing wintry night without grumbling. But it must be done and at once. In the navy it is an unpardonable sin to be late relieving, especially on a rough night. At exactly eight bells the officer, who has just put in four hours, expects to see his relief appear from below. If the latter does not step up the ladder very shortly after the sound of the last bell has died away, there is a hasty dispatch of messengers, and a vigorous flow of language.

In port, on calm summer nights, the duty is not hard. More effort is required to keep awake than to attend to the routino-work. Then the minutes slip past to the drowsy refrain of the dynamo engine far down in the lower levels of the hull, or the soft lap-caught on the recurring wave after being carried from the bridge and swept back on board. He is now one of Admiral Dewey's most trusted captains. The officer of the deck who comes off watch at midnight or at 4 in the morning, cannot recuperate from the labors of the night by sleeping until noon. He has other duties as pressing and important as those of standing watch. When he was ordered to his ship it was as a "watch and division officer." The latter term means that he is to take charge of one of the gun divisions on board.

A DIVISION OFFICER'S WORK.

A DIVISION OFFICER'S WORK.

Each ship is divided into a certain number of parts for the more effective placing and fighting of the crew. There are generally five, including the powder division (the latter having charge of magazines and the distribution of powder and ammunftion,) and it is to one of these that the deck officer is assigned immediately after joining the ship. He is required to take full command of his division, see that the men are drilled thoroughly and that they are in proper order at morning quarters and other ceremonies. He superintends the drawing of clothing and has general control of each individual member. The drillis in themselves take a considerable portion of his time, and it is seldom that he can call an hour his own, especially in the morning. Take it all in all there are few men ashore who labor harder for their money than the naval watch officer. His responsibilities are great and his pay is comparatively small.

If it was not for the fact that billed of "watch and division" office; is simply one rung in the long ladder of promotion that leads to fame and a settled income, there would be few incumbents in the position. The selaries of the ensigns, junior lieutenants and lieutenants who fill the grade ($1200, $180 and $2400 respectively.) scarcely suffice for the, wear and tear of brain tissue and nerves.

Charcoal is useful so often, particularly in the hot weather that it is well to remember that a broom stick, cut in convenient lengths and burnt black in the oven is an excellent homemade article. Some bits, renewed occasionally should be in milk cellar or ice box, one or two should always be put in birds or poultry after they are cleaned, if they are to stand any length of time. Remember that charcoal has the wonderful capacity of absorbind poisonous gases to the extent of 1000 times its own bulk.

If unpleasant breath is suspected, nibble a little of the "broom handle caramel," and it will cleanse the mouth and teeth thoroughly and make the opposite a certainty.

An excellent wash for the mouth and teeth and also for the hair is made by dissolving two ounces (about four even tablespoonfuls) of borax in three pints of boiling water, while still warm add to this a teaspoon of spirits of camphor. Bottle and keep on the washstand, when ready to use, add equal amount of warm water.

The very heavy rains of early spring has caused "poison ivy" to be more rampant than ever in country and suburban places this summer. At the slightest appearance of irritation of the skin, while in the neighborhood of this dangerous growth, rub olive oil carefully into the skin and instant relief is said to follow. This is also a remedy for insect stings.

To insure the proper drawing out of sait from meat or mackerel soak it over night in milk instead of water. Sour milk will answer as well as sweet.

A tough steak may be made tender if rubbed over night or for a few hours with baking soda (bicarbonate.) Wash very quickly, and dry before putting in a very hot frying pan. This is sometimes more convenient than broiling, and if the pan is properly hot and turning duly attended to, the result will be very similar.

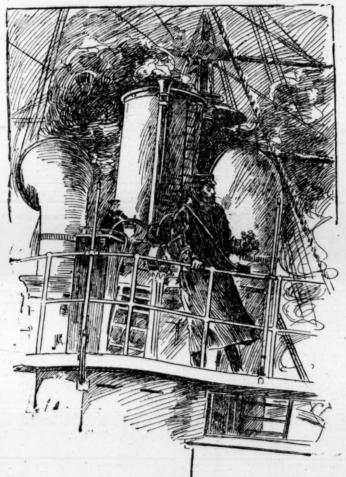

If eggs are short and icing is desired for cake, coak a tablespoonful of gelatin for a few minutes in the same amount of cold water, then add a table-spoonful of the cake while warm. When cold it cannot be distinguished from egg frosting.

Yellow frosting is made by beating until very light the yoke of two eggs with a cup of powdered sugar, flavor with vanila. This looks well on lady cake.

Even in the South, plums of various sorts are early and late in the market, and the juice, particularly of the damson, is so rich, both in flavor and golor, that it is well to preserve it while the fruit is plentiful. A plum cheese, very appetizing to spread on toast or bread and butter for breakfast, may be made from the plums left in the bag, if the juice is not drained too dry. Rub these through a coarse sieve, simmer until tender, then stir in a scant pint of granulated sugar to each pint of the fruit, bring to the boil, pour into cups or tumblers, and when cold cover like currant jelly. If a full plnt of sugar is used the cheese will be too hard to spread.

NOT FOR OUR OWN SAKE, BUT FOR THE SAKE

B I understand it, the United States went into this war against Spain in the cause of freedom. For three years Spain had been endeavoring to conquer these people. The means employed were savage. Hundreds of thousands were starved. Yet the Cubans, with great heroism, were continuing the struggle. In spite of their burned homes, their wasted fields, their dead comrades, the Cubans were not conquered, and still waged war. Under those circumstances we Under those circumstances said to Spain: "You must withdraw from the western world. The Cubans have the right to be free."

It was understood and declared at the time that we were not waging war for the sake of territory, that we were not trying to annex Cuba, but that we re moved by compassion—a com-ssion that became as stern as justice, did not think at the time there would be war. I supposed that the Spanish people had some sense, that they knew their own condition and the condition of this republic. But the improbable happened, and now, after the successes we have had, the end of the war appears to be in sight, and the question affess: "What thall we do with the Spanish islands that we have taken already, of that we may take before peace comes?"

CAN'T GIVE THE PHILIPPINES TO SPAIN.

SPAIN.

Of course we could not, without stultifying ourselves and committing the great; st of crimes, hand back Cuba to Spain. But to do that would be no more criminal, no more infamous than to hand back the Philippines. In those islands there are from 8,000,000 to 10,000,000 of people, and they have been robbed and enslaved by Spanish officers and soldiers. Undoubtedly they were savages when first found, and undoubtedly they are worse now than when discovered—more barbarous. They wouldn't make very good citiwhen discovered—more barbarous. They wouldn't make very good citizens of the United States; they are probably incapable of self-government, but no people can be ignorant enough to be justly robbed or savage enough to be rightly enslaved I think that we should keep the kelands, not for our own sake, but for the sake of these people.

"As far as the Philippines are concerned, I think that we should endeavor to civilize them, and to do this we should send teachers, not preachers. We should not endeavor to give them our superstition in place of Spanish superstition. They have had superstition enough. They don't need churches, they need schools. We should teach them our arts; how to cultivate the soil, how to manufacture the things they need. In other words; we should deal honestly with them and try our best to make them a self-supporting and a self-governing people. The eagle should spread its wings over those islands for that and for no other purpose. We cannot afford to give them to other nations or to throw fragments of them to the wild beasts of Europe. We cannot say to Russia: "You may have a part," and to Germany: "You may have a share," and to France: "You take something," and so divide out these people as thleves divide out these people as thleves divide out these people as theyer do. WON BY AMERICAN BRAVERY.

There is, moreover, a little sentiment mixed with this matter in my mind.

There is, moreover, a little sentiment mixed with this matter in my mind Manila Bay has been filled with American glory. There was won one of our greatest triumphs, one of the greatest navel victories of the world — won by American courage and genus. We can not allow any other nation to become the owner of the stage on which this American drama was played. I know that we can be of great assistance to the inhabitants of the Philippines. I know that we can be an unmixed blessing to them, and that is the only ambition I have in regard to those islands. I would no more think of handing them back to Spain than I would of butchering the entire population in cold blood. Spain is unfit to govern. Spain has always been a robber. She has never made an effort to civilize a human being. The history of Spain, I think, is the darkest page in the history of the world. not allow any other nation to become change it a little, then change it a little more, and maybe at last tell the truth. They never seem to dare to tell the truth at first, if the truth is bad. They put me in mind of the story of a man telegraphing to a wife about the condition of her husband. The first dispatch was, 'Your husband is well, never better.' The second was, 'Your husband is much worse but was, 'Your husband is much worse but we still have hope.' The fourth was, 'You may as well know the truth—we burled your husband yesterday.' That is about the way the Spanish people get their war news.

"That is why it may be incorrect to assume that peace is coming quickly. If the Spaniards were a normal people, who acted as other folks do, we might prophesy a speedy peace, but nobody has prophetic vision enough to tell what such a people will do. In spite of all appearances, and all our successes, and of all sense, the war may drag on. But I hope not, not only for our sake, but for the sake of the Spaniards themselves. I can't help thinking of the poor peasants who will be killed, neither can I help thinking of the poor peasants who will have to toil for many years on the melancholy fields of Spain to pay the costs of this war. I am sorry for them, and I am sorry also for the widows and orphans, and no one will be more delighted when peace comes.

CONSTITUTIONAL PHASE OF THE CONSTITUTIONAL PHASE OF THE QUESTION.

The argument has been advanced in the national Senate and elsewhere that

The argument has been advanced in the national Senate and elsewhere, that the Federal Constitution makes no provision for the holding of colonies or dependencies, such as the Philippines would be; that we can only acquire them as territories, and eventually must take them in as States, with their population of mixed and inferior races. That is hardly an effective argument. When this country was an infant, still in its cradle, George Washington gave the child some very good advice; told him to beware of entangling alliances, to stay at home, and attend to his own business. Under the circumstances this was all very good. But the infant has been growing, and the republic is now one of the most powerful nations in the world, and yet, from its infant days until now, good, conservative people have been repeataling about purchasing Louisiana, and many Senators and Congressmen became hysterical and predicted the fall of the republic if that was done. The same thing took place when we got 1,000,000 square miles from Mexico, and still again when we bought Alaska. These ideas about violating the Constitution and wrecking the republic were promulgated by our great and wise statesmen on all these previous cocasions, but after all the Constitution seems to have borne the strain. There seems to be as much liberty now as there was then, and in fact a great deal more. Our territories have given us not trouble, while they bave greatly added to our population and vastly increased our wealth.

Beside this, the statement of the dolen time, the wise men with whom wisdom was supposed to have perished, could not and did not inversine the im-our wealth.

Beside this, the statement of the olden time, the wise men with whom wisdom was supposed to have perished, could not and did not imagine the improvements that would take place after they were gone. In their time, practically speaking, it was further from New York to Buffalo than it is now from New York to San Francisco, and as far as the transportation of intelligence is concerned, San Francisco is as near New York as it would have been in their day had it been just across the Harlem River. Taking into consideration the railways, the telegraphs and the telephones, this country now, with its area of 3.500,000 square miles is not as large as the thirteen original colonies were; that is to say, the distances are more easily traveled and more easily overcome. In those days it required months and months to cross the continent. Now it is the work of four or five days.

CONSTITUTION CAN STAND EX-

ready to be admitted as a State. All this the Constitution can stand, and in it there is no danger of imperialism.

I believe in national growth. As a rule, the prosperous farmer wants to buy the land that adjoins him, and I think a prosperous nation has the ambition of growth. It is better to expand than to shrivel; and, if our Constitution is too narow to spread over the territory that we have the courage to acquire, why we can make a broader one. It is a very easy matter to make a constitution, and no human happiness, no prosperity, no progress should be sacrificed for the sake of a piece of paper with writing, and plenty of men to do the writing, and plenty of constitutions as secondary; they are means to an end, but the dear old conservative gentlemen seem to regard constitutions as ends in themselves. I have read what ex-President Cleveland had to say on this important subject, and I am happy to say that I entirely disagree with Senator Edmunds and with Mr. Bryan and with Senator Hoar, and with all the other gentlemen who wish to stop the growth of the republic. I want it to grow. Sometimes I have thought that there is only air enough on this hemisphere to float one flag, and in time that dream may come true.

DESTINY OF SPAIN'S ISLANDS.
As to the final destiny of the island possessions won from Spain, my idea is that the Philippine Islands will finally be free, protected, it may be, for a long time by the United States. I think Cuba will come to us for protection, naturally, and, so far as I am concerned, I want Cuba only when Cuba wants us. I think that Porto Rico and some of those islands will belong permanently to the United States, and I believe Cuba will finally become a part of our republic.

When the opponents of progress found that they couldn't make the American people take the back track by holding up their hands over the Constitution, they dragged in the Monroe doctrine. When we concluded not to allow Spain any longer to enslave her colonists in the New World, that was a very human and a very wise resolve, and it was strictly in accord with the Monroe doctrine. For the purpose of conquering Spain, we attacked her fleet in Manila Bay and destroyed it. I cannot conceive how that action of the Monroe doctrine. The mest that can be said is that it is an extension of that doctrine, and that we are now saying to Spain: "You shall not enslave, you shall not rob, anywhere that we have the power to prevent it" MONROE DOCTRINE NO BAR TO GROWTH.

GROWTH.

Having taken the Philippines, the same humanity that dictated the declaration of what is called the Monroe doctrine will force us to act there in accordance with the spirit of that doctrine. The other day I saw in the paper an extract, I think, from Goldwin Smith, in which he says that if we were to bombard Cadiz we would give up the Monroe doctrine. I do not see the application. We are at war with Spain and we have a right to invade that country, and the invasion would have nothing whatever to do with the Monroe doctrine. War being declared, we have the right to do anything consistent with civilized warfare to gain the victory. The bombardment of Cadiz would have no more to do with the Monroe doctrine than with the attraction of gravitation. If by the Monroe doctrine is meant that he have agreed to stay in this hemisphere and to prevent other nations from interfering with any people on this hemisphere, and if it is said that, growing out of this, is another doctrine, namely, that we are pledged not to interfere with any people living on the other hemisphere, then it might be called a violation of the Monroe doctrine for us to bombard Cadiz, But such is not the Monroe doctrine. If, we being at war with England, she should bombard the city of New York, or we should bombard some city of England, would anybody say that either nation had violated the Monroe doctrine? I do not see how that doctrine is involved, whether we fight at sea or on the territory of the enemy.

FIRST WAR FOR HUMANITY.

"At the same time I have a kind of pity for the Spanish people. I feel that they have been victims—victims of superstition. Their blood has been sucked their energies have been wasted and misdirected, and they excite my sympatises. Of course, there are many good Spanisards, good men, good women. Cervera appears to be a civilized man, a gentleman, and I feel obliged to him for his treatment of Hobson. The greatmass of the Spaniards, however, must be exceedingly ignorant, and as passionate as ignorant. Their so-called leaders dare not tell them the truth about the progress of this war. They seem to be afraid to state the facts. They always commence with the facts of the propers of the sandwich Islands, and that, in a short time, the people there will be succeeded and suggested and should be a facts. They always commence with the progress of this war, so far as I know, in the history of the world, that has been waged solely in the interest of humanity; the only war born of pity, of sympathy, and for that reason I have taken a deep interest in it, and I must say that I was grealy astonisting the victory of Admiral Dewey has shed the idea that the Constitution, having nothing in favor of it, where the propers of the sand the idea that the Constitution, having nothing in favor of it, where the victory of Admiral Dewey has done shows clearly that he is a man of thought, courage and of genius. are surpassingly wonderful. There are no words with which to describe such deeds—deeds that leap like flames above the clouds and glorify the whole heav-ens.

WAR PROVES ANGLO-SAXON SU-PERIORITY.

The Spanish have shown in this con-test that they possess courage, and they have displayed what you might call the heroism of desperation, but call the heroism of desperation, but the Ang2o-Saxon courage and cool-ness—courage not to be blinded by passion, courage that is the absolute servant of intelligence. The Anglo-Saxon has a fixedness of purpose that is never interfered with by feeling; he does not become enraged—he be-comes firm, unyielding, his mind is absolutely made, up cleaned legical absolutely made up, clasped, locked, and he carries out his will. With the Spaniard it is excitement, nervousness; he becomes frantic. I think this war has shown the superiority, not simply of our ships, or our armor or our guns, but the superiority of our men of our officers of our gunners. The courage of our army about Santiago was splendid, the steadiness and bravery of the volunteers magnificent. I think that what has already been done has given us the admiration of the civilized world.

I know, of course, that some countries hate us. Germany is filled with malice, and has been just on the crumbling edge of meanness for months, wishing but not daring to interfere; hateful, hostile, but keeping just within the overt act. We could teach Germany a lesson, and her ships would go down before ours just the same as the Spanish ships have done. Somehe becomes frantic. I think this war many a lesson, and her ships would go down before ours just the same as the Spanish ships have done. Sometimes I have almost wished that a fostile German shot might be fired. But I think we will get even with Germany and with France, at least I hope so.

And there is another thins I many and with France, at least I hope so.

And there is another thing I hope that the good feeling now existing between England and the United States may be eternal. In other words, I hope it will be to the interests of both to be friends. I think the English-speaking peoples are to rule this world they are the kings of invention, of manufactures, of commerce, of administration, and they have a higher conception of human liberty than any other people. Of course, they are not entirely free; they still have some of the rags and tatters and ravelings of superstition; but they are tatters and they are rags, and they are ravelings, and the people know it. And, besides all this, the English language holds the greatest literature of the world.

Her literary output is something prodigious, and it is truly said that if she would do less and give more time to it her work would be of uncommon excelence—as it is, it is amusing, but not literature. She began to write in 1878, in which year she was married to the Count de Martel de Janville, and took up her residence in Paris. Since then she has published twenty-seven books of fiction, and in addition to these she writes every week three or four columns for M. Edouard Drumont's paper, the Libre Parole.

GRAY-HAIRED officer who was a roommate of John Crittendon Watson in their schooldays at the Naval Academy, said the other day: "I remember Watson's favorite study was always history. He was enthusiastic over that, and was especially interested in the early history of Spain. He was familiar with every period in the story of that country, from the time, twenty-one hundred years ago, when the conquering Romans made a landing at what is now Barcelona, down to the years in which the cities of Iberia were the victims of sack and bombardment at the hands of Romans and Goth and Moors, and later from the British and French. Many a night when I have wanted to sleep I heve heard him hold fortm on the glories of those early days.

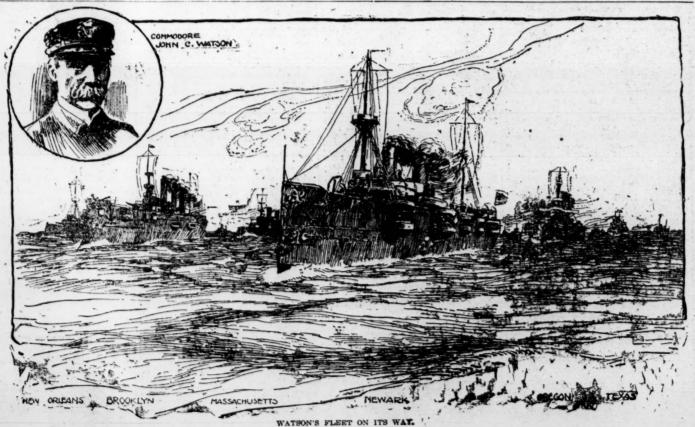

"Watson was always just as much of a fighter as a student, too, and we who knew the man can easily understand how his blood stirs as he realizes today that fate and the march of events have placed in his hand the pen (as represented by our mightlest squadson) with which another chapter in Spanish history will soon be written. Outside of navy circles, Commodore Watson is not so widely known as Rampson, or Schley, or Dewey, but with the men who serve under him he is as popular even as Schley. He is a fighter through and through. From the day when he helped lash Farragut to the mast down to the present time, he has always been equal to the task, whatever it may have been, and the Jackies on board the warships which will make up the transatlantic squadron are simply aching to get to Spain with the 'oid man,' for they are certain that they can equal the record of Manila and Santiago, if only they can meet Camara's fleet."

Watson is sesentially the man of the hour in his profession, and will not sail in ignorance of the task awaiting him. With the exact information of the Bureau of Naval Intelligence at his command, he will know the details of the coast fortifications of Spain as thoroughly as he does those of New York Harbor. He will have on his list of cities which he may be called upon to bombard s likely to prove highly effective because of the low bursting charge (ten pounds.) With skillful gunners some of the older Krupps and smooth-bores about Cadiz might be made of efficient service, because their location enables them to command a considerable range when fired at a high angle. But it is doubtful whether the Spanish gunners possess sufficient ingenuity to take advantage of this circumstance.

The city itself still retains the old wall, pierced with five gates, which stood during the invasions of the earlier centuries, and a number of guns are mounted here and there, but their purpose is more to impress than to defend. Forts Santa Catalina and San Sebastian are located on the extreme outer point of the promontory, and they are fully garrisoned by the so-called crack artillerymen of Spain. That their antiquated stone and brick ramparts will crumble into dust before the 10, 12 and 13-inch rifles of the Indiana, Oregon and Massachusetts is a foregone conclusion.

CARELESS OFFICERS AND POOR

CARELESS OFFICERS AND POOR GUNNERS.

GUNNERS.

After all, the weakest spot in Spain's defenses is the inefficiency of her gunners and the poor condition of the guns. The carelessness of Spanish officers in looking after such ordnance as they have is simply amazing. At the time when the correspondent was in Cadtz, he paid a visit to all the fortifications protecting the city. In the fort of San Sebastian, one of the principal defenses, which is so situated that it commands one face of the town, he noticed a Hontoria breech-loading gun of large caliber. The size and formidable appearance of the waspon invited a closer inspection, which resulted in the astounding discovery that a crack, carefully puttled, existed in the outer end of the breechblock. Idid not require a thorough knowledge of ordnance to realize that the gun could not be fired without positive danger of explosion, or that it had not been fired for some time. The noncommissioned officer of artillery, who acted as guard, merely shrugged his shoulders and laughed indifferently when the crack was pointed out. It is safe to conjecture that similar defects exist elsewhere in Spain's coast artillery. A similar incident was related to the correspondent in Lisbon by a French officer, who had been looking over the defenses of Barcelona. The Spanish captain who was showing the Frenchman over the batteries mentioned the fact that he had just received a 9-inch Armstrong gun, but that part of the breech mechanism was clipted to the conjecture of the conjectur the Frenchman over the batteries mentioned the fact that he had just received a 9-inch Armstrong gun, but that part of the breech mechanism was missing. To the officer's remark, "Of course, you won't mount it in that condition," the Spaniard replied: "Why not? It looks just as strong, and the inspector never examines the pieces closely." So long as he could fool the inspector, the officer was 'satisfied. The possibility that the gun might be found useless when it was needed against an enemy apparently did not occur to him. So, with the Spanish gunners. They take no pride in the condition of their pieces, and they get little practice. Such as they have is done with half or quarter charges. Spain has been too poor to afford full charges for her guns, in target work, and the result of this policy, or necessity, has been to prevent the possibility of developing efficient marksmen. At home, as in her colonies, Spain's fatal weakness will be found not in her guns, but in her gunnery.

her guns, but in her gunnery.

The coast ports of Spain, aside from those already mentioned, Santander, Ferrol, Coruna, Valencia, Alicante and Tarragone, are too unimportant to claim Commodore Watson's serious attention, and, as his instructions do not include an invasion, it is hardly probable he will make a demonstration in front of any of them. If the past results of the Spanish-American war offer any criterion, the mission of this modern armada will be fulfilled within a very few weeks after its arrival off the coast of the dons. And Commodore John Crittenden Watson's addition to the pages of Spain's history will have been written.

Delayed by contrary winds, and the sufferings of the crew and passengers from scorbut, the San Carlos did not reach the harbor of San Dlego until April 30, where it found already anchored the schooner San Antonio, or El Principe, under the command of Don Juan Perez, which had sailed from Cape San Lucas February 25, visited several points along the Coast, gone as far north as 34 deg. 40 min. latitude, and then returned south, entering the port of San Dlego April 11.

The first section of the overland expedition left Villacata March 24, 1769. It was composed of the captain, Don Fernando Rivera y Moncada, twenty-five of his soldiers of the presidio of Loretto; the pilot, Don José Canizares, charged with making the necessary astronomical observations; three muleers, forty-two Indians of Lower California, and the missionary, Father Crespi.

This party arrived in San Dlego May 14, 1769, without having experienced any other misfortune than the loss of many Indians, due to deaths and desertions. From this date, May 14, 1769, the beginning of the settlement and of the modern history of California may be counted.

The diary is not a high, literary production, but it is what is far more valuable, a true, terse and precise statement of facts as they occurred day by day, jotted down on paper after a hard day's travel, with the impressions still fresh upon the mind. This is what constitutes its great value and bigh interest. Every letter, every word in it breathes truth. There is no striving for bombastic effect, no flourishes of rhetoric; it is simply the recital in plain words of a journel into an unknown country. Still the descriptions and details given are set forth so clearly that anyone acquainted with the topography of the coast between San Diego and San Francisco will have little difficulty in following day by day the steps of their stopping places. As far as the English version is concerned, it has been the translator's object to give it as literally as the innate differences between both languages will permit, and as the often obscure text allows.

That Father Crespi was a keen observer and possessed of much practical sense, every line of his diary proves, and with a true spirit of prophecy, he points out many places as preëminently fit for settlements, which today are in truth the garden spots of the great State of California. There is no cant, no hypocrisy in the notes he nightly jotted down. They are the expression of love for humanity, the true religion—God's gift to man. Crespi was an admirer of nature and all her beauties; the fruits and flowers of California recalled to him his beloved Spain.

On January 24, 1770, the explorers returned to San Diego. April 16, Fray Junipero Serra, Constanzo and the surgeon started in the schooner "San Antonio" for Monterey, arriving at that port May 24. The Governor and the captain, together with the soldiers, left the next day overland for the same port and took almost the identical road traveled over by Crespi on the return journey.

SATURDAY, JULY 15, 1769.

At about 8 o'clock in the morning w At about 8 o'clock in the morning we broke camp, journeying in the same northwesterly direction. We climbed a large, grassy hill, without either stones or rocks, and found ourselves on large tablelands, having a good clay soil and well covered with pasture. Since leaving San Diego we have not met with any other rocks or trees, besides those in the cañada, and a few scrub oaks. We saw a bunch of seven antelopes running across the tableland, and hares and rabbits jumped up under our very feet. After traveling for about one and a half leagues we came to a beautiful cañada or valley, which at first sight seemed to us to be all gardens and fields. On a small knoll in this dale we noticed an Indian rancheria, with its grass huts, and no sooner had the gentiles perceived us than all, happy and content, came out on the road to meet us. We went down to this valley and found that its verdure is due to an abundance of exuberant wild squashes; there we also noticed many rosebushes of Castile. These Indians have a well near to their hamlet, in the dry bed of a creek. The valley runs from the southwest to the northwest, is about one league long by 400 varas wide, has the best of soils, and a few oaks and alders; we call it El Valle de Santa Isabel (Queen of Portugal.) Here we rested for a short while, so as to give the commandant an opportunity to distribute beads among the natives, and then continued on our way toward the northwest and through the same vallely, accompanied by an Indian, who on his own account had volunteered as a guide to our next camping place. At a distance of about half a league we found, at the end of the cañada, a pool of fairly sweet water, and there we discovered two well-made earthen water jars. From here we came in sight of another and still more fertile valley than the first, and went down to it, establishment therein of a mission under his patronage, because the site seems to us very proper and convenient for such a purpose. Today's journey consisted of three leagues and one-half.

SUNDAY, JULY 17, 1769.

Today both of us priests said mass, which all heard. At half past two in the afternoon we set out on our march, traveling to the north and northwest. After crossing the whole of the plain we climbed up a bare hill; shortly afterwardwe came to a small grove of to us unknown little trees, interspersed with a few scrub oaks, beyond which are extensive pasture-covered tablelands. Having journeyed for about two and one-half leagues, we descended into a very green cafada, its soil fertile, and with an abundant growth of alders. In this dale is a rancheria of Indians, who, as soon as they saw us coming, rushed out full of happines toward us, showed us a well they had dug for their own use, and as we understood it their desire was for us to stay. But as this was not the camping place decided upon, we only rested for a short time, and the commandant made a present of beads to the principal gentiles. We called this place "La Cafada del Triunfo de la Santissima Cruz," to which we prayed.

We again took up our march, accompanied by all the Indians, who informed us that another small watering place was ahead. At a distance of half a league, more or less, we came to a second little cafada with many oak trees, and there our guides showed us a small spring, bubbling among mulberry bushes, and near to an Indian rancheria, where we only found six women in whose possession we observed several well-made earthern pots and jars. To this place we gave the name of "El Ojito de la Cafada de los Encinos," After a league's travel, journeying across slightly rolling hills, rich in pasture, we rescended to another very green cafada of good black soil, and from there entered a new one, also abounding in verdure and pasture-clothed. Here we camped at the base of a hill having on two of its sides a spring, one with about one inch of water. We found it somewhat difficult Today both of us priests said mass, which all heard. Contiguous to this canada comes another having a rancheria, whose inhabitants, eight men, three women and four children, visited our camp at once. After the captain's harangue, all squatted down in perfect confidence like old friends. One of the Indians was smoking tobacco from a well-made clay bowl. We called this place "Sa Alejo." Our day's journey has been of four hour's duration, and we have covered a distance of nearly four leagues. The next day I observed the sun, and found that we are exactly in 33 deg.

LAY SERMONS.

WONDER if Christians generally appreciate the blessed privilege of prayer, which, when true and earn-est, takes the soul face to face with its Redeemer. The communion may its Redeemer. The communion may be intimate and sweet, and we may talk with God, feeling that He both hears and sees us. We are in as intimate touch with Him as with the dearest human friend—yes, more so, for He knows our every thought, our every need, our every desire. And God does not love to withhold anything from Eis children that it would be for their good to have, so we may go to Him confidently, knowing that He will answer our prayers as seemeth Him good.

A sense of loneliness is sometimes necessary for us that we may draw near unto Him. If we had our friends always about us, cheering us with loving ministrations, gladdening us with tender and pleasant companionship, we should not feel the need of His corriforting presence as we do when we are lonely and alone. Then it is that the heart cries out for God and His sustaining presence; then it is that we desire to abide in Him. As some one has said, "Abiding fully in Christ is a life of exquisite and overflowing happiness. As Christ gets more complete possession of the soul, it, enters into the joy of heaven, becomes its own, and that in full measure, and as an everabiding portion. Just as joy on earth is everywhere connected with the vine and its fruit, so joy is an essential characteristic of the life of the believer who fully abides in Christ, the Heavenly Vine."

We cannot see God, but the infinite sense of His presence and His care may be always with us. And, oh, the rest it brings. We can say nothing can ever be wrong with us if we are Christ's. We may have our triels, but they will be for our good, as the storm strengthens the vine that it does not break, and makes it bring forth more fruit. Abiding in Christ, we can never be alone. In the four of our greatest desolation we can hear His gracious voice saying: "I will not leave thee comfortless. Child of mine, look up; I will never leave nor forsake thee." It is a blessed thing to feel each night that we are "one day nearer home;" nearer our Father's House, nearer the joy of His visible presence, and the larger life, free from sin and sorrow. The Christian's life here should not be if he lived up to his privileges. The eye of faith would forever see the light, and the glory of the life immortal. It is only a little while that we have to carry life's burdens, and they are given us to strengthen us. How weak would be our arms if they were laden only with pleasure; how faltering our steps if they but trod the plains alone. The Hill Difficulty is a glorious thing

Gertrude Atherton says, apropos of American criticisms on her "international" novels: "The reason is a simple one—the Americans cannot stand criticism from any one. But criticism from an American-born who has taken up his residence in a foreign country and thus gained two ears instead of one, irritates and worries them out of all self-control, and perception of justice, If I romance about them they would beyond doubt, ignore me, but as I If I romance about them they would beyond doubt, ignore me, but as I have never in a single particular deviated from the truth, nor been gulity of an exaggeration, they have tried every possible method to frighten me into the peaceful realms of obscurity. Of course there are Americans and Americans. A large and enlightened class understand that the country needs an impartial the country needs an impartial critic more than any country on earth."

HE Island of Hayti, or Santo Domingo, as it is sometimes called, its past and its future, have become, of a sudden, not only interesting but important in view of the attitude the United States is certain to take all that concerns the West Indies. The acquisiton of Cuba means that eventually and at no very distant day perhaps, the United States will dominate if she does not absolutely Cuba's sister islands of the West Indies.

Therefore, the past of Hayti as it may hint of its future is of general interest and importance.

It was this mountainous Island that Columbus called Hispanola, and the French rechristened the Queen of the Antilles.

In order to understand the progressive changes which have taken place in the condition of Hayti and its evolution into its present republican form of government, one must begin at the very beginning.

"The island is believed to have contained at the time of its discovery by the Spaniards, above one million inhabitants of the Carrib tribe of In-by the Spaniards, above one million inhabitants of the Carrib tribe of Indians.

But incredible as it may appear, in consequence of this wholesale butchery by the Spaniards, and the severe drudgery they were compelled to undergo in the mines, the natives were reduced to about sixty thousand in the brief space of sixteen years.

The race of native Indians was soon entirely destroyed. Their place was at first supplied by Indians forcibly carried off from the Bahama Islands, and by adventurers from Spain and other European countries, and in the following century by the importation of vast numbers of negroes from Africa. The Spaniards retained possession of the whole island till 1665, when the French obtained a fotting on its west coasts and laid the foundations of a colony that afterward became so flourishing.

In 1691, Spain ceded to France half of the island, and in 1776 the possessions of France were still further increased.

of the island, and in 1776 the possessions of France were still further increased. From 1776 to 1789 the colony had attained the acme of its prosperity and its produce and commerce were then equal or superior to that of all the other West India Islands. Unhappily, this prosperity was as brief as it was signal, and the ruin that soon overwhelmed the colony was complete.

India Islands.

Unhappily, this prosperity was as brief as it was signal, and the ruin that soon overwhelmed the colony was complete.

In 1789 the population of the colony was 685,000. It exported that year 68,-000,000 pounds of coffee and 165,000,000 pounds of sugar.

Many French families of note had, emigrated to the island and settled on it as planters. Slaves were imported at the rate of 20,000 a year; in 1789 the black population was between five and six hundred thousand. The whites numbered only 40,000. But beside the whites and the negroes there was a third class arising from the intermixture of the white and negro races. There were various classes of these mulattoes; in all they numbered about thirty thousand.

The mulattoes were nominally free, but they occupied a very degraded social position. They were regarded as public property and were obliged to serve in the colonial militia without pay. They could hold no public trust, nor fill any of the liberal professions. They were not allowed to sit at table with a white man, or bear the same spot.

Such was the state of society in the colony of San Domingo in 1789 and 1780, when France was shaken by the revolution and the fall of Louis XVI.

San Domingo was not long in responding to the agitation that broke out in Paris.

When the celebrated declaration of rights, asserting all men to be "free and equal" reached the island, the whites looked upon their ruin as certain. The mulattoes believed the French to be their friends; they became turbulent and rose in arms; the uprising was however, soon put down. The negro population of the island remained quiet, the contagion of the revolution had excited in the colonies they adopted measures to allay the storm. They revoked all legislation relative to slave-holding in the colonies and left San Domingo virtually free to make its own laws in the matter. This gave great offense to a society in France known as the Amis des Noirs, which was devoted to the Interests of the blacks.

James Oge, a young mulatto who had been wrongs. A force of 200 mulattoes joined Oge. At the head of these he committed some outrages, until he was defeated by the French and forced to seek safety in the Spanish part of the island. The Governor-General demanded Oge from the Spaniards, and in March, 1791, the enthusiastic boy was broken alive upon the wheel. Fifteen executions' followed this futile uprising. The execution of Oge forever separated the whites and mulattoes. His death became the inspiration of his race. Before his death Oge had informed the French of an intended uprising among the blacks, but no attention was paid to this warning, and the French colonists were absolutely unprepared when the appalling news. Spread through the island that "the blacks had risen."

The outbreak had been fixed for the 23th of August, but the blacks, impatient as the time drew near, had commenced the insurrection on the night of the 22nd.

The slaves of the plantation Turpin headed by an English negro, set out at 10 o'clock at night; they were soon joined by the slaves of the adjacent plantations. They burned every house which they approached and murdered every white person, irrespective of age or sex, who fell into their hands: Every atrocity, attended this massacre. By morning they had devastated theentire plain of Cape Francois. The ranks of the rebels were increased at every step.

By morning they had devastated theentire plain of Cape Francois. The ranks of the rebels were increased at every step.

Gen. Tousard was sent against the rebels with a detachment of troops of the line, and the national guard, but he was soon recalled for the defense of Cape Francois. Fearful cruelties were practised upon both sides. Prisoners taken in battle were torn to pieces with red-hot pincers and fortures too terrible to contemplate were practised daily by the negro insurgents.

Their principal leader was a man named Jean Francois. Jeannot was another chief who arose at this time, He was an atroclous monster, and his barbarities revolted even his followers.
He was put to death by them.

The mulattoes also rose against the whites, and for a time general chaos reigned. Port au Prince was burned.
The whites were collected in the forts and citles, where they bade deflance to the insurgents.

The difficulties of the situation in Hayti were much increased by the unstable government at home: Decrees were constantly being made and repealed in Paris. Every ship that arrived from France might bring new commisioners or a new Governor. The year 1731 closed amid scenes of war and devastation. The mulattoes and blacks sometimes fought together, sometimes under separate banners.

Many of the colonists left the island, war was declared between France and sometimes fought together, sometimes under separate banners.

Many of the colonists left the island, war was declared between France and ongland, and in 1793 a British force landed on San Domingo. Later this force was increased and the English captured Port au Prince.

Alarmed, the French government abolished slavery and at the same time invited the blacks to join them against the English invaders. Several thousand did so, but the great majority joined Francois and Biasson, the negro chieftain, in the hills.

At this desperate recoup when blacks, mulattoes, French and English were all struggling for the possession of the island there arose a master spirit from the ranks of the slaves. This man was Toussiant L'Ouverture.

He was born in 1743, his father and mother laying heen slaves before him the ranks of the slaves. This man was Toussiant L'Ouverture,

He was born in 1743, his father and mother having been slaves before him. He was 48 when the first insurrection of the blacks took place in 1791. He did not join this insurrection. He protected his master and his master's interests faithfully, sending him money after he had fied to the United States. Once, however, these ties were broken Toussaint joined the blacks, and soon became the leader of the revolution. For awhile he served under the governor of the Spanish colony at the end of the island. Later he took the oath of fidelity to the French Republic and was made a brigadier-general. It was mainly through his genius that the English were finally driven from the island. In reward he was appointed lieutenant-governor of the island. Shortly after the French general. Laveaux, being recalled to France, Touissiant was created his successor as commander-in-chief of the French forces in St. Domingo. At the age of 53 after fifty years spent as a slave, Touissiant L'Ouverture was the virtual master of the island.

The condition of the colony improved The condition of the colony improved greatly, the blacks obeyed a leader of their own race, and submitted to discipline. Under Toussaint the colony knew a brief season of prosperity. By one pretext or another Toussaint sent the French commissioners back to Paris and virtually ruled the island himself. He promulgated a constitution, and was leading the island rapidly toward peace and prosperity when Napoleon decided upon his ruin.

To this end Napoleon sent an army of 25,000 men to Hayti under the command of Gen. Leclere, the husband of Pauline Bonaparte, who accompanied him. At the approach of the French fleet Toussaint summoned his old generals, Christophe and Deggalines, Laplume and Maurepas, and retired to the mountains with his army, Toussaint and Christophe were declared outlaws. A number of flerce battles were fought. The French then offered great inducements to Toussaint's followers; many deserted, and thus abandoned. Toussaint was forced to make terms. By the terms of the treaty he was to govern Hayti as hitherto, Leclere acting only in the capacity of French deputy. Toussaint retired to offe of his estates and peace seemed assured, when the island was startled by the intelligence that Toussaint had been seized in his house, and, with his family, conveyed aboard a French man-of-awr, which immediately sailed for France. Several of Toussaint's friends had been murdered in attempting to rescue him. Toussaint's old friends and generals at once arose in arms, led by Dessalines and Christophe. Battle after battle was fought, the negroes gaining steadily. Midst of this, Leclere died and Pauline Bonaparte returned to France with his body, and Rochambeau succeeded to the command of the French. War recommencing between England and France, an English fleet blockaded the island. Rochambeau saked assistance of France, but as none could be sent him, he was forced to evacuate the island, and toward the end of November, 1803, all the French troops left St. Domirgo. As Toussaint had died eight months before in a French prison Dessalines and Christopher were left the masters of Hayti. They proclaimed the independence of the island "in the name of the blacks and the people of color."

and "in the name of the blacks and the people of color."

On the 1st of January, 1804, at an assembly of the generals and chiefs of the army, the independence of the island was again solemnly declared. At this time to mark the formal renunciation of all connection with France, it was resolved that the name of the island be changed from St. Demingo to Hayti, the name given it by its original Indiah inhabitants.

Gen. Dessalines was appointed governor-general for life, with the privilege of naming his successor. On the 8th of October, 1804, Dessalines ascended the throne as James I. Emperor of Hayti. He was assassinated in October, two years later.

On the death of Dessalines, Christophe seized the government of the northern part of the island, and Petion, a mulatto general, assumed the government of the southern division. For several years these rivals carried on a war for supremacy, but after a time each left the other undisturbed.

war for supremacy, but after a time each left the other undisturbed.

Each governed in the manner of a president of a republic and these men were the first presidents that free Hayti knew. In 1811, Christophe converted his territory about a kingdom, which he ruled as an absolute monarch until 1820, when finding a revolt in progress which he could not subdue, he shot homself.

In 1818 Gen. Petion died. He was succeeded by Gen. Boyer, who, on the death of Christophe, became president of the republic of Hayti, which, as the Spanish portion of the island had come under his sway, now included all of Hayti.

all of Hayti.

It was during Boyer's administration that France recognized the independence of Hayti. In 1842 a revolution broke out and President Boyer fied to Jamaica. In 1844 the inhabitants of the Spanish portion revolted and formed themselves into a separate republic under the name of Santo Downings.

After various individuals had for a short time occupied the presidential chair of Hayti, the election fell upon Gen. Soulouque, who ascended the throne under the title of Emperor Faustin I.

Faustin I.

Since his fall Hayti has been governed as a republic. But the administration of its affairs, by its present rulers, gives no guarantee either of future prosperity, or peace, and it is not unlikely that the first republic in the West Indies will some day come under the sway of the first republic in the world.

AT THE THEATERS.

OR a fortnight past Los Angeles has enjoyed one of the most unique and delightful attractions ever seen on the stage of the Orpheum. It is superfluous to allude to the worldwide fame Mrs. Alice Shaw has won through her marvellous whistling; the wonder lies in the exquisite perfection of the art itself, and in the pluck and energy with which this petted society woman has risen above reverses and misfortunes. She has not only created a new art, but has achieved the far more difficult feat of gaining recognition for it among the great musicians.

When Alice Horton was the loveliest little madeap in Detroit, she used to whistle like a bird just because she was built that way and had not a care in the world. When Alice Shaw was left with five children to support and nothing to support them with, she developed her whistling into the art that has brought her fame and fortune. Her professional career has lasted just twelve years. During the earlier part of it she whistled exclusively in concerts and at private entertainments, and in this way she became the rage on both sides of the ocean. She ap-enthusiasm and love for our glorious national air. At the Orpheum Director Frankenstein has hammered in the fesson with so much patriotic persistence that it is now the marked exception when some hayseed or foreigner remains nailed to his or her chair while the "Star Spangled Banner" is played. The overwhelming majority, from boxes to gallery, springs to its feet with hearty alacrity as soon as the first chord crashes out, and sings the opening stanza with vim enough to shake the roof.

At the Burbank, too, the people are beginning to fall into the procession. In spite of the fact that for many weeks the beautifully trained orchestra down there has been playing patriotic airs with such delightful fire and verve that a mummy might emerge from its wrappings and march to the splendid free swing of them, the audience of loyal American citizens has hitherto simply settled down a little more solidly and ruminated over its gum or lemondrops in pastoral tranquillity while waiting for the curtain to rise on the next act. The other night one young man—all honor to the fine moral courage of him, had the pluck to stand up when he heard the "Star Spangled Banner," and to remain standing absolutely alone. At the end of the piece, Director West turned around and bowed a grateful acknowledgement to this one man who had not been ashamed to show his patriotism and the courtesy due to the national air of America. The example was a good one, and it has had its effect. Next night nine-tenths of the people rose, and one strong, deep voice trolled out the chorus in gallant style. Since then the custom has become established, and now Los Angeles is "right in it" with call other patriotic cities in the land.

Judging from certain subtle indications, it is dollars to doughnuts that constraint prevails just now in one Los Angeles family. It all happened at the Dewey Matinee, and the cause of it was that timid and innocent little ircenue who is billed as "Miss Norton." Owing to the crush last Wednesday afternoon it became necessary to put a number of chairs on the stage. In the front row on one side sat a substantial citizen and his frau. The children had evidently been left at home, much to mamma's subsequent relief. The worthy couple looked on approvingly until it came to Norton's monologue. Then the approval was confined to the countenance of papa. A coquettish smile spread in ripples across his cheeks until it submerged itself into the scanty locks behind his ears, and he recked not of the rigid gla robably reigns in one Los Angeles family.

Two successful debuts on the vaude-ville stage have been made at the Orpheum this week. The first was the opening performance of the unique musical act of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Goolman, the success of which augurs well for the future. Mr. Goolman has for some months managed the battery of percussion instruments that pertains to the Burbank orchestra, and the effectiveness of his work has been fully up to the general excellence of that organization. With the assistance of his wife, Mr. Goolman is putting on a musical turn that is fully equal to any of its kind on the vaudeville circuit. From Los Angeles Mr. and Mrs. Goolman go to the Orpheum at Kansas City and thence straight to New York, where they play this season with the Hyde Comedy Company. That they have many friends in Los Angeles who wish them success has been demonstrated by the number of bouquets that have been passed to them over the footlights during this first week of their vaudeville career.

The other new aspirant for musical honors is Nat. C. Brigham, whose sweet and sympathetic tenor voice has won so much applause during the past week. It has been currently believed that Mr. Brigham is a Los Angeles man, but this is not the fact. He is from Salt Lake City, but has been staying for some time in California. He has sung a great deal, but not professionally until he was persuaded by the managers of the San Francisco Orpheum to appear on the stage here in Los Angeles. His delightful ballads made a hit from the opening night, and if his reception in Los Angeles is any indication of general popularity, his success is assured. Mr. Brigham will sing at the Orpheum in San Francisco, and will appear in concerts, but as the health of his wife obliges him to live in California, he will not go East Just yet on the regular vaudeville circuit.

It all depends upon the health of pretty Julie Kingsley whether or not Los Angeles has seen the last of that funniest of comediettas, "Supper for Two," For the last week Miss Kingsley has ben almost too ill to appear on the stage, but she has risen gallantly to the occasion, every night, and has to the occasion every night, and has played her part with a spirit that left nothing lacking in the general hilarity of the piece. If she is well enough to appear in the new play, "Love and Law," it will be given during the third and last week of the stay. If not, the company will stick to "Supper for Two," in which Miss Kingsley's part is much less exacting. Los Angeles can easily stand another week of "Supper for Two," for it is one of the funciest skits ever put on the stage. It is true that Mr. Coote is all the funthere is, but he is enough to make a Dunkard laugh himself into spasms. The "business" of that piece is a work of art, and anything that might otherwise be lacking is fully supplied by Mr. Coote's own inimitable personality, and the delightful quality of his work in his own especial line of comedy.

The Chicago Chronicle says: "William H. Crane, when he exploited 'A Virginia Courtship' here, told the readers of this paper that he would not return to the coast again because it was impossible to get even fairly decent treatment at the hands of the newspapers there. He advised all his friends to keep away from that region and said all who went would live to regret it."

Mr. Crane is perhaps rather too sweeping in his assertions. Not all the newspapers of the Pacific Coast treated him, his company, or his plays ungenerously or unjustly, although it must be confessed that he and his attractions were lampooned by certain dramatic writers. That extremely bad judgment was shown in this, has been amply demonstrated by Mr. Crane's overwhelming success everywhere else in plays that were unmercifully slated by some of the papers in California.

demonstrated by Mr. Crane's overwhelming success everywhere else in plays that were unmercifully slated by some of the papers in California.

Prospects for Alice Neilsen's projected tour as a star are here set forth by the Chicago Chronicle: "Miss Alice Nielsem, for a few years past one of the most popular artists in the Bostonians' close musical corporation, now to set out as a star in light opera, passed through Chicago on her way to New York, where she is to begin rehearsals immediately for her starring tour. She has just returned from Japan, by way of Honolulu, and has benefited greatly by her rest.

"Since Miss Neilsen first joined the Bostonians and graduated from the Tivoli forces in San Francisco, she has had remarkable luck in obtaining parts suited to her. She has pleased the public almost invariably, and when she left the Bostonians she was probably as well liked as any other member of that band of singers.

"Frequently it is the cause for lamentation that young players and musicians yearn all too soon for the laurels of the favorites of the public, and start out to achieve fame at a time when they really have no right to expect recognition as the heads af their own companies. In the case of Miss Nielsen, however, it should be noted that the comparatively brief time that she has been prominently before operagoers is by no means a measure of her experience, as she had sung the standard repertory time and again in California prior to her success east of the Rockies.

"Spiking all critical guns by securing the best talent for the composition of her opera and the finest singers and comedians to assist her in its interpretation is a wise policy, and Miss Nielsen have position was written especially for her by Victor Herbert and Harry B. Smith, who have produced the best operas given this country of recent seasons.

"This work is called "The Fortune Tellers," and is said to advance the most ingenious and amusing story that Mr. Smith has yet supplied for an opera, while those who have heard part of the musi

The Pittsburgh Dispatch says: "Chautauqua has been regated by an address on the drama by a California educator named Dupont Syle. Enemies of the theater have heard a lot of unpleasant truths about themselves. Probably it is a good thing to bring home the truth as often as possible to those people who never invite it there themselves. We have our doubts on that score, however. It is an absolute fact that one may talk for days together at a person who has fixed opinions of a thing, without knowing why, and not have the slightest effect. The most difficult people to convince are those who formed their opinion on nothing. This sort of folk will not be influenced in the slightest degree by Prof. Syle's suggestion that the theater "had much better be accepted as an institution which can be reformed than decried as a thing essentially wicked in itself." The great hope is that the discourse will set others to thinking for themselves who have hitherto derived their opinions from those who have founded theirs on error.

peared in concerts at every court in Europe, except one. Queen Victoria, worthy soul, has adhered rigidly to the staid old British prejudice against "whistling girls and crowing Fens," and with true womanly obstinacy has declined to listen to the silvery piping of "la belle siffleuse," for very much the same reason that she gave for setting her stolid Guelphic countenance against all fluffy and frivolous fancies in dressing the hair.

Her Majesty's verdict that "whistling is indecorous and unwomanly" ôid not down Mrs. Shaw a little bit. She continued to whistle her way into the hearts of the people of her own set on both continents until it became evidet that there was more money in the career of a vaudeville star. When one is whistling for revenue it is just as well to have that revenue comfortably large.

Last year Mrs. Shaw decided that wandering about the country alone was not the bliss that people seemed to think, so she took her twin daughters from school and trained them to assist her. The result everyone has seen. It would be hard to imagine a more charming group on any stage than is made by this beautiful woman and her two slender young daughters as they stand side by side. Mrs. Shaw is a typical New York woman, well groomed, exquisitely gowned and per-are dressed as boy and girl, in the most brilliant and picturesque of all costumes. And that dance is the most bewitching thing ever seen outside of Buda-Pesth. These two tall. lithe young creatures, clean-limbed and satin-skinned as thoroughbreds, dance for the sheer love of music and motion. There is nothing of the soubrette swing, no effort at stage effect. They dance as the gypsies might dance, brimming over with youth and health, and the pure joy of being alive. The whole performance is idyllic.

The delicious camaraderie that exists between mother and daughters does not in the least interfere with the strictness of the training that keeps Ethel and Elsie so girlish and natural even in the artificial atmosphere of the stage. They have a charming home life even in their travels, for Mrs. Shaw has the true nomad instinct for settling comfortably into any environment.

From Los Angeles they go straight to Cleveland, O., and then fill engagements in the principal cities of the East preparatory to another European tour.

regious thought is founded would be in ashes.

"Reform the audiences," is Prof. Syle's cry. That is the correct way to reform the theater, because if there is uncleanliness in the theater it is just what the audiences demand of the manager. Just so soon as the people refuse to attend the bad performances there will be a change to higher standards. The manager is out to make money. He is governed in his actions by the necessities of the moment, just as the deacon of the church feels it no sin to get the better of his neighbor in a horse trade. It is business."

THE WEEK'S ATTRACTIONS.

THE WEEK'S ATTRACTIONS.

At the Burbank Theater the Bacon Company during the past week has been presenting an excellent production and performance of "Under the Polar Star" to a series of good houses. The company has shown itself to be thoroughly competent, and its efforts have been appreciated by the public. Beginning Monday night this company will present "Alabama," one of the best plays of its kind ever known in the history of the theater. The scene, the sentiment and the surroundings of "Alabama" are all of the South before the war. The entire action is outh of doors. The play is peetic, refined and full of delicate simplicity and tenderness. There are no blood-and-thunder parts, but the story told is extremely interesting. Augustus Thomas, the writer of "Alabama," is the first author to catch the dreamy fancy of the South without doing violence to the natural sentiment and humanity of that sunny region. "Alabama" has, it is said, all the quaint delicacy of a pastoral, yet it deals faithfully with fact, its poetry being the simple expression of genuine character. Every sentiment expressed in the play is on an exalted plane, in keeping with its brilliant literary character, and with the general excellence of the actors. Mr. Webster will play the part of Col. Preston, Mr. Bacon has the part of the bacen as Carey, one of the prettiest and most pathetic parts ever written. Smistress Page, Marie Howe will do both herself and the role justice. Miss Jennle Weldman will make her first appearance as Mrs. Stockton, while Miss Pursell will play her daughter, a very pretty part. The other parts of the play are well filled, and a delightful performance of a beautiful play is assured. "Alabama" is a clean, strong, pathetic drama, full of live, romance and fun, and a play that everybody is the better for seeing. The usual prices will prevail.

It is a legend in theatrical circles that an eastern doctor of Thespian tendencies, being asked what to take for billousness and consequent blues, thoughtlessly replied: "Take Joe Hart!"

tinge to their act; Sydney Norton and Miss Grant the same, while the bio-graph has new views to unfold.

The Orpheum is getting ready for another record-breaker. Next Tuesday afternoon will be given a matinée for the benfit of the Red Cross Society. It is a genuine, simon-pure benefit, too, for every dollar taken in will be turned over to the fund for the relief of the solidier boys. An all-star bill has been made up for this coming week, and the performers will all give their services toward fattening the Red Cross fund. Measured by the profits that have ben rolling in, it is a princely gift and one that will not lessen in any smallest degree the great popularity of the theater and its energetic manager. Mr. Rosenthal's enterprises are all conducted on a broad-gauge basis, and Los Angeles has cet to see his first failure to "get there."

There are fashions in all things, and why not in farce comedy? Joe Hart's plece, in which he will be seen with Miss DeMar at the Orpheum the com-Miss DeMar at the Orpheum the coming week, is an instance. The piece is entitled "The Quiet Mr. Gay." In the effete East, theater-goers have been treated to an epidemic of farces under such paradoxical and fantastic titles as this. There has been "The Wrong Mr. Wright," "The Good Mr. Best," and "The Swell Mrs. Fitz Swell." We shall have an inkling what this new school of farces is like when Joe Hart unfurls to us the adventures of the quiet Mr. Gay.

Chicago is to enlarge its importance as a booking center for theatrical attractions for the coming seegn. James S. Hutten, manager of the Lincoln Theater, will, on the commencement of the season, act as manager and local representative for a combination of theaters in Chicago, St. Louis and elsewhere. He has, in addition to renewing his lease of the Lincoln, leased the Alhambra, secured control of the bookings of another Chicago theater, and, it is asserted, has an option on a lease of the Schiller. The leasing of the Alhambra is asured, but no positive statement is made in regard to the Schiller. Managers Hutton and Hagan are reaching out for other theaters, with encouraging prospects for their acquisition.

Theatrical managers who conduct traveling companies are in a state of mind over the prospective trial engendered by the war revenue law of 1898. It appears that the great truth was flashed upon the fraternity when Leon G. Bailey, the legal representative of Lincoln J. Carter, called upon Collector F. E. Coyne and proffered $10 for a license enabling his client to take ten shows into forty-four States for fifty-two weeks. Collector Coyne, who is "a quick study," and knows the new revenue law backward, said, while he would like to accept the proffered feas an equivalent for allowing Mr. Carter's dramatic and pictorial lessons of patriotism to be spread broadcast, the construction of the law would not permit it on the $10 basis; in fact, the State license was $100 for each and every company.

Next season Tim Murphy is to appear in a play by Opie Read and Frank S. Pixley called "The Carpetbagger," and it is promised that there is a duel in the piece which is an absolute novelty. The exact nature of the weapons used is not made public, but they say that neither broadswords, rapiers or pistols will be used, and it is therefore an open choice between bowie knives, poison and kegs of powder. Any way, regardless of the actual novelity of the duel, Tim Murphy is such a elever actor and such a good fellow that the play will have to be pretty bad or he will make it successful.

Meanwhile she is enjoying daily drives in the parks of Chicago, though the initial trip of the drag proved unfortunate, inasmuch as the party were caucht out in the terrific halistorm, with the result that Papinta saw a Parislan parasol go to wreck in the ley bombardment and watched the colors fade from a new and costly costume.

Maurice Grau is but little behind Manager Ellis in announcing plans for his season of opera in America. The Metropolitan company will begin its work in Chicago in November, and then proceeds to New York, where it will doubtless remain until the artists return to Europe in the spring. Mr. Grau unquestionably knows what he is doing, for unless there has been an omission in the list cabled over here, this is the final and correct muster:

Mme, Brugere, by the way, is an American singer who is expected to make her mark. She is one of Mr. Grau's finds and has sung in Berlin a good deal, though she is not famous outside of Germany. Van Dyck, the tenor, who is said to threaten Jean de Reszke's supremacy, and Van Rooy, the bass, are to be depended upon for the big hits in this country. In London they have voted Van Rooy the greatest living bassocantante.

WEY DEWEY DID IT.

Naval Exhibit at Gmaha Which in a Measure Explains the Feat.

Since the welcome news of Admiral Dewey's remarkable victory at Manila on the 1st of May was published throughout the civilized world, it has been a matter for wonder everywhere, not less in the United States than in Europe, that the American gunners were able to were able to destroy a Spanish squad-ron in a Spanish harbor without the loss of a single American life. When history repeated itself at Santiago two months later the wonder was intensified.

In the Government building at the Transmississippi Exposition is an exhibit which in a measure explains the mystery. This is a naval range finder, the invention of a United States naval officer. Up to date no one outside of Uncle Sam's service has been able to discover how it is operated. The instrument is shown in a glass case with various other nautical paraphernalia, and of course the attendants refuse to answer questions as to its method of working.

In showing the enormous advantage and or course the attendants refuse to answer questions as to its method of working.

In showing the enormous advantage derived from the use of this instrument one of the naval officers in charge of the exhibit says;

"It is a fact that no other navy has any means of finding the range that does not involve a mathematical calculation. This implies a good deal of time lost, and in most cases they find it quicker to get the range by actual experiment. The Spaniards, for instance, have to fire several shots before they can get the range of one of Uncle Sam's ships. If their first shot falls short they try again and then they are apt to overshoot, and by that time the position of the vessels may have been altered and they are still at sea. Meanwhile the officer in the conning tower of the American ship has located them almost exactly with this instrument and reported the range by telephone to the various gun captains. This has only consumed a few seconds, and while the Spaniards are still trying to get their range, the shells from the American guns are sweeping their decks.

"The peculiar thing about the instrument." continued the officer. "is is one of the great mining centers of Bolivia. There are rich deposits of silver and in the Andes all about tin in the Andes all about it, and the work goes on in the mines night and day. There are rich copper mines on the Desagnadero River, not far from here, and the whole country, in fact, seems to be a bed of valuable minerals. In the Huanani (Wah-nah-ne) tin district there is a conical mountain, which has a network of tin veins, in some of which the pure ore has been followed down from the top of the mountain a disfrom the top of the mountain a distance of 600 feet. In the Avecaya district, near this, the tin lodes are from one to three feet thick, and now and then contain great masses of solid tin ore. Other veins are from six to eight ore. Other veins are from six to eight feet wide in places, and some of the ore is so pure that it is shipped to Europe as it comes from the mines. Other ore is crushed by means of rocking stones and is smelted on the spot in little blast furnaces and run into fifty-pound pigs. All of these tim mines are situated at least 14,000 feet above the sea.

a Scotchman named Andrew Penny, who came out here years ago as a common mechanic. He was a drunken sort of a fellow, and was by no means particular as to the character of his female friends. At least he married an Indian and was living with her when his mine began to produce fabulous amounts. It continued good and soon made him very wealthy. He invested some of his surplus in an estate in the old country and then died. By the Bolivian law his estate went to his wife and to his adopted son, who was a half breed. The widow concluded to go to Scotland and see if she could not capture the estate there. She failed, but her lawyer, who seems to have been as little particular as was the old Scotchman, made the ancient Indian widow a proposal of marriage and came back with her to Bolivia to live. The old lady soon died, and the now President of Bolivia was the lawyer who settled the estate. He did this in such a Scotchman named Andrew Penny, a way that for a consideration the Scotch lawyer husband withdrew, leaving the balance of the estate, including the mine, to the President and the adopted son. The President I am told, now owns five-eighths of the mine, and he has from it an income of something like fifty thousand Bolivian dollars a week, or more than $50,000 of our money a month. The mine has ore in sight for a long time to come, and as His Excellency is the President there is little danger of his title being disputed.

RURO (Bolivia,) July 20.—Oruro Is one of the great mining José. It was, I am told, discovered by

A VISIT TO A BOLIVIAN SILVER MINE.

Oruro is a mining town of 12,000 people. It makes you think of the larger villages of the valley of the people. It makes you think of the larger villages of the valley of the Nile, save that there is no green surrounding it. It lies at the edge of bare, gray hills in a desert. The streets are narrow. Most of them are unpaved and most of the houses are of one-story, thatched with straw. The town waterworks are mules, who carry barrels of this precious fluid about on their backs, and a large part of the population is made up of Quichua (Keech-wa) Indians. The most of the miners are half breeds or Cholos, and as mining is the chief industry, you see Cholos everywhere. There are also saloons everywhere. You know them by the little red flags which are stuck in balls over their doors. Just above the city on the mountain is the Chilean mine called Sacavon La Virgen. This is a famous old silver mine which has produced and is still producing vast quantities of silver. It has a capital of a million, and its stock is worth, I am told, 250 per cent. above par. I visited it today. The mine is managed by Englishmen, but the work in it is all done by Bolivians. The miners labor half naked in the tunnels, as the mine is like an oven and the means of ventilation are poor. They take out only the best of the ore, and this, when brought to the surface, is broken into little pieces by Indian women, who sort out the best and throw the poorer pieces away. There were several hundred of these women at work at the mouth of the mine at the time of my visit. They squat on the ground and break the ore with hammers. Nearly every one of them was chewing coco, and I could see the fat quids sticking out of the cheeks of many of them. They work from daylight until dark for what would be about 17 cents of our money per day. The miners receive about twice this amount. In all, 700 hands are employed, and this notwithstanding that a great deal of the work is done by machinery. One of the odd things about the mines is the fuel. This mine is 600 miles from the coast and 7500 miles from the coal mines of Australia. The result is that the freight on coal makes it cost $6.50 per hundred weight: which is too expensive for use. Its place is taken by the fuel of the country, which is llama manure. This is brought in on the backs of llamas in bags. It costs about 60 cents for 100 pounds, and 7600 pounds are required to run a forty-horse power engine for twenty-fourhours. In company with one of the managers of the mine, I went into the llama fuel pit, where 150,000 pounds of this stuff was stored. It did not smell at all bad, and walking over it was like tramping through gravel.

Spaniards forced the Indians to labor in them, and they burrowed through the earth, taking out only the richest parts of 'the viens.' The owners gave one-fifth of what they mined to the Spanish crown, and it is known that between the time of the coming of the Spaniards to Bolivia and the year 1800, the country produced more than three and one-third billion dollars in silver. From 1800 to 1825, when Bolivia secured her independence of Spain, sixty-seven million dollars were taken out of the mines, and up to the present it must be. I should say, a very low estimate to say that Bolivia has given the world the enormous amount of four billion dollars' worth of silver. The greater part of this metal came from the famous silver mountain of Potosi, the mines of which have produced more than three billion dollars' worth of silver. Today the Potosi mines are to a large extent exhausted, mines are to a large extent exhausted, and the town, which had at one time more than 100,000 people, has now hardly one-fourth of that number.

HOW THE PRESIDENT OF BO-LIVIA MADE A FORTUNE. At present Oruro is far greater as a mining center than Potosi. are some very rich mines here, and one not far from the city has netted the present President of Bolivia a are, I have been told, about two thousand different silver mines in that country, but owing to the low price of silver only a very few are now being worked. At Hualgayoc, in Northern Peru, just over the western range of the Andes, there are 400 silver mines within forty square leagues. Some of these mines produce as much as 300 cunces of silver to the ton, and the waste dumps will average, I am told, at least sixteen cunces per ton. The ore is mined by Indians, who are paid about 40 cents of our money per day. Their only tools are hammers, drills and rawhide sacks. They have neither picks nor shovels, and they burrow through the mountain like rats, taking out only the richest parts of the ore. They work almost naked, wearing only breech cloths about their waists, and as they work they utter weird and melancholy cries. All of the ore is carried out upon their backs. An Indian will carry 150 rounds. He will climb up ladders or utter weird and melancholy cries. All of the ore is carried out upon their backs. An Indian will carry 150 pounds. He will climb up ladders or notched sticks with such a load of ore upon his back and will go off on a dog trot with his burden. The ore is broken up into small pieces with hammers by children. It is then ground by circular stones being rolled about over it and then mixed with quicksilver after the patio process by about over it and then mixed with quicksilver after the patio process by driving mules around through it. These Hualgayoc mines are the ones which Humboldt says produced $33,-000,000 worth of silver in thirty years. Much of the ore is now reduced to a sulphide and taken on mules to the coast and shipped to Europe for further treatment. coast and shipp ther treatment.

THE CERRO DE PASCO MINES IN

The same sort of work goes on at the famous Cerro de Pasco mines in the Andes above Lima, and, in fact, in nearly all of the silver regions of Bolivia and Peru. The Cerro de Pasco mines which are now in active operation, number about three hundred, and there are 225 silver mines being worked at Yauli, on the Oroya rail road, about sixty miles away. Cerro de Pasco has always been thought to be the crater of an extinct volcano. It is situated about 14,000 feet above the sea, in one of the bleakest parts of the Andes. The town, which is now only one of about 5000 people, les in a basin surrounded by barren rocks. The deposits consist of a great body of low-grade silver ore, over a mile and a half long by three-quarters of a mile wide. This has been worked down to a depth of about 250 feet, and numerous tunnels have been run in at that level to drain the mines. The great trouble is the water, and further mining can only be done by lower tunnels or heavy pumps. Henry which is the water who ther mining can only be done by lower tunnels or heavy pumps. Henry Meiggs, the American engineer who constructed so many great works in Peru years ago, began a tunnel 150 feet below the present levels. The work was stopped, however, at a distance of 900 feet from the surface, and at present nothing is being done. The tunnel will need to be extended from 900 to 1800 feet further before ore is struck, and at the present low price 900 to 1800 feet further before ore is struck, and at the present low price of silver there is little prospect of this being attempted. Within a short time there has been something of a revival of the silver industry at Cerro de Pasco, owing to the copper ores lying under the low-grade silver ores, and the camp today is more one of copper than of silver. In the past the Cerro de Pasco mines have produced enormous quantities. Between 1630 and 1824 27,200 tons of pure silver were taken out of them, and the dumps of the mines, if they were scientifically worked, would bring a tortune. Twenty years ago Cerro de Pasco was turning out more than a million ounces of silver a year, and I am told that $60,000,000 worth of silver were was taken with from under the am told that $60,000,000 worth of silver was taken out from under the ground on which the town of Cerro de Pasco now stands. These mines were discovered in the seventeenth century by an Indian. He camped out one night near the site of Cerro de Pasco. Before going to sleep he built a fire upon some stones and awoke to find that his stones had melted and that a lump of silver slag had taken that a lump of silver slag had taken their place.

AN AMERICAN SMELTING WORKS IN THE ANDES.

The biggest Yankee enterprise have found in a mining way south of the equator is the smelting works of the Backus & Johnston Company at Casapalca, Peru. This company is composed of J. Backus, a Brooklyn man, who is a nephew of the famous engineer Meiggs; J. H. Johnston of Bath, who came out here to work on the Meiggs railways, and Capt. H. Guyer, the owner of the Guyer Springs in Idaho, who is well known as a practical miner and mining engineer in our Western States. Backus and Johnston made a nice thing in establishing a brewery at Lima. They imported machinery for it from the United States, and made money from the start. They sold the brewery some years ago to an English syndicate for $500,000 in gold. They have since been dealing in mines, and have put a great deal of money into their smelter. This is situated at Casapalca, on the Oroya railroad, away up in engineer Meiggs; J. H. Johnston of since been dealing in mines, and have put a great deal of money into their smelter. This is situated at Casapalca, on the Oroya railroad, away up in the Andes, ninety-five miles from the sea and 13,606 feet above it. The works run night and day, and I am told that they smelt to as good advaptage as any establishment of the United States. The superintendent of the smelter is Frank Pierce, the son of Richard R. Pierce of the well-known Argo Smelting Works of Denver, and the smelting is done after much the same plan as that of the Argo. The company also have extensive silver mines at Casapalca. Capt. Guyer told me that the profits of the mines and works during the past year were more than $100,000, while the profits of the year preceding were even were more than $100,000, while the profits of the year preceding were even greater. About five hundred men are employed, and the company controis the town of Casapalca, which has grown up about the works. The smelter was originally started on a smelter was originally started on a small scale to work over the dumps of the Ryo and other silver mines, of which there were something like 20, 000 tons at this point. Then the com-pany bought the Ryo copper and silver mine, and took a ten years' lease of the Carlos Francisco mine. Both of these mines had been worked from the surface for many years. Backus and Johnston decided to run a tunnel and Johnston decided to run a tunner into the mountain and strike the ore body 1700 feet below the upper workings. They did this, but failed to find pay dirt in the Ryo. A few months ago the tunnel was pushed on into the Francisco vein, and here a very rich body of ore was struck. I was shown speciment of the ore at Casapalea. Francisco vein, and here a very rich body of ore was struck. I was shown specimens of the ore at Casapalea. The vein is seven feet wide, and twenty inches of it assays, I am told, 150 ounces of silver to the ton. The tunnel is 3000 feet below the outcroppings of the ore, and it is believed that some rich pockets will be struck in working upward. This mine 18 worked after the approved American fashion. The tunnels have railroad fashion. The tunnels have railroad tracks in them and the ore when brought to the surface is sent to the mills on a gravity tramway. SMELTING FOR THE PERUVIANS.

In addition to their own ore the Backus and Johnston Company do a large business in smelting for the mines of Yauli and of Cerro de Pasco. The ore is carried from forty to seventy-five miles to the smelters on the backs-of llamas. Each of the llamas carries about 100 pounds, and they are driven here by the Iudians in herds of from twenty to fifty. It is not an uncommon thing for 1200 llamas to be unloaded in a day at Casapalca, and the yards of the smelter were full and the yards of the smelter were full of these curious beasts during the whole of my stay. It takes the llamas ten days to make the round trip from Cerro de Pasco, and about two days from Yauli. It is one of the curious features of freighting in the Andes that although Yauli is on the line of the railroad, just twenty-five miles from the smelting works, the ore can be brought that distance more cheaply on llama back than on the cars. In the same connection eggs and vegetables are sometimes carried down the mountains to the markets of the low-lands on llamas, although the railroad almost parallels the route of the llama trail.

There is another large smelter at the end of this railroad, at Antofagasta, on the sea. This smelter belongs to the famous Huanchaca Silver Mining the famous Huanchaca Silver Mining Company, which produces the creater part of the silver of Bolivia today. The smelting works are of vast extent, comparing in size with any in the United States. They have cost about two and one-half million American dollars, and smelt the ores of this company exclusively. It is a magnificent establishment, and is now well managed. well managed.

GOLD MINING IN PERU AND BO-

LIVIA.

I have already said something about gold mining in Bolivia. There is one thing which I failed to mention, and this applies to silver mines as well. This is the difficulty which I am informed exists of holding on to a good mine here without a lawsuit. Many of the notary publics, through whom the mines when discovered are taken. are said to be entirely unscrupulous and it is almost impossible to prevent A common thing is for the notary to issue papers to himself for the same property and to antedate them. If the mine turns out good he claims it by right of a prior title. Another method is to leave some im-Another method is to leave some important clause out of the papers so that it will furnish a ground for a defect of title, and a third method is to forge papers claiming and substantiating a prior title. I heard the other day of such papers being brought in evidence, in which the water marks on the paper showed that the paper. on the paper showed that the paper was made at a later date than at that at which the writing upon it was purported to have been filed. I am told I am told ported to have been filed. I am told that there are today but few mines of value in Bolivia which are in the hands of foreigners which have not law suits connected with them, and it behooves the American who comes here to watch his titles very carefully and to beware of trusting any one fur-ther than he can help. In Peru I un-derstand that the mining laws are more carefully worded and that the chances of fraud are considerably less. WHY THE SPANIARDS MADE FOR-

As to the existence of gold almost everywhere in these Andean mountains there is no doubt, but the findtains there is no doubt, but the finding it in paying quantities is a different thing. The amounts of treasure gathered by the Indians before the days of the Spaniards and since then have given a false idea of the richness of the country. In the days of the Incas these Indian chiefs, called kings by the Spaniards, had the masses as their slaves. They could put thousands of them at gold washing in the various rivers, and, though each thousands of them at gold washing in the various rivers, and, though each man got but little, the aggregate was large. There was little wear and tear on the gold dust gathered. It was not used as money, and but little of it went into the hands of the com-mon people. It accumulated as the ornaments of the nobles, and as deco-rations in the temples, and was conrations in the temples, and was consequently found in great quantities when the Spaniards came. The Spaniards themselves used the Indians as slaves, and worked them so hard that today the Indian population of both Bolivia and Peru is not one-tenth of what it was at the time of the invasion of Pizarro. The mineral region least prospected is that on the eastern side of the Andes. These parts of the country have been worked for years by savage Indians, who still bring gold to the settlements and dispose of it in way of trade. The, Indians are hostile to foreigners, and drive them out of their territory. The banks of the rivers are covered with a dense vegetation, and the elimate is drive them out of their territory. The banks of the rivers are covered with a dense vegetation, and the climate is in most parts malarious and very unhealthful. There are placer mines worked by the Indians on the Maranon, the Beni and Santiago Rivers, and on the latter I am told that the gravel often pans out two ounces to the yard. Many of the mountain streams were paved by the Incas during the dry seasons, when the water was low. The floods brought the self-down from the mountain, and this was low. The floods brought the water was low. The floods brought the set down from the mountain, and this was caught in the cobbles and cleaned up when the waters went down. I traveled for some days with an English mining engineer named Sharp, who has been sent out here by some London capitalists to investigate certain don capitalists to investigate certain properties. Said he: "So far as I have gone, and I have traveled extensively in the central parts of Peru, I find that the gold ledges are few and far between and very uncertain as to extent. The free gold has been pretty well worked out, and what is left is in iron pyrites, copper pyrites and arsenical pyrites, from which it is difficult to extract it. The mines are pockety and uncertain. Such mining as is done by the Perputage is effect. cult to extract it. The mines are pockety and uncertain. Such mining as is done by the Peruvians is after the most wasteful methods. They use the arastra process, and lose at least one-third of the gold."

SLEEP, MY LITTLE ONE, SLEEP.

A mother sat in the evening hour E'er the closing of the day. And her first born babe like an opening flower, On her soft white besom lay—.

While she slowly sung While she slowly sung In a goothing tongue That her baby might not weep, And the sweet reftain Of her dovelike strain Was "Sleep, my little one, sleep."

And her little one slumbered on In the evening twilight gray, In the evening twilight gray, But e'er the light of the day had gone It had slept its life away.

For her song's sweet sound Brought the angels round to With a silvery silent sweep, And their shadowy throng Took up the sons Of "Sleep, my little one, sleep."

"It were a pity." the angels said,
"That the innocent baby there.
Should ever stain its sunny head in this world of sorrow and care.

So they softly stole Its spotiess soul
Which tenderly they keep,
And their song of love
Which is heard above
Is "Sleep, my little one, sleep."

But the angels since have spoken
"Twere a sin to make them twain."
So the mother's heart has broken,
And she's gone to her child again.

And listeners say
That at close of day
A voice with fondness d 20. is heard afar From a distant star Singing, "Sleep, my little one, sleep."

Apricot Pitting Machine,

A CCORDING to the Santa Paula Chronicle, the Fidelity Machine Works has completed for S. W. Guiberson an apricot-pitting machine which promises to be a much greater success than anything yet built for the same purpose, Mr. Guiberson has been working on the machine for three years and has had two built before, which were not entrely satisfactory. The machine just built at the Fidelity shops was tested last Wednesday. It pitts and places on a tray in the proper manner for drying a box of apricots in six or seven minutes, the whole tray being filled at one fall of the twenty-six knives. The fruit is all cut properly, and 96 per cent, of the pits are thrown out, and it is but the work of a few seconds to toss the 4 per cent, of loose pits from the tray. It is too bad that the machine was not completed in time for this season's harvest. It is still in the Fidelity shops, where a few minor changes are being made upon it. Interested parties may well afford time for an examination of the new pitter. success than anything yet built for the Pumping Plants.

THE Anaheim Plain Dealer, in a recent issue, gives a detailed description of a number of pumping plants which have been established in Orange county for the development of Orange county for the development of water. It is claimed that during the past four years the development of water around Anaheim has grown from a few hundred gallons per day to millions of gallons. The Plain Dealer water around Anaheim has grown from a few hundred gallons per day to millions of gallons. The Plain Dealer says:

"To proceed to a general report of what actually has and is being done, the interview with E. P. Fowler is best to begin with, being the most satisfactory and complete the Plain Dealer on its tour was able to secure.

"In brief, Mr. Fowler has a perfect plant and is operating it with every success. It has made land valuable which, during this season at least, would be next to worthless without the assistance afforded. He pumps from three wells simultaneously. The depth of these range from 150 feet to 271 feet. A ten-horse power Union gasoline engine, which burns distillate and gasoline, supplies the power. Complete, the pumping outlit cost $1000. Sinking the wells, casing them complete cost $1 per foot. The plant has been in operation four years, and with the exception of two others is the oldest in the district visited. When operations commenced water had to be pumped eleven feet; that is, it stood in the wells that distance from the surface of the earth. Mr. Fowler now pumps twenty feet, but does not see in the decline anything to worry about. The dry weather experienced during the past-few years must have had effect upon streams beneath the surface as well as upon those on top, and a few years under average conditions he confidently believes, along with other owners of pumping plants interviewed, except one, will restore the old-time situation at the wells. From his wells Mr. Fowler pumps direct into a cement reservoir 100x100 of five feet depth, built at a cost of $800. It is an extra good job, has four-inch walls, does not leak, and holds 303,750 gallons. The extra thickness of walls, Mr. Fowler is now confident, is not needed, three inches of cement, in his opinion, being sufficient. Leading from this reservoir is a system of cement ditches as thorough and substantial in construction as the reservoir, and consequently constructed at a greater expense than the average ditch work. One-half mile carried one and three-eighth miles. A half a mile of the way is cement ditch. The men at work at the end of the run are given 100 inches straight ahead for ten hours. The pumping plant is then run four hours longer and the reservoir in that time filled and made ready for the resumption of irrigation in the run four hours longer and the reservoir in that time filled and made ready for the resumption of irrigation in the morning. The actual horse power required, as found by Mr. Fowler, to lift the water from the wells into the reservoir is twelve. The theoretical power is six. Over 600,000 gallons of water are pumped by the plant in fourteen hours. The actual figures are 723 13-16 gallons per minute. This is at a rate of over seventy-two miner's inches. The cost of operating the plant at this capacity is 15 cents per hour. This cost may be slightly increased at some future date by the necessity arising for dropping the wells deeper. That is all that is required to secure more water. The coarse gravel in which the pipes now rest is the bed from which an inexhaustible supply is to be drawn. The vital point is made in comparing the cost of water furnished Mr. Fowler by the water company and water furnished through his plant. The actual cost per acre, including labor of distributing it, of water from the water company, is $2.50. That produced by his own plant, including the cost of distributing it, is $2.50. all estimates are fiberal."

J. P. Neff irrigates seventy acres of orchard land set out in apricots, peaches, olives and walnuts from two 100-foot wells. He aims to run 120 inches, though he claims a capacity for his pump if needed of 250 inches. He coerates his plant by steam, using oil for fuel. With oil at $1 per barrel it costs him twenty-five cents an hour to run 1100 gallons per minute. Mr. Neff has operated his plant for five years. Three years ago he lifted water thirteen feet. He now lifts it twenty-six. His pipes etop in the coarse gravel bed. The splendid condition of his trees and the fine moist form his lands are in demonstrate the success with them which the conduct of his plant is attended.

P. H. Stanton and Alexander Henry each have new plants not yet running. They will start next week. Mr. Stanton has one well 199 feet deep resting in gravel. Water comes within fifteen feet of the surface. He expects to number about one hundred and twenty inches, and will convey over his nine-ty-acre place through 4-inch pipe. Four hundred feet with large hydrant attachments at intervals have been put down. A six-horse power gasoline engine. Fairbanks & Morse, is in place. A fine and very substantial reservoir has been put in.

gine. Fairbanks & Morse, is in place. A fine and very substantial reservoir has been put in.—

Mr. Henry will pump from two wells and has a splendid plant installed. One well is 600 and the other 250 feet. In boring the latter 100 feet of gravel and boulder were passed through. Every foot of the well through this 100 feet has been pierced and there is no question about supply. Water rises to within fifteen feet of the surface in both wells. A San Francisco tool company pump and six-horse power ensine are installed. Steam will furnish the power required. A ten-horse power boiler is ready for use. Either oil or wood can be used for fuel. Mr. Henry expects to get from 100 to 120 inches. With these he will irrigate his own sixty acres of orange land and pipe two miles through six-inch sewer pipe to land owned by San Francisco parties with whom he has contracted to furnish water for five years at eighty cents ber hour. He is putting in a 350,000 gailon reservoir, cement bottom and wood sides from which the water will be distributed.

"It is in the Garden Grove and Clair districts that the evidences of the presence of the pumping plant on all sides are the most numerous and the results most marked. Here prosperity, green fields, waving alfalfa, bright and heavily-laden orchards greet the visitor on all sides. The business-like exhaust and steady clip of engines on nearly every other ranch passed tells the secret. In the greater number of cases about Garden Grove the plants have been put in within the last year. The gravel in which the water is found is nearer the surface and the water is forced higher, it being hecessary to lift it in but few cases more than fifteen feet. In the larger number of instances the lift is between five and twelve feet. Some plants are now being put in—a Davis endless-chain and howeket pump, for instance, by J. W.

stances the lift is between five and twelve feet. Some plants are now being put in—a Davis endless-chain and bucket pump, for instance, by J. W. Hawkins at Garden Grove—to pump water for street sprinkling. Other plants are being prepared for, and next year this already well-supplied neighborhood will have a dozen or more first-class new plants. There are over twenty plants in operation about Garden Grove and Clair, and all with success. Each operator is satisfied and entertains anything but fear concerning the future. Only a few of them can be given mention, and that must be brief, though the information contained in the statements concerning the various local conditions found at the several wells is of interest and importance. The heart of the district visited, it is well to remember, is but five miles from Anaheim."

Anaheim."

In addition to these, a description is given of a number of smaller plants.

Of particular excellence and worthy of more extended notice than can here be given is the plant of William Newbery. He has two wells, 157 and 187 feet deep. Both rest in gravel and produce, with a twenty-foot lift, seventy-flive inches. A ten-horse power Weber gasoline engine gives good service operating a centrifugal Bryan & Jackson pump. Mr. Newbery pumps direct into three-eights of a mile of spiendidly built ditch, the contract price for which was $500. He hrrigates thoroughly and easily sixty acres. The pumping plant has been in operation one year, and cost a little over $1000. Mr. Newbery purchased all his fittings, pipe and supplies from the Crane Company of Los Angeles, which has supplied the greater part of such materials used by the plants in this section.

W. J. Fay has one of the finest and best-equipped plants visited. He prefers to consider it yet in the experimental stage, never having attempted to operate it as a business venture. He has two wells through the gravel and resting on clay, each 100 feet in depth. A twelve-horse power Union gasoline engine runs the pump. A half a cent brings up 1000 gallons of water from mineteen feet below the surface. Mr. Fay pumps into a cement reservoir with sides from 2½ to 3 inches thick all having a capacity for 500,000 gallon. The reservoir is 122x122 on top and 110x 110 on the bottom. The whole is painted with asphalt and Mr. Fay states, will not leak. He is skeptical as to the extent of the water supply present to be drawn upon, doubts the wisdom of putting in pumping plants from a business standpoint; thinks the windmill is the only profitable investment and cares to say nothing about his own plant, preferring those who ment and cares to say nothing about his own plant, preferring those who wish an opinion to see for themselves and form their own judgment.

Company is conducting an important dual enterprise in the shape of oil wells and pipe works. The Anaheim Plain Dealer says:

"The extent of the Santa Fé's investment at Richfield is not generally realized. A visit to the place to those who have not been there, is an eye-opener. "At the present time the pipe works of the railroad company are shut down. They will probably not reopen until in September. Three thousand

"At the present time the pipe works of the railroad company are shut down. They will probably not reopen until in September. Three thousand feet of the pipe, which is considered the most satisfactory known culvert material, are stored under the sheds at the works and ready for shipment whenever needed. This represents one-third of the output of the works since started last September, 9000 feet in all having been made. The works operate seven months to turn out this supply. The total amount of money paid out for labor during that time at the works was $8000. The bulk of this—nearly all of it—came direct to Anaheim.

"Enough has been demonstrated during the operation of the works to prove that they are a fixture, and by that is meant a success. Another thing shown is that there is an almost unlimited supply of the materials entering into the manufacture of the pipe immediately at the door of the works. Not only this, but the material is of the very best quality. The fact makes it certain that the works will never be moved, and that there is no occasion for the establishment of another plant of the same character on the Santa Fé system. That such a step was in contemplation is known, but the development of the vast resources of the Richfield territory through the richly productive search for materials settled the point, and the idea at first entertained of establishing a similar plant at San Bernardino was abandoned. The materials required in the manufacture of the pipe do not exist there to the extent that they do at Richfield, nor are they of as superior a quality."

"The pipe works, however, are a small matter at Richfield as compared with the railroad company's oil interests: L. W. Potter, whose official position at Richfield with the Santa Fé is that of operator, Is in fact the head representative there of the company. In addition to giving the wire occasional attention, Mr. Potter receives all the tion at Richfield with the Santa Fe is that of operator, Is in fact the head representative there of the company. In addition to giving the wire occasional attention, Mr. Potter receives all the oil produced at the wells and sees it safely into the storage tanks. Its shipment from the tanks is another matter requiring his immediate attention. He has supervision over all of the company's interests at Richfield, and has no superfluous time on his hands. Shipments from the storage tanks is now averaging two cars a day. The oil at the present time is teamed to the tanks from the wells. The teamster employed runs from eight to sixteen loads a day, as occasion may require. When a rush is on, sixteen loads are compelled per day.

"In a short time, it is certain, teams will be dispensed with entirely, it being the intention of the railroad company to put in a pipe line from the wells to the tanks. These stand alongside the railroad track at Richfield, stand pipes make it possible to load five cars at a-time. Ten wells are now in operation, and-through them the Santa Fé manages to exert a powerful influence on the oil market. Shrewd management and careful manipulation make it possible for the road through these wells to, in a measure, control the market, at least, so far as it is itself effected, as it does through its coal mines, the coal market. Some idea of the gains resulting from the operation of the wells, and the money put in circulation can be gathered from the statement that last month the income of Manager Dehaney, who located the wells, and developed them for the Santa Fé and has a contract calling for one-third of the sale price of each barrel, was $2000. No more wells are being sunk, but all the adjacent territory to the field is held under option by the Santa Fé. That the road intends to further develop the field in the future there is no question. That it realizes that it has a neat investment, in the field is also well known. Those in a position to know, however, do not expect that more wells will be sunk until Manager Dehaney's present contract expires. When that is through with development of the field will be commenced in earnest by the Santa Fé, and there are those who give figures and reasons for the belief that the oil production will be increased thousands of barrels there per day within a very short time after development commences. That there is oil there in great abundance, there is no manner condoubt."

last year, as the yield per acre is heavier.

"The factory will be started up about August 10 and a full crew of men will find work for several weeks converting the beets into sugar."

According to the Chino Champion the sugar factory will this year adopt a new system of sampling beets for the laboratory. Instead of selecting average sample beets, quartering them, grating and expressing the juice for the polariscope, as heretofore, a machine has been installed for rapidly plugging each of the beets in the baskets. The plugs extracted are ground and the juice extracted by what is called water digestion. It is claimed that this method is more correct than the old, inasmuch as there is no selection of beets, where preference might be shown. On the other hand, care must be exercised in the plugging, as it is well recognized that different parts of the same beet will show a very different sugar content and purity. The new plan is said to operate satisfactorily in Nebraska.

The sugar factory at Eddy. N. M. commenced work, according to the Argus, on July 29, working up the molasses held over from last year. This will take about two weeks. The factory will not start on beets until about October 15. The Argus says:

"Respecting the prosent condition of the beet crop, Manager Goetz states that the prospects are very satisfactory and encouraging. They are, in fact, much better than at any time in the previous two years, and there is no occsion to feel alarm over future possibilities. The caterpillars, which were on the crop a few weeks ago, and caused considerable apprehension, have almost entirely disappeared and apparently without material damage to the growing crop. All the fields are making excellent growth. Already beets weighing two pounds are being brought to the factory. A few farmers are still planting, and it is expected that slight plantings will be double that of last year, and the quality of the beets and the tonnage per acre will be far superior."

K ERN COUNTY will have some wheat this year. The Bakersfield Californion says:

"C. L. Conner of Bakersfield, super-intendent of the Kern County Land Company's ranches, was in town Tues-day on land office business. He says his company is harvesting 10,000 acres of wheat, planted in what was once the bottom of a lake, that is yielding from twenty to twenty-five sacks to the acre. The wheat was irrigated once last win-ter, and has grown thriftily ever since."

Germany. The Bakersfield Californian says:

"This week he will complete the purchase of ninety horses, which will make up the first lot ever sent direct from this State to the land of the Kaiser. The success of this shipment will mean much for California horsemen, as it will bring a score of New York buyers here to purchase our fast driving animals. Mr. Seligman shipped the first lot of driving horses ever sent from New York to Germany six years ago, and he has had much experience in that market. He believes that California horses will take the eye of the Germans and predicts that his 'pioneering' trip into this State will result in bringing many New York buyers here in the near future.

New York future.

"There are more good horses in California than any other State in the Union," said Mr. Seligman when a Republican reporter asked him in regard to his experience during the last five years.

"The horses are well bred, have good action, excellent feet and color," he continued. "also they appear to be exceptionally sound and free from blemishes.'

"The horses for shipment are drivers that can go a three-minute gait or under. From $50 to $100 is paid for these animals and they will bring several times that amount in Germany. The horses will be shipped by express in three cars and this will place them in New York with only a few days' travel.

Seligman is surprised at the lack "Mr. Seligman is surprised at the lack of attention that well-bred horses receive in this State. He said that fortunes in horse flesh are being allowed to run uncared for in the pastures of Tulare, Kings and Fresno counties. With a little attention he said the animals could be put in shape and sold at good figures. Most of the horses that he has purchased are from Tulare and Kings counties."

The Gila Valley.

THE Phoenix (Ariz.) Republican recently published the following interesting account of conditions and progress in the fertile Gila Valley:
"About five miles south and fourteen miles west from Phoenix is situated."

miles west from Phoenix is situated, the dam of the Buckeye canal. The location was made by J. L. Spain and M. M. Jackson in 1885. It was named by Mr. Jackson in memory of the State from which he hailed. In 1886 the above named gentlemen were joined by the late W. O. Neill, J. L. B. Alexander, J. M. and M. E. Clanton, John Collins, Eugene Jackson and some others from the Salt River Valley, and the construction of the canal inaugurated. In four years it was completed for a distance of twenty-nine miles, at a cost of $120,000.

"The canal is twenty feet in width at the head, the depth of water is from three and one-half to four feet, the average fall is twenty inches to the mile, but there is one-half mile where there is a fall of twelve feet and one mile in which the descent is twenty-two feet. The canal at present carries about eight thousand miner's inches of water, which is ample to irrigate 16,000 acres of land. There are now under cultivation between six and seven thousand acres. The average cost to consumers is less than $1.50$ per acre. The canal company at present receives nothing; the users of the water manage the property and keep the canal in repair as recompense for the water. The supply of water has never failed; in fact, were the canal enlarged to several times its present capacity there would be at all times sufficient water in the river to supply it. Occasionally when heavy rain storms prevail in the White Tank Mountains freshets result which cause breaks in the canal. They are readily repaired. This is the only intermission from continuous supply.

"The lands below the canal are all available for cultivation. There are coarse gravels, fine sandy, clayey and alluvial soils, all producing most generously when seeded and irrigated.

"Alfalfa is the principal crop, giving an enormous yield of most superior quality. As compared with that grown in California it is three to one, or 200 per cent, better—no refuse whatever. Five cuttings can be made per year, with an average yield of two tons to the acre for each cutting. It can be pastured the balance of the year, still maintaining a maximum stand. The water from the Gila carries so much silt or earthy matter in solution that each irrigation is a fertilizer that renews fully all that is removed from the soil by the crop. One pasture which had been continuously used as such for the past eight years, with

DR. C. H. WHITMAN, Koch Medical Institute, City-Dear Doctor: It gives me great pleasure to certify to the complete restoration of my health, and I take this opportunity of expressing my gratitude to my physicians, who were the medium through which this miraculous cure was effected. Consumption carried away my mother and two brothers, and. being familiar with the early symptoms of this dread disease, I readily recognized its inception in my own case, and lost no time in consulting my family physician, Dr. W. H. Smith of this city. After a careful examination he diagnosed my case lung and bronchial consumption: frankly admitted his inability to cure me, but referred me to you with the assurance that to his personal knowledge you had cured as bad cases as mine. At my request he accompanied me to your office, where I was reexamined by you, and a microscopical examination of my sputum was made in the presence of Dr. Smith and Dr. P. M. Reasner. The tubercular bacilit were found to be present, and the examination of my chest revealed the presence of tubercular deposit in the upper portion of both lungs.

I began at once taking your combined treatment, Improved Tuberculin and Ozomoru. I took no other medicine whatsoever, and in less than four months was a well man, absolutely free from any sign or sympton of my former trouble. It is said that "seeing is believing," and I herewith extend an invitation to everybody who may be interested in knowing the truth to see me. Such grand and giorious victories as YOU are winning in the saving of human life have never been equaled in the realm of science, and my most ardent wish is, that I may be permitted to do my share in this work by encouraging others who are afficted as I was to accept the opportunity offered by you and get cured.

Easiest thing avoided in the world, said my informant, James S. Day, "Never permit a hungry animal to go into an alfalfa field. Send in all with full stomachs and no danger of bloat. Yes," he further responded, 'the same will hold good with calves.'

"One field was pointed out containing thirty acres, which carried 100 head of cattle for a year. They were in prime condition. This is not regarded as exceptional in the vicinity. Wheat does remarkably well. We saw one crop just harvested that was sown April 15. The yield was upward of fifty bushels to the acre, the berries being very plump and even-sized, weighing fully 145 pounds to the sack. Ninety days from sowing to sacking is a record hard to beat. There were raised this year about four hundred acres of wheat and forty of barley, which also crops very heavily. German millet and Kaffir corn have been successfully grown in a small way."

"Some fields of Indian corn looked fully equal to those seen in the best seasons upon the plains of Kansas and Nebraska. It is not largely grown, however. The status of the crop was not asked. Fruits of all kinds do well, but are grown only for family use. Grapes succeed well, the old Mission and the Muscat being the favorites. R. TALMAGE'S life of Christ been issued in paper covers and is embellished with a great number of illustrations typical of scenes in Oriental lands and of events in the life of Christ.

Dr. Talmage's style is not a notably literary one, but, as his preface states, the book is not written for any one class of people, but for the masses, the process of the professional states. who, perhaps, do not demand great purity of style, though the wide popu-lar sales, in recent years, of a great number of works of notably literary character, rather belle this wide-spread notion. Dr. Talmage, however, is unnotion. A side from the always-interesting editoral résumé of the month, the Review of Reviews contributes a number of thoughtful special articles to the literature of public questions. "The Battle With Cervera's Fleet" is described by Winston Churchill, whose article is illustrated with reproductions from some remarkable photographs, taken from Mr. Hearst's yacht by a famous New York photographer, who accompanied the Journal editor to the scene of the famous fight. John A. Church, on "The Siege and Capture of Santiago." and Park Benjamin on "Our Eastern Squadron and its Commodore," offer other valuable views and reviews of the war situation. An estimate of Spanish character, by Sylvester Baxbi, and a discussion of French politics by Baron Pierre de Conbertin complete a list of timely and appropriate articles. Facts concerning the new possessions which have so suddenly loomed on our political horizon do not seem to stale with frequent discussion, and, indeed, each fresh point of view discloses new features of picturesque or political value enough to make the subject perpetually interesting. Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines may all be explored with entertaining guides if one will but study the Century for August. Frank A. Vanderlip writes of the Philippine group with a discussion of pending problems, and Wallace Cumming describes the city of Manila and its rovel customs. Surgeon-General George M. Sternberg, discussing "The Sanitary Regeneration of Havana," thinks that while it may be possible to put the city of Havana in such a sanitary condition that it would be exempt from yellow fever, the undertaking would be one of great magnitude, owing to the natural hold which the climate gives to the disease, and also to the fact that the present sanitary arrangements of the city are of the most primitive character. dered Camp" should be like. Joseph Cook surveys "Ultimate Imperial America," with many misgivings as to the wisdom of our new policy and a disposition to see only the obstacles in the path of conquest.

Literary Comment,

German Versatility.

I USED to be said that the peculiarity of German literature was that ther was no subject under the sun on which some German book could not be found. If this was true in the old days, there is no falling off in mod. orn times. Germany still leads the world in the number and variety of publications. The production of German books during the past forty years is thus analyzed in the Lelpsic Boerenblatt:

senblatt:
"In the first five years of the forty, viz, from 1856 to 1860, only 44,398 new books appeared; while in the last five years. 1891 to 1895, no fewer than 109, 788 were published, nearly two and a half times as many. Architecture, engineering and the healing art have the largest share in this increase, their out. put being more than fourfold greater; books in military science were almost three and three-quarterfold more numerous; manufactures and trade show an increase of about three and a half fold; art more than three and a quarter fold, while legal and political science have exactly tripled in number.—[Springfield Republican.

The Academy says that Charlotte's little water-color drawing of flowers fetched but a few shillings each. Some better sketches were bought at prices approaching a sovereign, and a spirited water-color drawing of her dog. Floss, chasing a bird, signed by Charlotte Brontë, suddenly fetched £12. Charlotte Brontë, shawl brough 16 shillings. A patchwork quilt worked by her, but unfinished, was good for 22 shillings. Her Morocco work-case, her tiny work-box with a pin-cushfon and a seal in it, and her tortoise-shell card-case brought only 10 shillings for the three. Several bidders were taken in with a little wooden box that had a pictured id, in which Charlotte kept buckles and ribbons (it still held these things;) this brought 15 shillings. A cameo brooch sold for 26 shillings, and a blue enamel thimblecase for a like sum. Charlotte Brontë's doll's cradle, a little bare oval basket, was put on the table without a smile and was taken from it without a pid. Two wisps of her hair were put up, and the only Brontë specialist present, bought them for £1 14s. and £3 4s.

The Author of the "Gadfly."
A recent number of the St. Paul Pioneer Press has an interesting account regarding the author of The Gadfly, which is already in the eleventh edition. Mrs. Voynich's malden name was Ethel Lillian Boole, and she was born some thirty-three years ago in Ireland; her parents, however, were English, and all her education was gained in London schools. Her life, which has been singularly free from startling events, forms a sharp contrast with that of her husband, who is a native of Lithuania in Russian Poland, and who, not approvling of Russian methods, located hlmself in England. He was never a Siberian exile, however, as has sometimes been stated. Here is where Mrs.
Voynich's own account of the The Gadfly, which is her first attempt in fiction:

"Fearing to produce immature work, I confined myself for some years to translating, chiefly from Russian literature. When at last I started my novel it took me a long time to write especially as the subject demanded some study of an obscure and indeed almost unexplored page of Italian history—the work of the intransigeant 'sects' in the four legations. Arthur, the hero of The Gadfly, is an entirely imaginary person. Both the plot and the character of the book are purely

'sects' in the four legations. Arthurthe hero of The Gadity, is an entirely imaginary person. Both the plot and the character of the book are purely fetitious. The only piece of actual history in my novel is the account of the conveying of firearms from the Lombardo-Venetian rising, from South-ampton, to Leghorn, and across Tuscany to Brisighella and Faenza; and the only historical persons are the smugglers, Marcone and Domenicchino, whom I knew personally in their old age. One of them, a Romagnol peasant, has lately died at the age of 87 in great poverty and utterly neglected and forgotten, after having done more for Italy than many persons to whose memory she has put up monuments. It is only fair to say that his poverty was, to some extent, voluntary; he had been offered a pension for having saved Garibaldi's life at the risk of his own. This pension he refused, saying he worked for Italy, not for money. The old man's name was Luigi Bassani."

Serial Story Placards.

Great as are the lengths to which advertising of books is pushed. Andrew Lang thinks that "more might be done." This is his suggestion, given in the July Longmans:

"Thus a new novel appears. You start advertising it on placards along the lines of railway from Thurso to London. You put a brief summary of the most exciting situations on posters in the fields beside the main lines, and the traveler picks up fragments which keenly excite his curlosity. Any one can see how this would work out in the case of Anthony Hope's 'Rupert of Hentzau,' though one need not say that Mr. Hope is the last person' to approve of the method. Still, it would be vastly exciting, and much more agreeable than the monotony of soap and pills. A joy would be added to travel, a charm of landscape, and how a work thus advertised would sell! But I want to know how Rupert missed Rudolph in the garret, and why Rupert, when he saw that Rudolph meant to make him shoot himself, did not fire off the barrels of the revolver into the air? This was an obvious expedient. But possibly Mr. Hope will explain all that in a later number. Meanwhile the legend is of paplitating interest in the Pail Mail Magazine. I pine to know whether Rudolph set up as a king for good and all, but fear that the story will not end well."

The Weight of a Reputation.

A correspondent of the Westminster Gazette is responsible for the following story of Mr. Zangwill's experience in sending a short poem, a number of years ago, to one of the best-known American monthly magazines:

"The poem came back by the first mail. But Mr. Zangwill kept it by him. and quite recently he sent it on again to the same magazine. This time, immediately on its receipt, he recived a cable from the proprietors of the magazine offering to buy the 'world rights,' and almost immediately they isused a huge poster intimating that their next issue would contain a poem by I. Zangwill. The poem was the same, word for word; but in the interim Mr. Zangwill had achieved fame, and his signature was worth money."

One of the friends of Mrs. Flora Annie Steel says that she frequently tells her daughter the plots of stories which are in her brain before she writes them down. One morning she related a story in this way, and then went to her own room to work it out. After awhile she came back, having written a tale quite unlike the one she had planned. She said: "It was most extraordinary.

I thought that there was a man in the room named Nathaniel James Cradock. He told me all about himself, and then he told me this story." The story was "In the Permanent Way," which many critics consider one of the best of Mrs. Steel's studies of native life. Several times since then she has received visits from Mr. Cradock, and the stories he tells her are always good. One of them is "The King's Wall."

In commenting upon M. Hugues Le Roux's new book, Nos Filles, the Paris correspondent of the London Academy says: "Only more astonishing than says: "Only more astonishing than the persistence with which men. write treatises upon women's characters, weaknesses and fashions is the patience with which women for centuries and centuries always receive these exhortations. Yet what a howl of ridicule and vexation would arise from masculine ranks if any woman were to dare comment in an entire volume devoted to the subject on the weaknesses and absurdities of men."

Fortunately for the peace of mind of the other passengers on the car, a woman—also in gala dress—knew 'thein well enough to ask with great aston-ishment:

"What in the world happened to you all?"

"Oh, haven't you heard? We are going to Mrs. H.'s reception."

"So am I. But I mean what has happened to your noses?"

"Nothing; our noses are all right. But haven't you heard about Mrs H.?"

"Not a word," said the mystified acquaintance.

"Why, she fell off her bleycle and skinned her poor nose. The cards were out already for this reception, and she felt so badly about her disfigurement that her dearest friends decided to show their sympathy by wearing the same kind of a nose to the reception."

The Practical Duke.

STORY about the Duke of Wel-A lington that illustrates the fantas-tic idea of honor held by many Spaniards, contrasted with the practical commonsense of Englishmen. the Duke was cooperating with the Spanish army in the Peninsula against Napoleon, he was desirous on one occasion during a general engagement that the general commanding the Spanish contingent should execute a certain movement on the field.

He communicated the wish to the Spaniard personally, and was some-what taken aback to be told that the honor of the King of Spain and his army would compel him to refuse the request unless Wellington, as a foreign officer graciously permitted to exist and officer graciously permitted to exist and fight on Spanish soil, should present the petition on his knees. The old Duke often used to tell the story afterward, and he would say: "Now, I was extremely anxious to have the movement executed, and I didn't care a 'two-penny damn' about getting on my knees, so down I pumped!"—[Washington Post.

WOMAN AND HOME.

COSTLY SIMPLICITY IS THE RAGE IN

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—This is the time of the year when the shopper's eccupation is gone. But every woman, who has a heart for clothes, is spreading her own plumes or noting the belongings of her feminine neighbors. Truth to tell, there is a very lively display of sartorical fancies to attract attention and nothing is of more interattention and nothing is of more interest to the curious than the smart outing costumes of women in mourning. A skirt of ink black pique, relieved by divers small flounces of black lawn, edged with white lace and every ruffle headed by a row of narrow, white braid, is sure to make a striking point in any landscape. With such a garment the mourners assume white pique coats, the broad revers, collar and cuffs of black pique, and this goes over a black muslin shirt waist, finely striped in white. Women who are not mourners wear short, white twill coats, faced on revers, cuffs and collars with a bright solid color.

Black and white flat straw, braided

Black and white flat straw, braided in sailor shape, is the choice hat among those who are in summer black, and instead of the sailor of familiar form a new variety is conspicuous. The French sailor it is called, having a rather small, high crown and a brim that is wider than usual, inclining distinctly down toward the face. The ribbon that clasps the crown is tied to one side and two narrow little streamers flutter over the right ear. On the whole these are more becoming than the hard and fast little head box we have worn so long, and united femininity seems to favor sailors of mixed straws. A plain, white, round straw, with a black or white ribbon band, is falling out of good grace, and if there is any generalization yet to be indulged in with regard to trimmed hats it is to comment on the multiplication of the small tall shapes. Women, whose clothes are significant of the future, certainly do not wear wide head pieces. They will tell you that the queer pretty crown-shaped affairs of tulle they go calling in, are Peter the Great hats; but so far you can't find one of these at the milliners. Explain what you want and she will mille a significant by and by smile, which plainly enough indicates that

There is a pretty plague of white leghorns raging in the country settlements this month—wide brimmed chilments this month—wide brimmed children's shapes and invariably trimmed one of two ways. Either a scarf of mouseline brilliante, striped with many rows of narrow yellow lace, ruffled on, is wound and knotted about the crown, or a Watteau wreath of pink roses encircles one-half of crown and low hanging brim, with tufts of green grenadine ribbon completing the decoration. One would think the period of dotage was falling earlier than hitherto on our women, if the wearing of these babyish hats can be taken as any indication. Mothers of well seasoned daughters pin these white and rose confections, fit for schoolgirls, on their grizzling heads and go forth content, conspicuous and ridiculous.

Beside the leghorn flats, women, who gather on green lawns at the thresholds of club houses of bright afternoons, display rather widish hats of deep yellow broom straw, fancifully trimmed with brown, gold and green field grasses, a dab of lace and maybe a knot of ribbon. The all-straw hat, though, is looked upon as the most distinctly fashionable head covering one can wear, and its vogue is strong with those who display very fetching organdles, muslins, lawn cross bars and such like extravagant simplicities.

Except a silk velvet dress trimmed with sable, there is scarcely another costume quite so costly as an all white muslin, for muslin brilliante is what the monitors of fashion have adopted. This is Swiss with a silk warp, and only the lower half of the bodice and upper half of the skirt are ever made of it. The sweet white gown calls for a deep flounce of tamboured cream net, and then on the foot of this must be close set muslin ruffles, all edged with narrow soft white gros-grain ribbon. At back and front the skirt must sweep the floor in order to bell out like the open petals of a lily. Tight white net sleeves require showers of little ribbonedged ruffles falling over the knuckles, and to cap the modish climax a big nosegay of white sweet peas should find lodgment on the left shoulder. There is always a deep-laid plot be-

There is always a deep-laid plot behind every apparently inexplicable whim of the changeful feminine tollet. Whosoever will take especial notice, at any swarming of pretty human butterflies, can easily guess why long skirts have been nominated in this season's bond of fragion. A woman whose gown is a couple of inches too long in front is obliged many, many times in an hour, to daintily lift up the front breadths, in order that she may not trip over. While so doing she does expose perhaps a triffe more of her green or gray suede gypsy shoes than one would ordinarily, or thus, by this artless manoeuver, call public attention to her Venetian slippers, both styles of footgear being eminently worthy of display and admiration.

A gypsy shoe is made of green glace kid with a low heel, a square toe and a chased silver buckle, connecting two straps that cross high on the instep. Very often a pretty pattern is cut or pressed into the leather, and green slik hose, exactly matching the shoe, are worn with this tidy slipper.

Venetian sandals are assumed chiefly at night, for dances and dinners. Their black satin vamps are cut as low as possible over the toe, which is rounded, and the heel is glided, to harmonize with the delicate geometric lines of gold embroidery that are fretted out over the black satin vamps are cut as low as possible over the toe, which is rounded, and the heel is glided, to harmonize with the delicate geometric lines of gold embroidery that are fretted out over the black background. Occasionally one sees worn with these black slik stockings, heavily interwoven with gold threads: but an unpleasant suspicion lingers that this type of hosiery never can be permitted to visit the wash tub. Most sensible and becoming of all the summer shoes seen so far are the Oxford ties of willow calf.

Women who boast that all summer long they wear nothing more costly than white duck and pique skirts and shirts, who cut these same skirts ankle short and who have discarded stiff linen collars for soft pique stocks, have t

That woman errs who adds to her toilet by day an undue amount of jewels. Last winter mock stones, elaboarate belt slides and fanciful chains and pins flashed forth from every fair caller, theater-goer, or even pedestrian. With the summer this habit has altered, and though semi-precious stones are as popular as ever, the cheap pretty make-believe, in an easily tarnished setting, has gone silently out in the dustpan. In a gathering of two hundred women on a casino or country clubhouse piazza the jewels displayed will only be seen at intervals, and those are very apt to be genuine. An exception must be made in favor of pearls. The machine made imitation of the oyster's product wreathes many fair throats, but a small, very white pearl is the kind usually adopted.

Numbers of women have a fad for collecting and wearing eccentric pearls; that is, in shape or color. These are real, however, and a goodly number come from our own rivers in the west. One of the new favorite ways of utilizing large irregularly formed pearls is to string three on a very fine gold thread. The thread is long enough to pass around the throat, the under the chin and have two ends hanging for about two or three inches. At the point where the thread its one large pearl is fixed, while two others finish off the ends of the fine chain. A large, queerly-shaped black, yellow and pink pearl is considered the most appropriate combination for such a necklace, else for a chain similarly worn on the arm.

Almost as lovely as the true gems

Almost as lovely as the true gems women wear are the sequins, cut from pink, white and smoked pearl, that glitter on some of the very new gowns. It does not require a visit to a fashion oracle to prohpesy that shell sequins will command a high place in the estimation of the well dressed in the months to come. Nothing yet produced in jet can equal the irridescent beauty of these small and large disks, cut from mussel, conche and oyster shells, highly polished, and fastened to the satin or net by a tiny hook in the back of each sequin. With this idealized and glittering wampum, flowers, leaves and fanciful patterns are outlined, and, on the very splendid gowns, the designs are filled in with heading or embroidery. So far only a little of the shell sequin work has been seen, and that, being a direct importation, is enormously expensive, but it is safe to reckon that the price will come down as soon as a large quantity of the new trimming is brought over.

As the vigilant cat observes the hole where the mouse went in, so must the carefully dressed, woman watch the skirts of her sister in fashion, in order to be ready for the next demonstration in drapery. A motion is undgubtedly being made in favor of turning what are now flounces into loops and falls of material, so soon as heavier goods than muslin and foulard come into use. Even the midsummer suits of cloth have braided fronts, detached from the skirt and falling, from the hips to below the knees, in acute or rounded points. They are chic enough in effect, while many of the voiles and delicate bareges are twitched up on the hips, to cast wrinkles toward the feet, and take away from the exact plainness of the skirt that has no salvation in the way of ruffles.

Conclusions galore and very trustworthy ones, as to what the mondaines are wearing of wearing, can be drawn from the five figures of buil and dinner costumes given here. From slipper to toe to topmost curl these sketched beauties are synonymous with the best that is appearing at any one of the large watering places.

The first toilet in the row is a twilight grey satin, cut Princess fashion, and boasts one of the novelty bodices. For all its decoration, this dress depends on wisely administered designs in smoked and pink pearl sequins, and on a shower flounce of palest green chiffon, tapering to the waist line and from the waist to spreading fulness below the knee. In this instance the hair is dressed after the last orders from Paris. That is, very high on the head in a small curly tuft that is braced by two bands of pearls.

Not less refreshing, for its departure in detail from all well copied modes, is the second design. The taffeta silk skirt of this subject is of a popular color known as violet and silver. That is, a pure violet shot with silver and its rear breadths are flounced up to the waist with white muslin brilliante. Draped over the top of the low cut body is a scarf of white muslin, while the shoulder straps are formed of a series of gold cameo brooches, set about with pearls.

A trained dinner gown of white satin is shown in the third figure. Garnishment in the form of white Limerick lace is displayed in a fan drapery on the long rear folds of satin, and a similar arrangement of lace on the body is caucht with a jeweled pin at the waist line.

A suggestion in evening wraps is afforded by the fourth figure, Here we have the usual shawl shape and the wrap is made either of satin, or white summer-weight broadcloth with a satin flounce on the edge. Full frills of silk muslin line the high collar and a kerchief of the same falls over the shoulders.

A simple study in white swiss is offered by the last figure. Flounces edged with narrow white setting the same falls over the shoulders.

A simple study in white swiss is offered by the last figure. Flounces edged with narrow, white satin ribbon are set on panier fashion, a bunch of vellow roses is fastened amid the front drapery of the bodice, while quillings of narrow, yellow ribbon form a series of wired loops that pass over the arms and shoulders.

A Charming mode is that for little boys who dress for the evening in either white from top to toe or in white save the small coat cut like the father's dinner coat. Such, at least, is the mode for young gentlemen who are in schools preparatory for the college career, and the white is duck. White canyas shoes and a high turn-over collar, with a white silk four-in-hand is the preper arrangement, while mothers who guard the good form of their son's clothes no longer part their hair in the middle.

TWO WOMEN MONKS.

SWAMI AEHAYANANDA EXFLAINS

THE HINDOO RELIGION, [BY A SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.]

There is no ground too sacred for the American woman to tread, no holy of holies too awe-inspiring for her to penetrate; as witness the first of her race, and only the second woman west of the Orient was the other day in Chicago ordained as a Swami, which, according to the tents of the Hindoo scaling constitutes her a god. Mrs. religion, constitutes her a god. Mrs. L. V. Comer who was, the Syami Shraddananda that is, was inducted into this philosophy and litiated into the order by the Swami Abhayananda, the first woman, and indeed the first person of the western world to be thus exalted.

person of the western world to be thus exalted.

Swami Abhayananda is a keenly intellectual French woman, who had for many years been a student of philosophy, when the famous Vivekananda came to this country to represent the Hindoo faith at the World's Congress of Religions. She lost no time in placing herself under his tutelage, and later became a priestess of the Oriental cult, which is, by the way, the oldest order of monks in the world, and of Hindoo origin.

In order to become a member of this body, one is supposed to have passed through some extraordinary spiritual experiences, and by study and meditation to have arrived at that high state of soul-development, where all desires for wealth, power and fame vanish, and all ideas of separateness or attachment to personalities are merged into the infinite. One then voluntarily relinquishes family and name, and takes upon himself or herself the vows of celibacy, continence, poverty, non-resistance and service to all beings of the universe.

resistance and service to all beings withe universe.

Swami Abhayananda came to America when a young woman—though she still speaks English with an accent—and lived for many years in New York where she was initiated into hermystic faith. This imposing ceremony has, by the way, never been performed in Europe. For some time she taught in New York, but came to Chicago in New York, but came to Chicago two or three years ago, where she continues to be at the head of the order in this country. She has cuite a large following in the western city, and may be found at almost any hour in the rooms of the Adwalta Society on Twenty-fourth street.

One cannot look at this nobly proportioned French womon with her fine, strong, expressive face and distinctive personality, and not be convinced of her power; nor come to comprehend the simplicity of her life and environment without feeling that in espousing pov-erty and service she has in reality eliminated from life half of its weari-some details.

eliminated from life half of its wearlsome details.

Her iron-gray hair, for instance, framed her face with its full pompadour, need never give her an instant's uneasiness as to how she shall wear it, nor consume any time in its arrangement; while her costume gives that delightful freedom from the multability

this side the Orient who have donned it—universally becoming.

THE SWAMI COSTUME.

The robe is always of ochre hue signifying purification by fire. It is made in something the form of a scant princess, open all the way down, but held in place by buttons, and reaching to within two or three inches of the floor, a convenient walking length and quite effective with tan shoes. If buttoned to the right it signifies that one is a Brahman; otherwise it may indicate some other branch of redgion. In this country, of course, one must use such materials as are at hand, and soft cashmeres and crepons seem the most suitable. Hindoo beads, also of ochre, are worn on occasions and add a certan air of mysticism to the costume.

One might conclude that the robe as a whole was intended to stand for comfort, but instead it symobilzes universal love. It is fitted loosely to the figure and is girdled with a silken sash wound twice around the waist to signify twice born. One end of the sash is made into a bag signifying forestry; this was originally for the convenience of the founders of the order who dwelt in forests and used it as the receptacle for their scanty fare. In those days, however, the sash was probably not made of silk, and certainly in these days the monks, male or female, do not take to the woods, but live in comfortable homes and are evidently sufficiently well fed.

My curiosity was piqued as to fine ways and means in which one who has taken the vows of poverty, manages that part of the programme, since in this practical age, food and shelter are unfortunately not secured without money and without price. I found that the Swami preaches, teaches, holds classes and meditations, etc., and the followers of her cult contribute what they choose to her support.

"How wis it, Swami Abhayananada," asked the worldly interviewer, "that the idea of equal rights came to percolate this gneient order? When were women first admitted to its mystic rites?"

"Ah, Madame!" replied the swami.

"in the world of the spirit there is no sex. Members of our order are well her men nor women, but souls. Sex is but a phenomonon, a mere wave upon the surface, while the soul is the deep, quilet; changeless ocean that exists from century to century, now in one form, now in another. You may be a man in one incarnation, and a woman in the next, according to the nature of your development. The dudes, for instance, who mark the degeneracy of this generation, will be women in their next incarnation, and women of a low order of intelligence, too, while the strong, stalwart, earnest women of today, like Susan B. Anthony and Julia Ward Howe, will be men and leaders of men in their next stage of development. Women as such have never been recognized by this order; but any human creature who has become dead to the world, and desires to live 'after the spirit' has been welcome to the brotherhood from its most ancient days. There is no distinction in the costume. We are all monks and wear the ochre robe."

"Have many Indian women joined the order?"

"I believe not a large number."
"Does your renunciation bring hap-

"But one must live," was insisted.

"Oh, yes; but our life is so simple that it costs next to nothing. Of course by the spirit of our religion we are vegetarions."

"Meat is then prohibited?"

"We are forbidden, nothing. There is not a 'thou shalt not' in our whole code. But we could take upon ourselves the vow of service to all living beings, animals included, and then use the latter as food."

alimais included, and then use the latter as food."

"Do you claim to preach Buddhism?"

"Our order does not acknowledge race, sex or creed, or rather, it is the epitome of all races and creeds. You notice there back of our altar pictures of the Christ, saints of both the Episcopal and Catholic church, dark-hued prophets of the Orient. Buddha, etc. Here I preach Jesus of Nazareth as he is the manifestation accepted in the western world, and indeed the highest of all manifestations; but among the Mohammedans. I should teach the same spiritual truths with Mahomet as their exponent. Our faith is the synthesis of all religions, mornalities and philosophies. "That which exists is one, men call it variously."

order making in this most modern of American cities?"
"The thought is growing rapidly. The women of New York are inclined to take up the study of Buddhistic philosophy as a fad; but the women of Chicago have gone into the subject carnestly, and are more ready to accept it as a religion."

The name of the Swamis all terminate in "ananda," which signifies bilss. Abhayananda meaning freedom and bilss; Shraddanada, the name of the new convert, faith and bilss. Once having taken orders, the previous name and environment of the monk are supposed to have passed into utter oblivion. Like her spiritual mether, the first American recruit will preach and teach. The saving grace of this as of all religions, worthy the name, is that it teaches unselfishness and universal tove as the highest law.

Figure 2 shows the manner of connecting the flag to the flag stand. A shelf, in which a slight depression has been cut, is fastened to the pole, and a little above this a wire ring is attached. The flag may now be slipped in and out at will. Seven good-sized stones, which can be picked up about the shore will be necessary for anchors, and six pieces of board about thaif a foot must be obtained to use as floats. Strong twine will answer for anchor ropes.

friend, with rod and line, but Johnnie had arisen from his blankets with a bad attack of laziness. With the young German lad, who was cook and man of all work to the camp, he was now keeping house and superintending the preparation of supper for the expected fishermen.

Otto, was peeling potatoes at the entrance of the small tent; just outside, the embers of a fire smouldered, surrounded with cooking utensils; within Johnnie sat on a cracker box, his eyes cautiously on the German's back, while his fingers conveyed juicy peaches to his mouth, to be guiped hastilly at short intervals. The boy listened meanwhile with arrirritating lack of enthusiasm to Otto's talk of German prowess in German wars.

"Chonnie! I'll tell your fader!"

"I bet your uncle would be afraid of Indians. Wouldn't he, Otto? Once a soldler was caught by Sloux Indians, and they tied him to a tree and stood off and threw knives at him—sharp, long knives, Otto, and when he was saved he was dead, and there were two—two—hundred and—fifty three knives sticking in him. I vell you, Otto, Indians is awful people to fight with. Would your uncle have been afraid if he'd been that soldier? That's the way the Cheyennes do, the ones that are round here."

"It vos time your fader home come, Chonnie," said Otto, suddenly rising and looking round with evident anxiety. "It is not goot to leave a little boy like you alone so long times. I vill fix dose peaches for dessert. Ach! Vot! Chonnie!"

Johnnie darted from the tent, and the young immigrants dashed after him. Not a peach was left in the bag.

Round the tent ran the boy, half afraid, but shaking with laughter.

"I' vill tell your fader," cried Otto, penting and shaking his fist. "Vos dot right to get me trouble into?"

"Well," Johnnie cried, with indignation, if somewhat irrelevantly, "you oughtn't to tell a little boy like me big fibs about your uncle."

The air had been still and close. Now, of an instant, it stirred, and the grasses rippled, and a distant hum came to their ears faintly from across the plain. But it was not the rising wind, nor the omingus humming from the horizon that brought Johnnie to a startled halt, and made Otto stop with shaking knees and bulging eyes, and creepy, crawling hair. From the edge of the plain came, indeed, a little band of mounted natives, galloping on their ponies straight toward the fishing camp. Immediate panic convulsed the innnocent servant lad. He uttered a horrible howl of fear and despair and dashed headlong into the big comical tent, tripping on the ropes as he went and falling flat on his face within. Panic is always contagious. Johnnie followed Otto swiftly, and fell over him. The men then return to their places and the defender becomes free lance to try for the flag in his turn.

If the free lance upset before reaching the flag stand, the two whistles are immediately sounded. If one of the free lance guards fails to stop the guard opposed to him, and lets his opponent pass to the free lance side of the flag stand, the second whistle is sounded and the free lance is allowed two minutes to pass this man and gain the flag, before the two whistles or third signal is given. Away went the potatoes, the embers

To the agitated mind of the immigrant, the terrible uproar conveyed but one idea. Upset by Johnnie's stories of Indian atrocities, and the appearance of the ponies, he had no thought of the wind, but fancied the Indians were charging down upon them. Already he saw himself scalped and made a great pinoushion with long knives for pins. At least, he would die with a clear conscience and confess. "Chonnie!" he yelled, clasping the boy about the neck. "I vos a great pig liar! I tell you stories. Mein uncle—I never haf no uncle!"

I tell your stories. Mein uncle—I never hat no uncle!"
Johnnie was choking. Between the weight of the canvas and the desperation of Otto's grip, he could not reply. Wriggling like an eel he got away, panting for air, and at last his head emerged. The cyclone had already passed; a high wall of whirling sand was fading in the distance. Johnnie looked round and saw the peaceful Indians rising from their prone positions on the earth and pulling the ponies to their feet. They turned and grimmed at the boy, and Johnnie's composure returned. Otto was crawling out, white and shaken. Johnnie faced him triumphantly.

MOZART'S NOTE BOOK.

IBY A SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.1

The first note-book of Mozart, the greatest of the world's composers, has been lately discovered in London. It is published now for the first time by the Mozart Society of Berlin. Mozart was Mozart Society of Berlin. Mozart was one of the few infant predigles to real-ize the expectations of those who saw and heard him when a boy. The note-book just discovered contains composi-ions written by him in 1764, while he ices written by him in 1764, while he and his elder sister were on a visit to England. The boy Mozart was then only 4 years old, his sister 12, yet they astonished the court of George III and were the wonder of the day in London. Unfortunately for thim, but fortunately for the world, their father, Leopold Mozart, was taken very ill, so ill, in fact, that the least noise was unbearable, and for many days the plano and organ remained closed. It was during this period of enforced inactivity that little Wolfgang wrote these charming compositions and compresed a symphony dedicated to the Queen of England. The musical world has been startled to find the wonderful maturity of these early compositions. The lover of Mozart's music recognizes the touch of that masterhand even in these simple harmonies where lie many of the themes developed later by his more mature genius.

The court and people might well stand amazed at the boy who had to be lifted up on the organ bench, yet played any music placed before him or improvised on any suggested theme. Gypsies and Indians know how to do it, but there is nothing mysterial ways agained went into the pockets of his enterprising manager and father for private exhibitions of the genius of the infant composer. Lords and ladies besieged the doors, begging that they might pay their gold to hear the wonderful child improvise upon their favorite themes.

wonderful child improvise upon their favorite themes.

Still, he was a very natural child in other respects. It is related that during one of these private recitals, while Mozart was in the midst of a composition which charmed every listener he espied a favorite cat coming into the room. His hands dropped on the keys, he slid down from the bench and ran to pick up the cat and fondle her. It was as natural for him to play the organ and compose music as it is for any other child to "play horse" or sing "ring around a rosy." When he was composing his symphony dedicated to the Queen of England, he remarked to his sister, who was standing near: "Now, don't forget; remind me to give the French horns plenty to do."

set; remind me to give the French horns plenty to do."

The notebook written at this early age is scribbled sometimes in penell, at others ink has been used, but its great value lies in the proof that his musical genius was so ripe almost from the very beginning. The original manuscript of the symphony is carefully preserved in the library of the British Museum, but the notebook was lost for more than one hundred years and brought to light only within the last few months. This picture of Mozart was taken at about this time, the original painting being preserved in the Mozart Museum at Salzberg.

The camping out days have come and the person who can make a good fire under disadvantages has a proud learn to keep your matches dry—and before that to be sure you have matches. Leather match-cases are likely to let matches get damp; carry a metal cne. Then always make a habit of having some old newspaper in your best protected pocket. You can get on without it, but it is good wood-craft to do things the easiest way, and the paper makes fire-building easy. Also be sure you always have a good knife; of course no self-respecting boy needs that advice; but giris who want to glorify their sex by showing what girls can do in the woods need to look to the knife problem. Select a place for the fire where it won't set either timber or tents ablaze. Clear the ground for several feet around it of inflammable trash; a few stones roughly piled up between it and the wind will often save more time than it takes to gather and olace them. If everything is soaking, look for a fallen tree or an old stump; shave off the surface at one spot, and then you can get good dry splinters from the old wood beneath, often a little "grubbing" in the stump, or underneath the leg will bring forth a handful of good dry wood without any use of the knife. Gather dead twigs from the trees, not from the ground; build your pile with care; hurry makes worry here, and it is to be hoped you wear a broad hat so that you can protect the infant blaze from untimely breezes with it.

Last and largest order—make the rest stand around and take orders from you when the fire is your job; otherwise some one will proudly dump a greatwet plank down on your struggling little blaze and then say, when it goes out, "Why, I thought you could build a fire so well; what do you suppose is the matter with you?"

SPECIAL NUMBER OF

In order to make this publication clearly portray everything pertaining to the war, representatives and artists were dispatched to Spain to procure photographs of the principal cities, hospitals, fortifications, harbors and warships. The result of this special work is a collection of

50 Photographs

The illustrations found in this portfolio are the best obtainable. Out of the many obtained the choicest were selected for this special number. Printed, as they are, on the very pest super-calendered paper, they are fit to adorn any library. They are not alone valuable from an artistic standpoint, but also from the historical information that can be gleaned from the text matter.

Price 25 cents.

The additional illustrations contained in this portfolio and the expense connected with their collection necessitates our charging this price for each dart. An examination will prove the value of this work, and the limited supply will find appreciative buyers. For sale at the counter or by mail, on receipt of price. Address
